MONASTERIES
OF
THE CLUNIAN ORDER.

OF THE

ORDER OF CLUNI.

IT may be proper here to say a few words upon the History of the CLUNIAc ORDER ; and, perhaps, we cannot do better than adopt what Tanner has said, in the preface to the Notitia Monastica, as our groundwork. To this, with such fresh particulars as have occurred, we shall add what Stevens has translated from the French History of the Monastic Orders, in his Continuation of Dugdale ; with some passages from Reyner, and one or two older writers ; finishing with the Account given by Whethamstede, abbat of St. Albans, of the Deputation sent to King Henry the Sixth, toward the close of his reign, for the restoration of its old dependencies in England to the parent Abbey abroad.

The reformation of some things, says Tanner, which seemed too remiss in St. Benedict's Rule, begun by Bernon abbat of Gigni in Burgundy, but increased and perfected by Odo abbat of Cluni, about A.D. 912, gave occasion to the rise of the Cluniac Order ; which was the first and principal branch of the Benedictines ; for they lived under the rule of St. Benedict, and wore a black habit ; but observing a different discipline, were called by a different name.

William earl of Warren, son-in-law to King William the Conqueror, first brought these monks into England, and built their first house at Lewes in Sussex, about A.D. 1077.^a

All the monasteries of this order in England were governed by foreigners, had more French than English monks in them, and were not only subject to the foreign houses of Cluni, La Charitè sur Loire, St. Martin des Champs at Paris, but could be visited by them only. None of their priors were elected by the respective convents, but named by the above-mentioned foreign houses. They could not receive the profession of their novices in England, nor could so much as any of their differences be determined here ; but they were obliged, in almost all cases, to go to their superiors beyond sea ; by which means the greatest part of their revenues were carried to those foreign houses : and upon that account, during the wars with France, the different establishments of this Order were generally seized into the king's hands as Alien Priories. But after the petition to the parliament at Winchester, 4th Edw. III., these inconveniences were by degrees removed : some of their houses were, in that and the following reign, made denizen ; Bermondsey was made an abbey ; and all of them at last discharged from all manner of subjection and obedience to the foreign Abbeyes : but, perhaps, says Tanner, not till the 36th Henry VI., or A.D. 1457, when three monks were sent from Cluni^b to desire restitution of those possessions which had been long detained from them, with leave to enter all places depending upon their houses : but instead of obtaining what they desired, they were deprived of the subjection of all Houses of their order in England.^c

^a There are two entries in the first volume of the Domesday Survey in which the monks of Cluni are noticed as under-tenants of land in England : fol. 196 b, at Carlentone in Cambridgeshire, where they held four hides and two acres of land of William de Warrene : and fol. 205 b, where they were tenants of the manor of Vpeforde in Huntingdonshire under Arnulf de Hesding. This last manor, which afterwards went by the name of Offord Cluny, was still held by the abbat in the 14th Edw. I. The Pleadings in Quo Waranto for Huntingdonshire recite the charters of Henry I. Henry II. and Richard I. by which this land was confirmed to the abbey of Cluni. See the Plac. de Quo War. p. 296. These possessions in Offord Cluny "in terris, molend. et pratis," in 1291, were rated at the annual sum of 20*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* See the Taxat. P. Nich. IV. p. 52.

In the same Taxation, p. 73, we read "Abbas de Cluny habet in decanatu de Roteland 14*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*" Again, in the diocese of Salisbury, among the Spiritual possessions, "Porcio in ecclesia de Ledecumbe Regis 15*s.*:" and among the Temporalities of the same diocese, "In Ledecumbe Regis abbas Clunacens. 46*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*" Ibid. pp. 186 b, 191.

^b Whethamstede, as will be seen hereafter, places their arrival in the following year.

^c Stevens dates the cutting off of these Monasteries from their obedience to the abbat of Cluni, as early as Henry the Fifth's time, in consequence of the war between the Kings of France and England ; whereupon some of them, he says, as Lenton and Daventry, took out new foundation charters, and united themselves to the Chapter and Congregation of the Black Monks. Others, however, he adds, remained under the title and discipline of the Order of Cluni, but not under their subjection ; and all the priors subscribed by the Title of the Cluniac Order to the deeds of their surrender.

The Houses of Cluni had pensions from the Houses of their Order in England, called Apportus, which probably amounted, in the whole, to a large sum; for Cotton, in his Abridgment, p. 51, says, the Abbat of Cluni had a pension from England of £2000 per annum; and, according to Rymer, old edit. vol. iii. p. 1009, and Prynne's Records, vol. iii. pp. 386, 858, the foreigners sometimes demanded occasional supplies from their houses here; and even ran them into debt, as Prynne, vol. iii. p. 750.^a

The Prior of Lewes, in Sussex, was accounted high chamberlain to the abbat of Cluni, and was often his vicar-general in England, Ireland, and Scotland. See Rymer, vol. xi. p. 464.

Tanner says, there were twenty-seven priories and cells of this Order in England. But the monks who were deputed to King Henry the Sixth, in 1457, complained that they had been deprived of the obedience of thirty-eight. The number, however, of which we shall really be able to give an account certainly amounts to forty-two, exclusive of three Cells, whose existence is not very distinctly described.^b

The greater part of the Houses of the Cluniac order were founded prior to the reign of King Henry the Second. Slevesholm, in Norfolk, was the last founded, about A.D. 1222.

Four houses of this Order were among those which Cardinal Wolsey dissolved in 1525.

In D'Achery's Spicilegium, fol. Par. 1723, tom. i. p. 641, are the "Antiquiores Consuetudines Cluniacensis Monasterii, collectore S. Udalrico Monacho Benedictino."

Of the Original and Progress of the Order of Cluni, the first branch of that of St. Benedict.

[Stevens, Contin. of Monast. Vol. ii. p. 7, from the Hist. des Ordres Monast. &c. tom. v. p. 184.]

"FATHER Mabillon, with good reason, admires, that the monks of Cluni have taken so little notice of the blessed Bernon, the first abbat of Cluni, and that they have not reckoned him among their first founders, as well as St. Odo, St. Mayeul, St. Odillo, and St. Hugh, in whom they glory as their heads and masters. If we consider the advancement and progress of this Order, says that learned Benedictine, the honour is justly due to St. Odo, whom Peter the Venerable calls the first Father of the Order of Cluni; but, if we regard the original and beginning of that Order, it must also be owned that the venerable Bernon cannot be denied the honour of having been the founder. Odo perfected and increased the order of Cluni; Bernon happily begun and governed it for several years. There is therefore the more cause to admire that some writers of this Order have not reckoned him among the abbats of Cluni, and that no one has written the life of this founder, who has had the same fate as St. Robert, St. Alberic, and St. Stephen, the first abbats of Cisteaux, whose honour and merit have been obscured by St. Bernard; and all Cistercian monks have taken his name.

"It is, therefore, after that renowned writer of the order of St. Benedict, that we look upon the blessed Bernon as the founder of the order of Cluni. He was of the family of the Earls of Burgundy, and perhaps was the son of Earl Audon, who for some years kept upon some part of his estate the body of St. Maurus, to secure it from the fury of the Normans. The anonymous author who has written the life of St. Hugh, monk of that monastery, tells us, that Bernon received the first rudiments of the monastical life in the monastery of St. Martin of Autun, and adds, that he left that monastery to go to reform that of Beaume. It is true, says also Father Mabillon, that Rodolphus, or Raoul, king of the Transjuran Burgundy, conferred the government of the abby of Beaume on Bernon; but it was at the time when he was building the monastery of Gigni; and it is likely that he took not

^b These were HITCHAM in Norfolk, BABLEW in Somersetshire, and MANTON in Rutlandshire.

Stow mentions a Hospital in the parish of St. Andrew, Holborn; another in the street without Aldersgate; and another near Cripplegate; CELLS to the House of Cluni in France, which were suppressed, 3d Hen. V. among the Priories Alien. Tanner says, IF THERE WERE SUCH, probably they were founded before the reign of K. Edw. III., whose seizure of all estates belonging to the French abbeys discouraged all foundations of that kind.

the monastical habit in any other place than at Gigni, it being the custom of that time for princes that renounced the world to build monasteries, to which they retired to profess the monastic life.

“The precise time is not known when Bernon laid the foundations of the monastery of Gigni, in Burgundy, situated between Lions-le-Saunier and St. Amour, in the diocese of Lions. But it is certain that it was finished in the year 895, when Pope Formosus granted to Bernon, who was then abbat, a charter, by which he takes that monastery, the priories and lands depending on it, particularly the priory of Beaume, under the dominion and power of the Holy See, to which Bernon had submitted the same: that same pope also granted to the monks of that abby licence to chuse an abbat, according to the rule of St. Benedict. It appears, by the instruments concerning the same, that Bernon, and his cousin Laifin, had perfected that which his predecessor had begun. He finished the church, the dedication whereof was performed with much splendor and magnificence, in the presence of a great number of prelates, who had been invited to it. After having ordered all that regarded the material structure of the monastery, he applied himself diligently to the spiritual structure. He settled such excellent discipline in that monastery, that several monasteries in France, as well of ancient as modern foundation, submitted themselves to it. Regular observance was so much gone to decay, especially in the ancient Monasteries, as well in France as in England, and in Spain, that they were so far from observing the rule of St. Benedict in them, that they scarce knew the name of it; which is the reason that some writers, contemporaries with St. Odo, have believed that he was the first that published that Rule. Among the rest, the anonymous author of Monstier-en-der, who has written the miracles of St. Burchaire, abbat of that monastery, tells us, that, in the days of St. Odo, the rule of St. Benedict was unknown in France, and that in the monasteries they followed the observances which were practised in that of Luxeuil. But were those people ignorant, says Father Mabillon, of the decrees of ancient Councils, and those of Chapters, which, ever since the fifth century, had recommended the Rule of St. Benedict to the monks, as a model for them to follow; and did not they remember what St. Benedict of Aniane had done at the Council of Aix-la-Chapelle, in the year 817, to cause that Rule to be observed in all monasteries? If any man has deserved the name of first reformer of the abbats of St. Benedict, continues the learned historian of that Order, it is doubtless St. Benedict of Aniane, who was general of almost all the monasteries in France, out of which he had formed a body of a monastical congregation. That holy abbat dying, and no one having inherited his zeal for upholding of regular discipline, the Order of St. Benedict fell again into the same chaos and confusion as it had been in before, as well by reason of the wars which happened between the sons of Lewis le Debonnaire, as on account of the frequent invasions of the Normans, who, having ruined most of the monasteries, occasioned a relaxation therein, and abolished even the memory of the Rule of St. Benedict. The honour of being the supporter and restorer of the Order of St. Benedict, then ready to fall, was reserved for St. Odillon. In short, scarce were the customs of Cluni made known by his care, before a considerable number of monasteries resolved to embrace them: some thought it sufficient to receive them, without submitting themselves to Cluni; others willingly submitted, and, together with the abby of Cluni, founded that renowned Order, which afterwards so far spread itself over all the earth.

“But, to make known the sanctity of the monks of Cluni, at the first beginning of that Order, we here give a specimen of their principal observances. They every day sung two solemn masses, at each of which a monk of one of the choirs offered two hosts, though only five communicated on Sundays, or but three on ferias, or common days. The other did before dinner, and by way of thanksgiving, receive the hosts which had not been consecrated, but only blessed. But at the solemn masses for the dead, and on the three Rogation Days, both choirs offered the hosts. On solemn festivals, the deacon communicated of the host of the priest that said mass, and the sub-deacon of the others; but on the three days before Easter, all the monks received the communion. If any one would celebrate mass on Holy Thursday, before the solemn mass was sung, he made no use of light, because the new fire was not yet blessed. The preparation they used for making the bread, which was to serve for the sacrifice of the altar, is worthy to be observed. They first chose the wheat, grain by grain, and washed it very carefully. Being put into a bag, appointed only for that use, a servant, known to be a just man, carried it to the mill, washed the grindstones, covered them with curtains, above and below; and, having put on himself an alb, covered his face with a veil, nothing but his eyes appearing. The same precaution was used with the meal. It was not boulded till it had been well washed ; and the warden of the church, if he were either priest or deacon, finished the rest, being assisted by two other religious men, who were in the same orders, and by a lay-brother particularly appointed for that business. Those four monks, when matins were ended, washed their faces and hands. The three first of them did put on albs ; one of them washed the meal with pure clean water, and the other two baked the hosts in the iron moulds ; so great was the veneration and respect the monks of Cluni paid to the holy Eucharist.

“ As to their regular exercises, silence was so strictly observed among them, as well by day as by night, that they would rather have died than break it before the hour of prime. During the hours of silence, they made use of signs instead of words. After the 13th of November, the elders stayed in the choir when matins were ended, and the young ones went to the chapter-house to learn to sing. When they were at work, they recited the Psalms. The publick declaring of their faults was in use among them. After Complin they received no gifts, nor were the monks ever permitted to eat any thing after that time.

“ Udalric gives us an instance in the person of a cellerer, who, though he had been employed the whole day in receiving the wine that was laid in for their store, yet could not obtain leave to eat after Complin. After the 13th of September they had but one meal allowed, except on festivals of twelve lessons, and within the octaves of Christmas and the Epiphany, when they had two. The remains of the bread and wine that were served in the refectory were distributed among poor travellers. Besides that they fed eighteen poor persons every day, and they were so profuse in their charity in the Lent, that one year, at the beginning of Lent, there were seven thousand poor, among whom they distributed a very large quantity of salt flesh, and other alms. Young people were there brought up with the same care ; they had the same education bestowed on them that the sons of princes could have had in the houses of their fathers ; and to this day they there breed up six boys of good families, who serve as choristers, and wear the habit of the order. This strict discipline was the care of the abbat, who had under him a great prior, deans, a cloister prior, chanters, masters for the boys, a pre-chanter, a cupboard keeper who kept the books that were for the use of the church in a cupboard in the cloister, a chamberlain who took care of the clothing, a treasurer who had charge of the treasure of the church, a cellerer, a master of the guests, an almoner, and an infirmary keeper. Thus the extraordinary discipline observed at Cluni, the great number of religious men there, the piety and devotion that moved all such as came into that holy monastery, rendered it most renowned. Its reputation spread abroad into all parts. France, Germany, England, Spain, and Italy desired to have some of those religious men, for whom they built new monasteries, or else they were put into the old, where regular observance was decayed. They also went over into the East, and there was scarcely any place in Europe where that order was not known.

“ To pass by what relates to monasteries of other countries in particular, which our author mentions, I will from him take notice of the account he gives of the Oblats, or persons given or offered up to the order.

“ About the year 948, a person of quality, with his wife, whose name was Doda, by consent of their children, renounced the world, and gave themselves to the abby of Cluni, with all they possessed in the villages of Macere and Norond, on the river Garonne. Father Mabillon is of opinion that this was the original of the Donnes, or Oblats, that is, persons given or offered up to monasteries, of which there were afterwards many, in several monasteries of the order of St. Benedict. These Oblats, or persons so given, receiving the religious habit, yet different from that worn by the monks, offered themselves up to God, with their possessions, and entirely gave themselves to a monastery, insomuch that they and their children entered into a state of servitude. In token of the offering they made of themselves and their possessions to the Lord, they put about their necks the bell-ropes of the church, and some money on their heads. Others took the money from off their own heads, and laid it on the altar. And a woman of quality, whose name was Gysa, after her husband's death, having also given up herself and her descendants to servitude, in the year 1022, in the monastery of St. Michael, left as a token of her offering to God, a piece of money with an hole through it, and the fillet of her head. There were also some of these Oblats in other orders ; but this sort is not to be confounded with those which the monasteries and abbeys of France, of the royal foundation, were obliged to receive and to maintain, and which were presented by the king. That sort of Oblats were called Lay-monks, and the religious men were obliged to give them a monk's portion, upon condition that they should ring the bells, and sweep the church and the choir. These places were intended for maimed and invalid soldiers. This was afterwards converted into money, and since then, these Oblats and their pensions have been transferred to the Hospital of the Invalids at Paris, which King Lewis the Fourteenth began to build in the year 1671, two years after the foundation he had made in the year 1669^a.

“This Order was divided into ten provinces, being those of Dauphine (which includes Provence and Savoy) Auvergne, Poitiers, Saintonge, and Gascony, in France; Spain, Italy, Lombardy, Germany, in which is comprehended Lorain and the County of Burgundy; and lastly, England, which includes Scotland.

“At the general chapters, formerly held yearly, and now every three years, two visitors are chosen for every province, and two others for the monasteries of nuns; fifteen diffinitors; three auditors of causes; and two auditors of excuses. There were formerly five principal Priories; which were also the five first daughters of Cluni; but since the priory of St. Pancrace at Lewes, in England, has been involved in the destruction of other monasteries of that kingdom, there are only four of those principal Priories, or first daughters of Cluni, being those of la Charité-sur-Loire, St. Martin des Champs, at Paris, Souvigni, and Souxillanges.”

Cluniacensis Ordo.

[Glaber Rodulphus monachus Cluniacensis, lib. iii. Hist. Franc. cap. 5.]

AD ultimum quoque prædicta videlicet Institutio (ordinis sancti Benedicti) jam pene defessa, authore Deo, elegit sibi sapientiæ sedem, vires collectura, ac fructificatura germine multiplici, in monasterio scilicet cognomento Cluniaco, quod etiam ex situ ejusdem loci ad-clivo atque humili, tale sortitum est nomen: vel etiam, quod aptius illi congruit, à cluendo dictum, quoniam cluere, crescere dicimus: insigne quippe incrementum diversorum donorum à sui principio indies locus idem obtinuit. Construxit igitur prædictum cœnobium primitus pater monachorum Balmensis monasterii Berno vocatus, jubente Willermo piissimo Aquitanorum duce, in pago Matisconense, super Graonam fluvium. Quod etiam cœnobium in primo, non amplius quam quindecim terræ colonias dicitur in dotem accepisse, fratres tamen duodecim numero inibi memorantur convenisse. Ex quorum veluti optimo semine multiplicata stirpe domini exercituum innumerabilis magnam cognoscitur replese. Qui quoniam his quæ Dei sunt, videlicet justitiæ & pietatis operibus incessanter adhæserunt, idcirco bonis omnibus repleti meruerunt, insuperque futuris mirabile reliquerunt exemplum; nam post præfatum Brunonem suscepit regiminis curam sapientissimus Abbas Odo, &c.

^a Having given an account of the Oblats, or persons offered to a monastery, says Stevens, it may not be unacceptable to take notice of the several sorts of exterior acts formerly used to denote the firm disposition made, or as it were a confirmation of any donation made in the most authentic manner.

Several forms were formerly used for giving possession to the persons that were to receive the donation. The most common was to give a glove, a knife, the haft of a knife, a stick, the stalk of an herb, the bough of a tree, a bit of wood, a book, or some other thing. Sometimes the donor broke or bent his own knife or another's. They brought some earth from the very place which was given, which was hung up in the church, before the high altar, tyed up in a piece of linnen. The donation was also made by touching the bells, or the bell-ropes; by a publick declaration made with a loud voice; by the leather-thong the donor was girt with, or by the kiss of peace, a ceremony which seems to have been essential, and which religious persons had performed by seculars, when decency would not permit them to do it to persons of a different sex. Therefore one Mainon, with the consent of his son and of his daughter-in-law, having given the land of Breschiot to the abby of St. Abuin of Angers, in testimony thereof he and his son embraced the monk Walter, who received the donation; but it being indecent for that Walter to give the kiss of peace to a woman, he ordered the provost of the abby to do it for him to Mainon's son's wife. Father Mabillon, in his Annals of the Benedictines, gives us two very singular instances of this sort of donations, the one made by cuffs on the face, and the other by paring a nail till the blood came, as appears by the Acts of the Donations made to the abby of Moissac, by Ponce Earl of Toulouse, and by one Honfroy to the monastery of Preaux in Normandy. For Ponce Earl of Toulouse, having, in the year 1045, given a parcel of land to the abby of Moissac, now changed into a Collegiate of regular canons, he made that donation by paring the nail of his thumb to the quick, and drew blood; and Honfroy having also given some land, in the year 1034, to the monastery of Preaux, with the consent of Robert Duke of Normandy, the prince sent his son William for him, to place that donation on the altar, which he did in the presence of several persons, among whom were Roger and Robert William, sons to Honfroy, who gave Robert William a cuff on the face. Richard de Lillebonne received a greater, and asking Honfroy, why he had given him so great a cuff; he answered, that being younger than he, and in all appearance likely to live longer, he would be a witness of that action. In fine, Hugh, son to Earl Valeran, received a third cuff. Father Mabillon adds, that this is the only example he has met with of this sort of donations made by cuffs.

Augustinus secum adduxit, et nos Benedictinos fuisse diximus; primum omnium sub Gulielmo primo Conquestore, gener ipsius, Gulielmus comes de Warennæ, Cluniacenses monachos introduxit, anno Domini 1077 vel circiter; qui tametsi sub regula D. Benedicti militarent, et habitu etiam nigro amicirentur, quia tamen longè diversam disciplinam in cæremoniis modoque agendi sequebantur ab ea, quam Monachi nigri ante ipsorum adventum servaverant, non Benedictini, nec de ordine S. Benedicti, sed Ordinis Cluniacensis monachi appellabantur; prorsus eodem modo, quo licet monachi Britones et Scoti secundum communem multorum opinionem, regulam sequebantur S. Benedicti: tamen quia in ritibus paschatis et tonsuræ, et candore vestimentorum a Monachis Romanis cum Augustino Angliam ingressis differebant, hi ut ab illis distinguerentur, monachi nigri appellati sunt.

DOMINO nostro Regi, et Consilio suo, remonstrant complures de Ordine Cluniacensi, quod Domus male gubernentur in spiritualibus et temporalibus, in grande dedecus Domini nostri Regis, et grande damnum Monachorum et ipsorum (Cluniacensium) et ejus mali remedium orant.

Primum, in grande damnum Domini nostri Regis, et in exhæredationem subditorum suorum, qui Domus (Ordinis Cluniacensis) fundaverunt, ubi debeant esse quadraginta vel triginta Monachi, non est tertia pars eorum, nominatim in Montacuto et Bermondseia, et similiter in aliis omnibus domibus: et ex eo quo deberent monachos alere, magna dant munera ad suum errorem manutenendum, et exportant bona extra terram in dedecus Regis, et grande damnum Domuum et Monachorum.

Secundum malum, non visitantur ab Archiepiscopo, Episcopo, aut ullo nationis Anglicæ; in grave damnum Domuum et Monachorum.

Tertium malum, nulla fit electio; et hoc est contra Regulam S. Benedicti: sed talis erit pastor, qui nihil noverit clericale (indoctus) sed tantum argentum colligere, et exportare sæpius bona extra provinciam.

Le quint mal est : nous ne sumus vint profes en cete terre, e les aliens averunt despenses, et les Engleys faudrunt byn : e les uns sunt karant anns en le Ordre avant ke il seyent profes, e les autres ne sunt james profes. ordine, aut de religione (de moribus emendandis) amandabitur per centum leucas pedes, cum expensis parvis : propter quod ordo Cluniacensis abit in ignominiam, et hinc nemo audet loqui de religione.

Quintum malum est ; non sumus viginti professi in hac provincia, et alienigenæ habent quod expendant, Anglicis verò desunt commoda, et aliqui erunt per quadraginta annos in Ordine priusquam profitebuntur, et alii nunquam sunt professi. Fuit ordinatum inter cætera Parlamento pro Ordine Cluniacensi, ut qui fuisset prior Lewiarum (S. Pancratii) debuisset esse abbas, ut exciperet professiones Monachorum in terrâ propriâ, et audiret ac terminaret querelas in ipsâ Provinciâ, absque eo quod necessarium foret mare transire, cum periculo ignominie et perditionis.

Sextum magnum malum est quod unius nationis Monachi (Franci) omnes dominabuntur quasi hæreditario, quantumvis pauci sint, et mala faciant, alii verò (Angli) omnes erunt subditi, quantumcumque bene agant ; quod est contra Regulam S. Benedicti. Ambæ nationes in eadem domo nunquam convenient : magnæ bonitatis foret mederi magnis incommodis, quæ ex his malis oriuntur.

Ejusdem itaque anni in temporibus, mense videlicet illo, quo rejungetur cultrum aratro, solentque homines exire in agros causa primariæ seminationis, intraverunt in regnum Angliæ tres monachi de cænobio Cluniacensi, viri probi et spectabiles, viri graves moribus, et sensu ac scientia plurimum prævalentes. Qui applicantes apud Dovoriam perrexerunt itinere recto, quousque venirent ad civitatem Londoniarum. Illuc utiq ; venientes, et dominum regem apud sanctum Albanum esse intelligentes, mox mora seposita inde recesserant, ascendentesque iterum in equos, usque ad villam prothomartiris veniebant. Ingredientes autem ecclesiam, et varios de ministris regiis habentes sibi obviam, petierunt dari licentiam adeundi domini regis præsentiam, ad exponendam sibi causam adventus sui, ac ulterius ad promovendam materiam suam. Certioratus rex de eorum adventu et de desiderio, mandavit domino episcopo Dunelmensi custodi protunc sui privati sigilli, domino de Gray de Ruthyn, et suo secretario, viro solido, sobrio et sensato, ut ipsi eos ad partem traherent, audirentque ab ipsis quid in sui causa adventus dicere vellent. Gradients igitur tres viri isti valentes ad ecclesiam, traxerunt eos seorsum ad locum privatum, ad videlicet vestiarium, ibique quæsierunt ab illis quæ fuerat causa sui adventus, et quæ ipsi habuerunt domino regi pro sua parte ad dicendum? Tunc eorum frater senior, vir in se grandævus et in facultate sacræ theologiæ doctoratus, aperuit os suum et loquebatur, dicens: “Egregii patres et domini. Missi per patrem nostrum abbatem Cluniacensem, propter tres causas accessimus ad istud regnum. Primo, ad aperiendum excellentiæ regiæ quomodo super omnes reges universæ terræ nobiles ipsius progenitores maximi amplissimique fuerunt benefactores ecclesiæ nostræ, qualiterque inter eos rex Henricus secundus, tam largus et largifluus ditator ac etiam dotator illius fertur fuisse, ut dicatur pronunc à nobis præcipuus noster fundator, præcipueque ac etiam singularissime habeatur recommendatus in omnibus omniphariisque suffragiis nostris. Secundo, ad petendam possessionem et confirmationem bonorum illorum omnium, quæ dicti progenitores loco nostro contulerant, et per tempus non paucum jam dudum à manibus nostris detenta distractaque erant. Tertio vero, ad impetrandam plenam licentiam et liberam, ad ingrediendum singula loca religiosa, à nostro Cœnobio dependentia, et per nobiles progenitores nunc regis posita fuerunt sub regimine et gubernatione nostra. Propter has tres causas ad regnum istud accessimus, peroptamusque, si regiæ placeat dignationi, propter eas aperiendas accedere ad præsentiam ipsius.” Rex, audita causa sui adventus, iussit eos recedere usque ad civitatem Londoniarum, expectaturos ibidem tam suum adventum, quam etiam per avizamentum sui concilii responsum eis dandum. Disponentes igitur se ad recessum, perrexerunt prius ad præsentiam reginæ, quæ fuit regis Siciliæ filia et de Gallicana natione. Deinde, per reginæ directionem, ad abbatis hospitium, à quo tam humaniter recepti fuerant, tam in mensa prima, quam etiam in secunda, quod in recessu eorum ab Anglia mitteret eorum senior, una cum habitu suæ religionis, et quodam tractatulo de ordine militari in regno isto, sibi litteram quandam regratiatoriam, continentem hunc tenorem:

“Reverendissimo in Christo patri ac domino, Domino Abbati Sancti Albani, sacræ theologiæ doctori famosissimo, vestræ reverendissimæ paternitatis humilis et devotus orator, Frater Mundus^a Bennalet, theologorum minimus. Reverendissime in Christo pater, et domine insuper honorande, humili præmissa recommendatione. Quoniam audivi, vos desiderare copias habitus nostri Cluniacensis, quem portabamus quando ad serenissimum dominum Regem accessimus, vestram intelligens paternitatem in Domino Jhesu esse devotam, et virum plenum scientia et virtute, non immemor caritatis michi et sociis meis impensæ, tam in domo quam in mensa vestra, in qua vos optime nos refecistis et pavistis (unde merito orare debemus, ut Deus vobis retribuât, et hoc in retributione justorum) hinc habitum meum, quo vestimur in vita et involvimur post mortem, per nepotem meum præsentium latorem transmitto. Utinam esset novus; sed licet sit miser, ad tegendam tamen humanam fragilitatem terream aptior est et melior. Omnes enim beati Benedicti patris nostri filii, hoc habitu tegimur in vita, et post mortem. Exiguum ergo munus, quod offert vobis devotus amicus et servitor, gratum habere dignemini, si valeret plus decies, etiam bono corde transmitterem. Transmitto etiam vobis unum brevem tractatulum, quem hîc edidi, non pro clericis, sed pro ordine serenissimi domini Regis, et suorum nobilium. Ideo in illo nullam infero scientiam, quia nec unum librum possideo. Corrigatis, si placet, ignorantiam meam. Ceterum, domine, noveritis, quod postquam per quatuor menses cum dimidio fuimus in itinere, et in prosecutione iurium nostrorum apud serenissimum dominum regem, et illius sacrum concilium, omnino nichil impetramus, imo remittimur valde tristes, nostris maneriis privati, pensionibus alienatis, imo, quod pejus est, omnium nostrorum conventuum, qui sunt numero triginta octo, obedientia sumus privati, nec valuerunt nobis legitima documenta, neque vestrarum cronicarum testimonia et tandem nostra universa exposita, expensa et pecunia vacui revertimur, quia certe hiis, quæ comedimus et bibimus, solutis, non restant nobis nisi quinque scuta^b pro recedendo ad ducentas sexaginta leucas. Set quid? vendemus nostra, et transibimus, et Deus ordinabit. Alia vestræ paternitati non occurrunt^c scribere, nisi quod, sicut cum lætitia intravimus Angliam, sic cum summa tristitia ab eadem recedemus, uno tamen primo sepulto nostro socio, videlicet archidiacono juniore nostrorum. Requiescat in pace, Amen. Humiliter supplicamus pro nostra omniumque salute dignemini orare, et sanctis orationibus dominorum patrum vestri sancti Conventus nos reconvertere. Et si quid ex nostris regionibus placet imperare, optimo corde faciemus.

"Recolende pater et domine. Visis vestræ paternitatis apicibus, una cum duobus placentioribus vestris munusculis, nuper nobis missis, cum munusculo videlicet regularis habitus vestræ domus, et cum munere cujusdam tractatuli de ordine militiæ regni hujus, in tanto lætiori oculo perspeximus, de quanto ex illo processisse animo intelleximus, qui recenter recordatur humanitatis exhibitæ, exiguæ quamvis et exilimæ, nec solet, ut moris est plurium, statim post digestionem, gustato modico de letheo poculo transmittere in oblivionem. Tractatulus quippe plenus est pinguedine moralis scientiæ, moraliterque unumquemque instruit, qui in ipso vel legere vel studere velit. Nichilominus, ne omnino videamur claudere viscera nostræ caritatis à vobis, transmittimus vobis per præsentium bajulum, vestrum nepotulum, de illis modicis, imo modi- cissimis, quæ adhuc nobis restant, pauculos denarios aureos,^b qui et si nequaquam in toto, de tantillulo tamen relevare vos poterint in itinere versus vestras partes. Responsum ideo non exprimimus quia bene scimus, satisque recenter illius recordati statis. Honesti enim viri est honesta dicere, in aliis vero vel interpretari in melius, vel omnino tacere. Igitur vel omnino taceatis, vel in melius reportamen facitatis. In æternum felicius quemadmodum nos vobiscum valere appetimus, vos nobiscum in precibus orationum, et in suffragiis caritatis valeatis. MONASTICON ANGLICANUM.

Lewes Priory, in Sussex.

WILLIAM earl of Warren, who came into England with William the Conqueror, founded the priory of St. Pancras at Lewes in 1077 or 1078.^a

The history of the foundation of this priory is given to us by the founder himself in his charter; who tells us that he, with the Lady Gundreda his wife,^b were going on a pilgrimage to St. Peter at Rome, and in their passage through France and Burgundy visited divers monasteries to make their orisons: but understanding in Burgundy that they could not in safety proceed with their purpose, on account of the war which was then carrying on between the pope and the emperor, they took up their abode in the great monastery of St. Peter at Cluni in that country, and there paid their devotions to the saint. The appearances of sanctity, religion, and charity which they met with in that abbey were great beyond their expectation; and these, together with the special respect shown to them by the prior (in the abbat's absence) and the whole convent, who admitted them to their fraternity, charmed them, and raised their esteem both for the Order and the House of Cluni above all others. And because, long before that time, the earl and his lady had determined (by the advice of Lanfranc archbishop of Canterbury) to found some religious house to make atonement for their sins, and for the welfare of their souls; they forthwith resolved that it should berather of the Cluniac than of any other Order. They therefore, soon after, sent over their request to Hugh abbat and the convent of Cluni that they would favour them with two, or three, or four monks out of their flock: and the intention was to give them a church, anciently dedicated to St. Pancras, under the castle of Lewes, and which the earl and countess purposed, at the setting out, to endow with lands and possessions sufficient for the maintenance of twelve monks. The abbat, at first, made great difficulty in the affair, and seemed unwilling to comply, as the proposed place of abode for his monks was to be a long way off in another land, and especially as the sea would be between them and the parent convent; but understanding at length that the earl had obtained licence from King William to introduce monks of their order into England, and having himself applied to the king on that behalf, and being satisfied of his approbation thereof, he became reconciled to the proposal, and agreed to send them four monks of his convent, Lanzo being chief. Whereupon the earl did immediately by his charter grant and confirm what he had before so designed and promised; and remitted the deed to the abbat and convent of Cluni. For the abbat and convent of Cluni would by no means send over the monks, till they had in their hands a sure confirmation both from the earl and the king of the possessions they were to be endowed with on their arrival. And thus it was, says the earl, that I and my wife procured a convent of Cluniac monks in England.

This affair took up some time in transacting, and abbat Hugh showed himself very backward in complying with the earl's proposals, either on account of some real difficulties in the case, or, as seems most likely, to make the greater advantage of the pious disposition of the earl, and retain the new settlement, as far as might be, dependent upon his own monastery. To this purpose he had recalled Lanzo the prior, and kept him for a whole year together at Cluni. At which usage the earl was so far provoked, as almost to have determined in his mind wholly to lay aside his design, or at least to take away his church from them, and give it to the greater monastery of Tours. But the abbat, who was come to speak with the king in Normandy, there meeting with the earl, and finding his temper, agreed to send over again Lanzo the prior directly: and moreover, then, at much entreaty, promised and agreed that if God should give a sufficient encrease to the earl's house, he would make it, as one of the great ones, independent; and when, upon the death of Lanzo, or his promotion to any higher dignity, the monks of St. Pancras should send to Cluni for a prior the next best monk of their whole convent, after their own prior and the prior of the abbey of Charity, should be returned: that is to say, one whom they knew to be the most strict and regular in his devotions, to maintain the religious Rule and Order of the House, and also the most skilled in secular wisdom to manage the affairs of it: and that he, the said prior, should remain with them, and never be removed back again, unless for some such apparent reason as no one could gainsay. And hereupon the Earl had the abbat's deed in writing, signed and sealed.

The earl tells us, that he took these precautions, fearing lest when Lanzo came back again he should soon lose him: for the king laid hands upon every man of better note he could meet with, and raised them to dignities in the church; and in his hearing, he tells us, he desired the abbat of Cluni to send him over a dozen of his holy monks, and he would make them all bishops and abbats in the land of his Inheritance, which God had given him. And the earl did it too, thinking with himself, that if his house should thus in its infancy and first beginnings be every now and then changing its prior, and come into the management of fresh hands, it would never arrive at any great proficiency. And to prevent this his work and labour of love from being liable at any time hereafter to any secular service or encroachments thereupon, it was then settled between him and the abbat, that the abbey of Cluni should receive yearly fifty shillings English money of the gift of St. Pancras, in lieu of all service, imposition, and tax: and that the abbat of Cluni should by no means interfere with the prior of Lewes in the ordering of the house, unless it were in the case of establishing and amending the rules of the Order, which the prior could not do of himself; nor of any of the houses, if so be by the grace of God he should come to have any under him: but the prior and convent of St. Pancras should always have them free under their own direction, as they should be given them. And this he provided for, because he had it in his intention to settle some monks in his castle at Acre, which he chose should be subject to no other place but St. Pancras.

The unsettled times which followed upon the death of King William, the doubtfulness of the succession, and the uncertainty of the life of their founder, put Lanzo the prior and his monks upon remonstrating with the earl that the writing made by him of the possessions which he had given them was at Cluni; that they themselves had no deed thereof; and that therefore they begged of him to make out to them for their security another charter of his donations. With this request of theirs he readily complied, and, by the name of William de Warren earl of Surrey, gave and confirmed to the abbey and convent of St. Peter at Cluni the Church of St. Pancras lying under his castle of Lewes; and to the said church and the Cluniac monks serving God therein, for the health of his soul and of the soul of Gundreda his wife; and for the soul of his sovereign lord King William who brought him over into England, and gave him licence to bring over those monks, and confirmed his former grant to them; and for the health of his sovereign lady Queen Maud his wife's mother; and for the health of his sovereign lord King William their son, after whose coming into England he made this present charter, and who made him earl of Surrey; and for the health of all his successors, and all the faithful of Christ, living and dead; he gave, for the maintenance of the said monks of St. Pancras, his mansion or manor called Falemel, viz. all that he had in demesne there, with a hide of land which Eustace held in Burgamel, and which belonged to that manor: the manor also of Carlentone which Maud the queen, with the permission and confirmation of King William, gave Gundreda his wife and him to assist them in their foundation for their new monks: and in Swamberge five hides and a half: the land also called the Isle, near the monastery, with the meadows and pasture fields: all the land also which he had in demesne within the island in which the monastery was situated, with the mill upon the pond adjoining and with one tenant out of the town^a near there called Lewine: in Tuniac the land that was Norman's: to wit, one yard-land called Redrewell, and another called Stanforde: in Wastedene two hides with four villans and one meadow:^b the tithes also of his lands, and those in particular which Richard the priest held, and was to hold for life, the monks having the reversion of them: and all the grants of tithes which his tenants there had made, or should at any time thereafter make, he confirmed.

With these donations he had at the first endowed them; and afterwards he gave them the lordship of Walton, reserving to himself and his heirs the right of two nights' entertainment in a year there, the one in going to, and the other in returning from Yorkshire, in lieu of all services which the tenants of that manor owed him. And if he or they lodged there more than twice a year, whatever charges the monks were put to, over and above the two times mentioned, were to be brought to account and allowed for at the year's end.^c

Moreover he gave them the church of Acre with two plough-lands, where he, and his wife Gundreda before she died, purposed to make another monastery, and to supply it with monks from those of St. Pancras; and where they were still to be subordinate to and in the free disposition of the prior and convent of St. Pancras. And he himself at the time of making this his charter, which was after the death of Gundreda his wife, continued still in the resolution so to do, provided God granted him health and life; but, if, it happened otherwise, and he himself could not complete it, he left it in charge to his heir. And if any of his heirs who came after him, should, in their time, found and endow any house of religion, he directed them to subject it to St. Pancras; and always to have St. Pancras the head of their Honor. And he desired them to fix upon the church of St. Pancras for the place of their burial, as he intended it for his own, and had already laid there Gundreda his wife.^d

All these aforementioned possessions he gave them in the life-time and with the consent of Gundreda his wife, and of William and Raymond his sons and heirs. But, between Gundreda's death and the time of making this his charter he moreover gave them for the health of her soul, his own soul, and the souls of his posterity, his manor of Hecham, in Norfolk: commanding that his heirs should confirm the same; as his sovereign lord King William had done, and as the king's father had confirmed his other donations.

Whatever this earl now gave the monks, and whatever he should add at any time hereafter, or his heirs after him, he confirmed to them, quite free from all services, customs, taxes, and impositions whatsoever: and bound it upon himself and his heirs after him in like manner for ever, to answer all such demands for them and their tenants, as for their own demesne lands; and if any dispute or offence chanced to arise between their tenants and the earl or his tenants, which incurred a penalty, the prior of St. Pancras was always to levy the forfeiture of his own tenants, that it might not be in the power of any one else to injure or oppress the tenants of the saint. And he intended, as God increased his substance, to increase that of the monks; and as their substance increased to increase their number. This charter of his was allowed and witnessed by the king in his great council at Winchester, and by the bishops, earls, and barons then present.^e

Furthermore, to those lands in Sussex and elsewhere already recited, wherewith he endowed this his priory of St. Pancras and the monks of Lewes, he added these churches in Yorkshire, viz. Cuningeburgh, Hertille, Fislac; Hetfeld with the chapel of Torne; the church of Little Sandal with the chapel of Harnoldesthorp; the church of Wakefield with the chapel of Horbirie; the church of Halifax; the church of Dewesbury^f with the chapel of Hertesheved; the church of Burton; and the church of Great Sandal.^g

As for other Benefactors to Lewes:

William the second earl gave and confirmed to them the lordship of Hercheham, according to the desire of his father before expressed, it being one of his best manors in the North; and likewise all that land there which William de Cailli held of him.^h He gave them too the church of Dicelinges, with one hide of land to keep the anniversary of his brother Raynald.ⁱ In two distinct charters he granted venison from his parks, and the privilege of fishing in his several waters at Lewes, when such advantages were necessary for the benefit of sick monks in the infirmary of the priory.^k He likewise settled the tithes of his revenues where-soever through England, in the priory: in kind of his demesnes; in money of his rents. The livery of seisin which he gave on this occasion was remarkable, the bishop of Winchester cutting a portion of hair from the head not only of the grantor, but of his brother, before the high altar of the church, at the time of the donation.^l

ⁿ Compare Num. IX. This grant was made to the monks by the earl before his marriage, and was, in truth, but a confirmation of what had been before granted to them by his father and grandfather: yet Ala, his countess dowager, refused, after his demise, to continue the payment of the tithes of the rents of her dowry: whereupon the monks made their complaint to Theobald archbishop of Canterbury, who directed his admonition to her, wherein he sets before her the heinousness of her offence, and counsels her to give the monks their own; or otherwise, he assures her, he must take it upon him to see that justice be done them. The Instrument of Admonition is printed in Selden's Hist. of Tythes, pp. 333, 334

Ranulf de Warren gave the monks of Lewes one yard-land at Estun, in Norfolk: and William, his son, the tithe of the land which one Godvine held at Gelham.^a

Walter de Grantcourt gave them the churches of St. Mary and St. Peter at Burnham, with their glebes and tithes: all which Philip de Warren then held, for his life, for two marks of silver.^b

Simon de Fleinvile gave the tithe of Epinges: and Geoffrey Bainard and Ralph his brother the church of Essendun.^c

Richard son of Haerdewine de Scalers gave lands in Willingham, as did William de Pigchenie a garden at Thatesford.^d

The church of Winterburn, in Wilts, was given by Reginald de Dunstanvill. The church of Compton, in Sussex, by Roger de St. John. The church of Bercham, and twenty shillings rent, and the chapel of Greteham, by Robert de Dunstanvill. Walter de Dunstanvill gave to the monks his lands in Nytymbre.^e

Roger de Caisneto, or Cheney, gave to Lewes the tithe of Grafham. Ralph de Cheney senior gave a hide of land at Elintune for the soul of Maud his wife: and Ralph de Cheney junior, his son, gave another hide of land, with the mill at Bardesey, for the soul of Emme his wife; as also the church of Brighthelmston, with the tithes of all he had in that town; and his tithes of Sadlescombe.^f

William de Cahaynes, or Keynes, gave a hide of land in Langney for the souls of his sons Richard and William, and a piece of land at Rameginges which rented for half a mark: Adelais, his wife, gave two hides at Duclintune for the soul of her husband: and Hugh de Keynes two hides and a half at Sidenore "pro monachatu."^g

Philip de Braose gave four salt-pans at Bramber: and Reynald de Poynings the tithe of his lordship at Pangdean. In the castelry of Sevensey Alured Pincerna gave the church of Grenestede, and half a hide of land belonging to it: and at Hastings Reginald de St. Leger gave, for the soul of his wife, his land of Crotteslee, of 25s. per annum; the produce of which was made to maintain a monk to pray for her soul.^h

The monks of Lewes had moreover Erdlaveswyk; the tithe of Sutton, in Surrey; the land of Banberge; the tithe of Saldeford; the tithe of William Damartin of Michelham; and the tithe of Geoffrey de Baileol of Bineley, in Kent.ⁱ

Dionysia widow of Robert de Beauchamp gave, for herself and the soul of her said husband, and for the temporal and eternal welfare of their children, and all their ancestors, xij^d. yearly rent, and ten shillings which Richard her son was bound to pay from a tenement which he held of the convent.^k

Eustace, the son of King Stephen, gave the monks of Lewes a fishery at Pcvensey.^l

Gilbert de Tonebridge gave them twenty shillings per annum rent out of the toll of Tonebruge for eight days preceding the feast of St. Pancras.^m

Gilbert earl of Clare gave them the church of Tonebruge;ⁿ and Roger earl of Clare, his brother, the church of Blechingley.^o

Josceline of Lovaine, who married the daughter and heir of Percy, and to whom William earl of Arundel had given the Honour of Petworth, castellan of Arundel, confirmed to the monks of Lewes the church of Budinkton, which they had of the gift of William Fitz-Ralph.^p

Alan Basset confirmed to the monks the grant of the church of Winterbourne which Walter de Dunstanvill his uncle had previously given.^q

Richard de Scalers gave to the monks Willingham, in Norfolk.^r

Hugh de Scalers, son of Richard, gave the churches of Wadone, Withiale, Ruthenalle, and Berchamstede:^s which grant Henry his son confirmed, adding the gift of certain lands in Wadone, of ten shillings per annum value, upon the day in which his father became a monk in the abbey.^t Hugh de Scalers ratified those grants made by Henry his father and Hugh his grandfather.^u

In the time of Henry II. Adam de Poynings of Poyning was a benefactor to the monks of Lewes.^x

Robert Martin bestowed on the monks half a ferling of land in his manor of Cumbe, in Devonshire; quit-claiming his title to the chapel of Cumbe.^y

Richard earl of Arundel, by his testament bearing date Dec. 5th, 49 Edw. III. bequeathed two hundred pounds to purchase lands and rents for the monks of Lewes, or else one or two churches to be appropriated to that monastery, for the maintenance of two monks to celebrate two masses perpetually every day, for the souls of his father and mother, his wife, with their children and successors, and all Christian people, in the chapel of St. Thomas the Martyr in that House; or else in the chapel of Our Lady on the north of the great church; the one mass of Our Lady, the other of the Holy Ghost: and that every prior of that house, at the first entrance upon his government, should swear to see the same punctually performed.^z

George Nevil Lord Bergavenny, by his testament bearing date July 1st, 1491, bequeathed his body to sepulture here, and directed his executors to pay two hundred marks to the prior of Lewes, to cause mass to be sung at the altar near the place of his burial every day; and to keep his obit yearly in the church.^a

Selden says, the priory of Lewes had the tithes of the demesnes of Henry de Hologhe at Reygate, in Surrey; which, in the 44th of Henry the Third, William prior of Lewes granted away, for ever, to the priory of Southwark, reserving yearly two shillings and sixpence to be paid for them to the sacristan of Lewes priory.^b

The advowson of the rectory of Rede, in Hertfordshire, was in the prior and convent of Lewes from 1361 to 1431.^c

In the time of Richard the Second we find the temporal possessions of the priory of Lewes in London valued at the annual income of a hundred shillings.^d

Allusions to the prior's hostel, or inn, as it was called, in Southwark, occur in the Register of Lewes in Instruments of the 45th and 47th of Edward III.^e Stow says, "Over against the parish church" of St. Olave, "on the south side of the street, was sometime one great house builded of stone, with arched gates, pertained to the prior of Lewis in Sussex, and was his lodging when he came to London: it is now a common hosterie for travellers, and hath to signe the Walnut tree."^f

The church of St. Olave, in Southwark, was appropriated to Lewes, by Peter bishop of Winchester, as early as 1238, for the purpose of increasing hospitality at the priory.^g the foreign monastery of Cluni, made them subject to the like inconveniencies with other alien priories, of being seized, with all their possessions, into the king's hands upon every war which broke out with France, of paying a fine for the privilege of farming their own lands, of answering an annual rent for the same, and whatever other taxes and demands should be laid upon them. And, therefore, in the 25th of Edw. III. they made over to the king and his heirs for ever the perpetual advowsons of the churches of Fichlak and Great Sandale in the diocese of York, Riston in the diocese of Norwich, and Whaddon and Caxton in the diocese of Ely, and therewith purchased to themselves an immunity from all those burthens and impositions to which alien priories were liable; and they and their successors were thenceforward to be deemed and treated as Natives and not Aliens; and they had the king's letters patents thereupon. And in the 47th of Edward the Third, on the petition of Richard earl of Arundel, patron of the priory of Lewes, the king extended the like privilege and immunity to the cells and members of the said priory, viz. the priories of Castle-Acre, Prittlewell, Parley, Horton, and Stanesgate, though not expressly mentioned in the former grant, providing that, if the priors of the said cells had been accustomed to pay any apport to any religious House in parts beyond the sea, the same should, for the future, be paid to the king and his heirs.^a

In the 21st of Richard II. the patronage of Lewes priory having fallen into the king's hands by the attainder of Richard earl of Arundel and Surrey, was granted to Thomas duke of Norfolk, who, thereupon, as patron, gave the convent a charter of confirmation.^b

The prior of Lewes^c was summoned to the parliament called by Simon earl of Leicester in the king's name, in the 49th of Hen. III.^d The prior of Lewes was in like manner summoned to the second parliament in 1st Edw. II.;^e again, in the third summons of the same year;^f and again in the 2d and 4th years of Edw. II.^g to one of the parliaments in the 5th of Edw. II.^h in the 6th Edw. II.;ⁱ and as it seems in all the summonses through the rest of that reign.^k

In the time of Edw. III. no prior was summoned till the fourth year of that king, when the prior of Lewes was;^l as also in his fifth year,^m and so on in every summons till the 27th year of the same king, when he was the only prior summoned to a great council.ⁿ The prior of Lewes was then omitted till the 36th Edw. III. when he was again summoned, as also in the year following.^o But in the 39th Edw. III. he is again omitted, as also in the next summons which is of the 42d year, and so likewise in the rest till the middle of the reign of Richard II.^p

Selden, from whose Titles of Honor this enumeration is taken, says that some of the foregoing omissions might proceed, perhaps, from the vacancy of the House, or some such like occasion, or sometimes from the clerk's fault that entered not all them that were summoned, whence it is no necessary argument to say, that such an one was not summoned because his name is not remembered in the summons.^q

The writs of summons of the priors of Lewes to parliament from the 49th Henry III. to 23 Edw. IV. are extant in the Clause Rolls and Lists of Summons in the Tower of London.

We have very few of what may be called historical notices of Lewes priory.

The knight who by mischance shot Richard the son of Robert duke of Normandy with an arrow in the New Forest, took refuge there and became a monk: "infortunio gravi territus, ad Sanctum Pancratium statim confugit, ibique mox monachus factus."^r

In 1377, at the beginning of Richard the Second's reign, the French, who had made a sudden landing at Rotingdean, carried off the prior of Lewes as their prisoner, he having risked an opposition to them with too small a force.^s

In the 4th Edw. III. the prior of Lewes had the king's writ directed to him (as had likewise several other persons) prohibiting him to be any ways assisting towards putting a

In that of the 3d Edw. I. for Hertfordshire we read:

"Dicunt (Juratores) quod antecessores Galfridi de Scalar habuerunt advocationem Ecclesie de Wydihal et Waddune & . . . et advocationem illam habent modo monachi de Lewes ad dampnum domini Regis eo quod hæres ejusdem Galfridi est in custodia Regis." Rot. Hundred. tom. i. p. 193.

In the Inquisition for Norfolk, of the same year, it is said, "Dicunt quod comes Hamelinus predecessor comitis Warenn. dedit Priori et Conventui de Lewes in puram et perpetuam elemosinam totum teneamentum quod tenent in Walton, Walpol, Walsok, Tirrington, Tilneye, Wugehale, Clenchwardton, Sud Lenn, West Lenn, et Hecham, cum advocatione medietat. ecclesiarum de Walton, Walpol, et cum advocacione ecclesie Sancti Petri de West Lenn, et ecclesie de Harpele et Hecham tempore Henrici Regis avi in prejudicium Regis." Rot. Hundred. tom. i. p. 462.

So again, "Dicunt quod Prior de Lewes tenet manium de Hecham et ecclesias ejusdem cum pertinentiis de dono Hamelini quondam comitis Warenn. in puram et perpetuam elemosinam tempore regis Henrici avi in prejudicium domini Regis eo quod predictum manerium et ecclesia possent accidere in manu domini Regis per escaetum vel per wardam." Ibid. p. 464.

Several other entries relating to the prior of Lewes occur in the same inquisition, viz.

"Prior de Lewes habet assisam panis et cervisie in Hecham et super Hug. de Caly pro dim. mar. quam dant com. per annum nesciunt quo warranto."

"Prior de Lewes per ballivos suos ponit contentionem contra ballivos domini Regis in Sarveburne et super Will. fil. Galfr. de Sarveburne, et clamant habere correctiones panis et cervisie et perprestur. sine warranto, et non permittunt tenentes suos respondere rationabiliter ad letam coram ballivo domini Regis, ita quod omnes in dicta villa sunt extra decenam et assisam domini Regis."

"Dicunt quod episcopus Norwyc. Prior de Lewes, Prior Norwic. Joh. de Ingaltorp, Willielmus Rusting, omnes usi sunt libertatibus suis aliter quam facere debuissent eo quod capiunt redemptionem pro assisis panis et cervisie fractis et non faciunt judicium."

"Dicunt quod Prior de Lewes fecit perprestur. super dominum Regem eo quod levent quoddam mercatum in Hecham in communi et in via regia et ibi facit restrictiones suas pro voluntate sua ad nocumentum totius patrie."

"Prior de Lewes facit perpresturam super Regem eo quod cum ballivus domini Regis tenuisset letam in vill. de Hecham sicut consueverat eodem die post nonam venerunt ballivi dicti Prioris et tenuerunt letam aliam et posuerunt liberos homines invite ad sacramentum et quos culpabiles invenerunt amerciaverunt pro voluntate sua, et super illos qui non venerunt pro voluntate amerciaverunt pro defalta, et primo hoc fecerunt in hoc anno." Ibid. p. 464.

"Dicunt quod episcopus Norwic. aliter utitur libertate sua, &c. in hoc quod cum debeat habere amerciam. hominum suorum ex concessione Regum Angl. idem episcopus cap. amerc. tam de hominibus aliorum quam de suis. Et Prior de Lewes qui habet assisam panis et cervisie in Heyham, proximo die postquam tenuerit letam suam ibidem iterum fac. convocar. homines ejusdem letæ coram ballivo suo, et ab-sentes amerciat pro default. ubi nunquam pro defaultis aliquid capere consuevit et etiam hoc anno capi fac. in mercato suo de Heyham ulnas et mensur. ut de eis visum haberet de quibus nihil pertinet ad eum sed tamen nihil cap. ab. aliquo." Ibid. p. 522.

In the Roll of the same year for Sussex, Rot. Hundred. tom. ii. p. 201. the privileges of the prior of Lewes, in the vill of Sefford, are mentioned, with the following entry, under the Hundred of East Grinstead:

"Dicunt quod Prior de Lewes incarcerationem fecit unum tenentem suum Johannem de Molendino et ipsum Johannem in carcere contra vadium et pleg. et contra communem justitiam retinuit, et domos suas et catalla sua interim asportavit. Et Baselia uxor ejus impetravit Breve domini Regis ad Vicecomitem, videlicet Matthæum de Hasting ut ipsum Johannem a prisa prædicti Prioris deliberaret secundum formam mandati domini Regis sed dictus vicecomes illud mandatum et alia tria mandata domini Regis favore prædicti Prioris contempsit, officium suum facere nolendo, eo quod prædictum Johannem a prisa deliberare noluit. Ex dictus prior adhuc detinet catall. dicti Johannis ad valentiam xl. marc. et amplius." Ibid. tom. ii. p. 205.

^a See Num. XII. of the Appendix. King Edward IV. by an instrument, dated Nov. 13th, in the 7th year of his reign, granted to Thomas Wilmote, vicar of the church of Asheleford in Kent, for the foundation of a chantry in that church, the portion which had been paid by the prior and convent of Lewes to the abbey of Clugny as an apport: "annuam portionem centum solidorum, quam prior de Lewes nobis reddere tenetur de quodam APPORTO Abbatie Cluniacensis nuper debito et nobis reservato." PRIORS of LEWES.

LANZO has been already sufficiently noticed as the first Prior. Wharton calls him Lanro, as does Willis. The Chronicle of Bermondsey dates his coming to England A. D. 1077. William of Malmesbury gives him a high character.^c

HUGH prior of Lewes was promoted by King Henry the First to be abbat of Reading in 1123.^d About A.D. 1129 he became archbishop of Rouen, where he died on the ides of November, 1134.^e He attended King Henry the First in his last moments, and wrote an account of his end to the pope.^f

ANSGERUS was apparently the successor of Hugh.^g

ARNALDUS died A. D. 1139.^h

WILLIAM occurs prior of Lewes in a charter of the year 1170. "Anno primo Henrici regis junioris filii regis Henrici."ⁱ

HUGH, A. D. 1186.^l

VINBERTUS occurs in the time of Eustace bishop of Ely, who held that see from 1198 to 1214.^m

WILLIAM prior of Lewes signs a charter from Godfrey de Lisewis to Reinham priory in Norfolk, probably about the year 1200.ⁿ

STEPHEN occurs A. D. 1219.^o

HUGH, A. D. 1226.^p Madox, in his History of the Exchequer, informs us that in the 18th Hen. III. the prior of Lewes had the king's letters to the tenants of the convent for a reasonable aid towards discharging his debts.^q Whether this relates to prior Hugh, or any successor between him and Albertus, is uncertain. In this place we must probably insert the name of

HENR. de FLEG. In the Annales de Lewes we read, "A. D. 1252. Hoc anno iiij^{or}. non. Sept. obiit bonæ memoriæ venerabilis pater dominus Henr. de Fleg quondam prior hujus loci cujus animæ propicietur Deus."

ALBERT occurs A. D. 1236,^r and again in 1243. He died in 1244.^s

GUICHARD DE OSAYE, called also GYCARDUS, and GUYGARDUS, was admitted May 7th, 1244.^t He died in 1248.^u

^b John Pecheham, archbishop of Canterbury, who was born in Sussex of obscure parents, had his first education in the monastery of Lewes toward the middle of the thirteenth century. See Parker de Antiq. Brit. Eccles. p. 290. Another person educated there was Edmund Dudley, famous in the time of Henry VII. His father is said to have been a travelling carpenter, who happening to be entertained at this priory, was at length appointed a workman for the House. His son Edmund being brought up there at school, was by the prior, who had divers scholars rooms in the university, placed in one of them. The prior afterwards placed him at the inns of court, and used him as a solicitor to follow the suits of the house. Compare Erdeswicke's Staff. pp. 120, 121. Dugd. Warw. p. 420.

Again, in the section 'De Episcopis Selesiensibus,' "In ejus diœcesi sunt duo duntaxat cœnobîa è novo facta: sancti Martini de Bello quod rex Willielmus fundavit—et—sancti Pancratii de Lewes, quod auctore Willielmo comite de Warrenna, LANZO quidam monachus Cluniacensis in supremo religionis locavit cacumine. ^a See the Valor in the Appendix.

There is a valuation of the lands of this priory, temp. Hen. VIII., in the Chapter-House, Westminster; but it seems little more than an abridged account of the Valor Ecclesiasticus, with a few unimportant variations.

There are no Ministers Accompts of this priory in the Augmentation Office, owing, perhaps, to the short time it remained in the Crown before it was ganted away.

The Site of Lewes Priory, with a very large portion of its possessions, including some of those which belonged to the Cell of Castle Acre, was granted in 1538 to Sir Thomas Cromwell, Lord Cromwell, the different premises to be held of the king and his heirs by knight's service, as the twentieth part of a knight's fee; and also by yielding therefrom yearly to the king and his heirs 77*l.* 14*s.* 5½*d.* in the name of tenth, or first fruits of the tenth part of all and singular the premises so given. An enumeration of the lands, rectories, &c. included in the grant will be found in an abstract of the Originalia roll below.^a

Upon Lord Cromwell's attainder, the site of Lewes Priory reverted to the Crown. In the 32nd of Henry VIII.

Some little difficulty seems to have arisen in setting out the title of this grant to Lord Cromwell, as appears by the following letter to his lordship preserved in the Cottonian MS. Cleop. E. IV. fol. 233 b.

we find it leased for twenty-one years to Nicholas Jenny.^b In the 2nd of Elizabeth, however, it was granted in fee to Richard Baker and Richard Sackville. In 1609 it passed to John earl of Thanet, by his marriage with Margaret eldest daughter and coheir of Richard earl of Dorset. A century afterwards it was sold by . . . to Nathaniel Trayton, Esq. whose brother, Edward Trayton, devised it to Samuel Durrant, Esq. who sold that part whereon the Mount stands, and a piece called the Paddock, to . . . Pelham, of Lewes, Esq. whose son, John Pelham, Esq. of Lewes and Crowhurst, was the possessor of the parts afore-said in Sir William Burrell's time.^c

Dugdale quotes a REGISTER of Lewes Priory, as, in 1649, in the possession of John Selden, Esq. The register, however, which that learned writer copies from in his History of Tythes, is the one which is still preserved in the Cottonian collection of manuscripts marked Vespasian F. xv.; a folio of considerable bulk, an analysis of which will be found in the note.^d Tanner notices this volume as follows: "In bibl. Cotton. ex dono viri summæ industriæ et de

"My bounden duetie remembred unto yo^r good lordeshipp, thes shalbe to signifie the same that the prior of Lewes hathe, this present Monday, knolaged a fyne bothe of Lewes and Castelacre. Albe it is thought that Castelacre passithe not by the fyne: and as concernyng the preamble of the dede it is nowe fully resolved that ther shall not be any suche preamble. The prior affirmed this daye, that my lord of Norfolks grace promysed hym to have all the goods of the monastery, and the oone half of the debts. I am sory that my chauce was not to come a litle rather upon Sondaye, that I might have spoken withe yo^r lordeshipp in the premisses, asserteynyng yo^r good lordeshipp that Master Pollard and I entend, God willing, tobe at Reygate to morowe at night according to my lord of Norffolks appointment. And thus our Lorde have yo^r goode lordeshipp in his tuicion. Writen at the Rolls this Mondaye the xijth daye of November.

From the grant it appears that the surrenders of Lewes and Castle Acre priories were both jointly and separately taken on this occasion: jointly, for both, from the prior and convent of Lewes; and separately from the prior and convent of Castle Acre: it being considered that though Castle Acre was a different possession, it held of Lewes priory ut caput honoris.

In the 33 Hen. VIII. William Earl of Arundel, in exchange for several lordships and lands of his own, had given him, together with the possessions that belonged to the priory of Michelham, some also that then lately pertained to the monastery of Lewes: viz. the advowson of the rectory of Ripe; and likewise all those manors and lordships of Swanborough, Horsted, and Imberhorne, and the parks called Horsted Park. Pat. 33 Hen. VIII. p. 1. Dugd. Bar. i. 324 a.

^c Burrell, Collections for Sussex, MS. Donat. Brit. Mus. 5706.

^d Eight leaves at the beginning of this Register seem from their different size to have belonged to some smaller chartulary of the monastery: they relate to the possessions of Lewes priory in Southenovre. The Chartulary really begins at folio 9, on the upper part of which is written,

"Robertus Auncell, quondam prior de Lewes me fieri fecit, Anno Domini millesimo cccc^{mo}. quadragesimo quarto."

The following is an enumeration of the more important charters preserved in the volume.

Two leaves of a very ancient book of the rents of this priory certainly as old as the twelfth century, occur in the Cottonian manuscript Vespas. E. II. fol. 103.^a

In the same collection, Tiberius A. x. article 21, were formerly "ANNALES CONSCRIPTI A MONACHO QUODAM DE LEWES a Christo nato ad annum M.CCC.XII." The volume containing these Annals was so damaged in the fire which happened at Westminster in 1731, that it was in part reduced to a mere crust. Upon separating the leaves however, much information in the middle of them was accessible; and a few facts and dates, chiefly relating to the prior of Lewes, have been gleaned from them for the present account.

The Harleian MS. 66. contains, fol. 185 b, "Preceptum Edwardi I. regis de amovenda causa super avocatione East Grenstede, dat. 11 Mart. anno regni xxxii.

The COMMON SEAL of Lewes had for its subject the martyrdom of St. Pancras, represented by the saint bound and sitting, having before him a Roman soldier ready to strike the fatal blow. An impression of this seal, on white wax, is nearly perfect, with the exception of the legend, of which nothing remains but the words SIGILLV CRASII. The instrument to which it is attached bears date A. D. 1218, and is preserved in the office of the Duchy of Lancaster. There is a counterseal with a head, intended perhaps for St. Pancras.

The priory also used a smaller seal, an impression of which is attached to a deed in the Chapter-House, Westminster, dated 16 Edw. II. in this the saint appears on his knees, the soldier behind him with an uplifted hand ready to strike. The inscription, as far as it is legible, is thus, SECRETV CRASII.

Few particulars as to the building of the different parts of the old structure of Lewes priory have reached us.

Nothing more occurs till the dissolution, when

The present remains of the priory itself are inconsiderable, although the area, encircled by a wall, contains not much less than forty acres. In 1789, when Mr. Gough published his edition of Camden, the shells of some of the apartments of the priory were distinctly visible, a cloister with rude massive vaulted roofs like caverns, the side of the hall, under which ran a clear stream, an oven seventeen feet wide, and the piers of the gate with the postern with clustered round pillars of Sussex marble, some adorned with nail-head quatrefoils.^a

The author of the Ancient and Modern History of Lewes and Brighthelmston published in 1795, says: “The site of the Priory is now called the Lord’s Place, on account of a seat which had been erected there about the end of the sixteenth century, and inhabited by the earls of Dorset; and though the Lord’s Place or Residence here was burned down about an hundred years ago, the name still continues. This building stood on and near the site of the present barn near the church-yard. Eastward of it stood the great church of St. Pancras, and, to the south of that church, stood all the other buildings of the priory. The remains of a large oven, still extant, point out the site of the bakehouse, and, by implication, that of the kitchen and other culinary offices necessarily attached to so large a monastery. The hall and refectory stood over a clear stream, a branch of the Cockshut river, or sewer, which supplied a mill and the priory with a perennial current of the purest water. This hall, which happened to escape the general demolition of Portmarus, was converted by the first earl of Dorset into a malt-house, and its walls are still in better preservation than any other part of the ruins. There are still traces of two vaulted subterraneous passages, whose original use is not easily ascertainable at this day. One seems to have led from an inhabited part of the monastery; perhaps the Cells or Dormitory, to the great church; the other, which seems to have been smaller, is not far from the eastern wall of the orchard or Place garden, and might have been only a covered or arched sewer. The former of these passages has been continued by the imagination of the ignorant, ever prone to the marvellous, as far as the Friars, or the Castle, or St. Anne’s Church, according to the whim or local partiality of the narrator.^b

“Of the priory gate there is still enough to give an idea of the grand and expensive style of architecture which this wealthy society affected in all their buildings. It consisted of Caen stone, and Sussex marble, carved and ornamented in the best taste of the fifteenth century.”^c

A south view of the priory and castle was engraved by Buck, 1737. Two views of the priory, S. and W. were engraved by Grose, Sparrow, and Godfrey, 1761.

The CELLS to LEWES PRIORY were, CASTLE ACRE, and HITCHAM, or HECHAM, in Norfolk; CLIFFORD in Herefordshire; FARLEY in Wilts; HORTON in Kent; and PRITTLEWELL and STAINESGATE in Essex. CASTLE ACRE had its subordinate Cells of Bromholm, Normannesberchor Reinham, and Slevesholm in Norfolk, and Mendham in Suffolk. WEST ACRE, which Dugdale inserted in the former edition of the Monasticon as a Cell to Lewes, was an independent monastery.

Tanner, speaking of HITCHAM or HECHAM in Norfolk, says, “Here is said to have been a cell of Cluniac monks to Lewes,^d to which monastery this town was given by their founder, William de Warren, earl of Surrey.” “After the Dissolution the manor and church here, with several other estates belonging to that priory in Norfolk, were granted, 29th Hen. VIII., to Thomas duke of Norfolk.” He adds, “Vide Cart. 56 Hen. III. m. 3, pro merc. et feria apud Hicham com. Norf. concess. Priori de Lewes.”

MELTON MOWBRAY, in Leicestershire, is also called a Cell, but seems really to have been only an estate belonging to Lewes priory: as parcel of which it was granted in the 29th Hen. VIII. to Thomas lord Cromwell. Tanner gives these references to manuscripts concerning Melton Mowbray: “In Museo Britan. MS. Peck, vol. iv. Inquis. 16 Edw. II. de redditu in Melton Mowbray: vol. v. Inquis. 2 Edw. II. de terris in Melton dandis capellano Cantariæ in ecclesia ibid. Plac. assis. in com. Leicestr. 12 Edw. I. rot. 6, 15. Claus. 2 Edw. III. m. 14, de eccl. de Melton Mowbray approprianda. Pat. 21 Edw. III. p. 2, m. 10, de custodia et regimine scholarum apud Melton Mowbray in manu regis ratione temporalium prioratus de Lewes. Pat. 27 Edw. III. p. 3, m. 7, Composit. pro decimis de Melton Mowbray cum Priore de Kirkly Monachorum.” None of these, however, afford evidence that a Cell existed here.

The roof is composed of tiles set perpendicularly each 6½ in. broad, 11 in. long, 1 in. thick. Not far from this oven, on the north side of the ruins, is a subterraneous passage, which common fame reports to have served for a communication with the town of Lewes near Sir Ferdinand Poole’s house: it is in great part filled with rubbish. Carta foundationis per Willielmum de Warennā Surregiæ comitem.

[Ex Regist. de Lewes penes virum clariss. Joh. Seldenum armig. 1649.]

IN nomine Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti Amen. Ego Willielmus de Warrenna et Gundreda uxor mea volentes peregrinationem facere ad sanctum Petrum in Roma, pereximus per plura monasteria quæ sunt in Francia et Burgundia, causa orationis. Et cum venissemus in Burgundiam didicimus quod non potuimus secure transire propter guerram quæ fuit tunc inter Papam et imperatorem. Et tunc divertimus ad Cluniacum monasterium, magnam et sanctam abbatiam in honore sancti Petri. Et ibi adoravimus et requisivimus sanctum Petrum. Et quia invenimus sanctitatem et religionem et caritatem tam magnam ibi et honorem erga nos à bono Priore et à toto sancto conventu qui receperunt nos in societatem et fraternitatem suam, incepimus habere amorem et devotionem erga illum ordinem et illam domum super omnes alias domos quas videramus. Sed dominus Hugo sanctus abbas eorum tunc domi non fuit. Et quia longè ante et tunc magis habuimus in proposito et voluntate per concilium domini Lanfranci archiepiscopi ego et uxor mea quod faceremus aliquam domum religionis pro peccatis nostris et salute animarum nostrarum, tunc visum fuit nobis, quod de nullo alio ordine tam libenter quam de Cluniacensi eam facere vellemus. Et ideo misimus et requisivimus a domino Hugone abbate et à tota sancta congregatione quod concederent nobis duos vel tres vel quatuor monachos de sancto grege suo, quibus daremus ecclesiam unam quam de lignea lapideam fecimus sub castro Lewiarum, quæ fuit ab antiquo tempore in honore sancti Pancratii, et illam daremus eis, et tantum in principio terrarum et animalium et rerum unde duodecim monachi possent ibi sustentari. Sed sanctus abbas prius valde nobis fuit durus ad audiendam petitionem nostram propter longinquitatem alienæ terræ et maxime propter mare. Sed postquam nos perquisivimus licentiam à domino nostro rege Willielmo adducendi monachos Cluniacenses in Anglicam terram, et abbas ex sua parte requisivit voluntatem regis, tunc tandem donavit et misit nobis quatuor de monachis suis dominum Lanzonem et tres socios suos; quibus donavimus in principio omnia quæ eis promisimus, et confirmavimus per scriptum nostrum quod misimus abbati Cluniacensi et conventui, quia noluerunt nobis ante monachos mittere quam haberent confirmationem nostram et regis quam eis promisimus de omnibus rebus quas eis donavimus. Et sic dati sunt mihi et uxori meæ monachi Cluniacenses in Anglicam terram. Post mortem vero domini mei Willielmi regis cum filius suus Willielmus venisset in Anglicam terram propter regnum, et multa fuisset discordia de regno et dubitatio de fine, et ego in multis periculis cotidie, monstraverunt mihi dominus Lanzo Prior et monachi mei quod apud Cluniacum esset confirmatio mea quam feceram de rebus quas illis dederam in principio, et quod ipsi inde nullum munimentum haberent, et quod propter dubia et futura tempora deberem eis omnem securitatem de meis donis et concessis facere. Quod feci libenter consilio fidelium meorum per hanc alteram cartam meam. Volo ergo quod sciant qui sunt et qui futuri sunt, quod ego Willielmus de Warrenna Surreiæ comes donavi et confirmavi Deo et sancto Petro et abbati et conventui de Cluniaco ecclesiam sancti Pancratii quæ sita est sub castro meo Lewiarum, et eidem sancto Pancratio et monachis Cluniacensibus quicumque in ipsa ecclesia sancti Pancratii Deo servient in perpetuum, donavi pro salute animæ meæ et animæ Gundredæ uxoris meæ et pro anima domini mei Willielmi Regis qui me in Anglicam terram adduxit, et per cujus licentiam monachos venire feci, et qui meam priorem donationem confirmavit, et pro salute dominæ meæ Matildis reginæ, matris uxoris meæ, et pro salute domini mei Willielmi regis filii sui, post cujus adventum in Anglicam terram hanc cartam feci, et qui me comitem Surregiæ fecit, et pro salute omnium hæredum meorum et omnium fidelium Christi vivorum et mortuorum, in sustentationem prædictorum monachorum sancti Pancratii, mansionem Falemelum nomine, totum quicquid ibi in dominio habui, cum hida terræ quam Eustachius in Burgamela tenet et ad ipsam mansionem pertinet. Mansionem quoque Carletonam nomine quam domina mea Matildis regina dedit Gundredæ uxori meæ et mihi, et hoc concessit et confirmavit dominus meus rex Willielmus in auxilium ad fundandum novos monachos nostros, totum quod ibi habuimus. Et in Swanberga quinque hidas et dimidiam. Terram etiam quæ vocatur Insula, juxta monasterium, cum pratis et pascuis. Totam etiam terram quam ego in dominio habui intra Insulam in qua monasterium situm est, cum molendino super stagnum quod ibi juxta est positum, et cum uno suburbano ibi juxta posito, Lewino nomine. In Tuniaci terram quæ fuit Normanni virgam terræ quæ vocatur Redrewell, et alteram virgam nomine Stanforde. In Wastedena duas hidas cum quatuor villanis et uno prato. Decimas quoque terrarum mearum, et illas nominatim quas Richardus presbyter tenet et tenebit in vita sua, ita quod post mortem ejus monachis remanebunt. Concessionem feci etiam omnium decimarum quas homines mei ibi dederunt vel postea daturi sunt. Postea vero donavi eis Waltonam cum omnibus liberis hominibus quos Gundreda cum ipsa mansione ibi de me tenuit, quicquid ibi habui tunc inter duas aquas de Limea et de Wellestream, in terris et mariscis et pascuis et aquis cum hominibus et omnibus eorum serviciis et cum omnibus rebus, ita quod duo hospicia mihi et hæredibus meis ibi per annum retinui, unum in eundo in Everwicsire et alterum in redeundo pro omnibus serviciis quæ mihi facere solebant homines de marisco in vecturis et summagiis per terram et aquam, huc et illuc, et pro omnibus aliis serviciis, unde volo quod liberi et quieti sint erga me et hæredes meos de omni servicio in perpetuum. Et si ibi hospitamur plus quam bis in anno, totum quod ibi de suo vel nos vel homines nostri quicumque illuc per annum per nos venerit, super duo prædicta hospitia expendimus, computabunt, et reddemus eis de nostro in fine anni super periculum animarum nostrarum. Sic facio ego, et sic faciam, et sic volo quod faciant hæredes, mei, ne propter hanc causam vertant elemosinam meam et suam in servitutem et rapinam, sicut volunt salvari in die judicii. Præterea donavi eis ecclesiam de Acra cum duabus carucis terræ, ubi ego et Gundreda adhuc vivens proposuimus facere monasterium et domos et ponere monachos de monachis nostris sancti Pancratii, de quibus etiam posuimus primo in ecclesia castelli nostri de Acra. Et hæc promisit mihi dominus Lanzo quod faceret, sic tamen quod Prior et monachi de Acra semper subditi sint et in libera ordinatione Prioris sancti Pancratii. Et Prior et conventus sancti Pancratii habeant et disponant domum de Acra sine omni contradictione sicut proprios monachos suos de clastro suo, et sic faciam si Deus servaverit mihi vitam et sanitatem. Et si non possum perficere, volo quod hæres meus perficiat. Et si hæredes mei post me in suo tempore aliquam elemosinam fundaverint, volo quod eam sancto Pancratio submittant, et semper sanctum Pancratium caput honoris sui habeant, et ibi se mecum reddant ubi jacet Gundreda uxor mea, et ego cum ea reddidi corpus meum, et ipsi similiter mecum faciant. Omnes has antedictas res dedi Deo et sancto Pancratio et monachis ibi Deo servituris, vivente et volente Gundreda uxore mea, et Willielmo et Raynaldo filiis et hæredibus meis. Sed post mortem Gundredæ feci eis hanc cartam. Post cujus mortem donavi etiam eis pro anima illius et mea et omnium hæredum meorum mansionem in Norfolk, Hecham nomine, totum quod ibi habui cum terra Pagani præpositi, et cum omnibus liberis hominibus quorum censum idem Paganus recipiebat. Et hanc donationem meam volo quod hæredes mei concessam et firmatam habeant, quia et eam concessit et confirmavit dominus meus rex Willielmus sicut alias fecerat pater suus. Has omnes supradictas res donavi monachis ad habendum in perpetuum tam liberas et quietas ab omnibus causis et custumis et servitiis sicut eas liberas habui et sicut aliquis liber homo habet vel habere potest suum dominium vel dare suam elemosinam. Et si eveniat quod rex terræ aliquid inde quærat vel hidagium vel danegildum vel qualecumque geldum vel servicium vel quancumque rem, ego quamdiu vivam eas liberatas et acquietatas faciam sicut meum dominium, et hæres meus post me, et sui post illum similiter in perpetuum faciant de omnibus rebus quæcumque solent vel poterunt vel unquam continget in posterum ab aliquo domino vel homine requiri erga regem, et omnes homines ut monachi semper sint in pace, et sui omnes et omnia sua. Pro qua re volo quod si aliqua contentio vel dissensio vel lesura vel aliqua injuria surgat inter homines sancti Pancratii et me vel meos unde forisfac-tura eveniat, Prior sancti Pancratii semper capiat et habeat pro me forisfacturam et emendationem de hominibus suis, ne per hanc causam possint qui venturi sunt lædere et confundere homines sancti, et sic volo quod faciant hæredes mei. Et si ego aliqua adhuc addidero vel hæredes mei post me, volo quod omnia illa tam libere donentur et habeantur sicut ego ista omnia donavi, et quod ipsi similiter velint et faciant. Et volo quod sicut ego cresco crescant et res monachorum, et sicut crescunt res et bona eorum, quod crescat numerus eorum, et sic volo et laudo et præcipio quod velint et faciant et servant hæredes mei, et firmum et stabile habeant quod ego feci, et ego firmum et stabile habeo quod ipsi facturi sunt. Et quicumque contra hanc donationem meam venerit vel eam in aliquo minuerit vel in pejus mutaverit, iram et maledictionem Dei omnipotentis et celerem vindictam in corde et in anima in hoc mundo et in die iudicii incurrat, et tota maledictio quam pater potest dare malis filiis suis ex parte mea super illum veniat. Fiat, Fiat. Et quicumque hanc meam donationem servaverit et defenderit et accreverit, benedictionem Dei omnipotentis et gratiam in hac vita, et in alia in corpore et in anima super se habeat, et tota benedictio quam pater potest dare bonis filiis suis, ex parte mea super eum veniat et maneat sine fine. Amen. Amen. Similiter precor Deum ut eveniat si hæres meus post me vel suus post eum, vel quicumque ex successoribus meis aliqua bona addiderit ad ea quæ ego donavi, quicumque post eos contra illorum donationem venerit in malum, veniat Deus contra illum in malum, et quicumque eam defenderit et servaverit, defendat eum Deus ab omni malo. Præterea volo quod sciant monachi mei et hæredes mei, quod quando ego et Gundrada perquisivimus à domino Hugone abbate, qui venerat ad loquendum cum domino meo rege in Normanniam, quod redderet nobis dominum Lanzonem Priorem nostrum quem toto anno apud Cluniacum retinuerat, unde tam commoti fuimus quod penè proposuimus dimittere conceptum nostrum, vel auferre eis et dare ecclesiam nostram Majori monasterio, tunc etiam concessit nobis et promisit abbas ad multam deprecationem, quod si Deus cresceret domum nostram faceret eam sicut unam ex magnis post mortem domini Lanzonis vel promotionem in aliquam maiorem dignitatem; quando monachi sancti Pancratii mitterent ad Cluniacum propter Priorem, mitterent eis in Priorem unum ex melioribus monachis suis de tota congregatione quem scirent sanctiorem ad ordinem et ad animas regendas secundum Deum, et sapientiores ad domum gubernandam secundum seculum præter maiorem Priorem de Cluniaco et Priorem de Caritate. Et quod ipse foret ad remanendum et nunquam removeretur, nisi tam justa et manifesta esset causa, quod nemo rationabiliter deberet contradicere, et inde fecit nobis scriptum suum cum sigillo suo quod habeo. Et hæc perquisivimus quia timuimus ne dominus Lanzo cum redisset, cito auferretur nobis, quia rex quos meliores invenire potuit in dignitates ecclesiæ exaltavit, et nobis audientibus requisivit ab abbate quod mitteret ei duodecim de sanctis monachis suis, et eos omnes faceret episcopos et abbates in terra hæreditatis suæ quam ei dederat Deus. Et etiam præcogitavimus quod si nova adhuc domus et tenera sæpe novum Priorem haberet, et in novas manus veniret, nunquam ad magnum profectum perveniret. Et quia nolumus quod elemosina nostra in posterum in secularem servitutem verteretur, tunc constitutum est inter nos et abbatem, quod Cluniacum habeat omni anno l. solidos monetæ Anglicæ de dono sancti Pancratii, et sic libera sit ab omni alia servitute et exactione et geldo, et abbas de nulla ordinatione domus se intromittat super Priorem nisi de observantia vel emendatione ordinis ubi Prior emendare non potuerit per se; neque de domibus suis, si aliquas unquam per gratiam Dei sub se habuerit, sed Prior sancti Pancratii et conventus semper eas liberas habeant in sua ordinatione sicut eis fuerint donatæ. Et hoc voluimus et fecimus quia in desiderio semper et spe fuimus facere domum et ponere monachos apud Acram castellum nostrum quam nolumus alibi nisi sancto Pancratio esse subjectam. Hanc donationem et cartam meam feci dominum meum regem apud Wincestriam in concilio concedere et testimoniari per signum sanctæ crucis de manu sua, et per signa et testimonia episcoporum et comitum et baronum qui tunc fuerunt feliciter. Amen. Venientibus contra hæc et destruentibus ea occurrat Deus in gladio iræ et furoris et vñdictæ et maledictionis æternæ; servantibus autem hæc et defendentibus ea, occurrat Deus in pace gratia et misericordia et salute æterna. Amen, Amen, Amen.

Et quod dictus prioratus terras, tenementa, redditus, servitia, feoda militum, et advocaciones ecclesiarum, libertates, et omnia alia prædicto prioratui qualitercunque spectantia, occasione alicujus guerræ inter nos et hæredes nostros et Gallicos, seu aliquos alios alienigenas, tunc motæ vel movendæ vel alterius cujuscunque causæ propter quam terras, tenementa, redditus, servitia, feoda militum, advocaciones ecclesiarum, libertates, vel quæcunque alia ad religiosos alienigenas spectantia in manum nostram vel hæredum nostrorum capi contingeret vel seysiri, ex tunc non caperentur vel seysirentur, nec quod aliqua impositiones seu auxilia eis ut alienigenis ex quacunque causa imponerentur, licet aliqua impositiones seu auxilia aliis religiosis alienigenis per nos vel hæredes nostros imposita forent, sed in omnibus ut indigenæ et Anglici haberentur et pertractarentur, et essent de eadem conditione in omnibus sicut Anglici essent in perpetuum. Et quod ipsi prior et conventus et eorum successores de fine, firma, subsidio, ac omnibus aliis oneribus, impositionibus, auxiliis, et demandis quæ ab eis, ut de alienigenis occasione guerræ prædictæ vel alterius cujuscunque causæ alienigenas tangentis motæ vel movendæ imposita vel ex tunc imponenda exigenterentur vel exigi possent: ac de arreragiis et omnibus aliis demandis ratione terrarum alienigenarum in manibus nostris aut antecessorum nostrorum seysitarum vel non seysitarum, vel alia quacunque causa inde si quæ, pro tempore præterito deberentur, vel exigenterentur, erga nos et hæredes nostros liberi essent, exonerati, quieti, et penitus imperpetuum absoluti prout in literis nostris patentibus inde confectis plenius continetur. Ac dilectus consanguineus et fidelis noster Richardus comes Arundeliæ patronus dicti prioratus nobis jam supplicaverit, ut cum prioratus de Castelacre, Pritilwell, Farleye, Horton, et Stanesgate sint, et à tempore foundationis eorundem semper fuerunt cellæ et membra dicti prioratus de Lewes, et ad eundem prioratum de Lewes pertinent, velimus eandem immunitatem præfatis priori et conventui de Lewes sic concessa prioribus dictorum prioratum de Castelacre, Pritelwell, Farley, Horton, et Stanesgate, concedere gratiose; videlicet quod ipsi ut indigenæ et non alienigenæ de cætero teneri et reputari: ac de fine, firma, subsidio, ac omnibus aliis oneribus, impositionibus, et demandis quæ ab eis, ut de alienigenis occasione hujusmodi guerræ exiguntur, vel alia quacunque de causa ut de alienigenis exigi possint, quietari valeant et exonerari. Nos ob specialem affectionem quam ad personam dicti comitis gerimus et habemus, et propter gratitudinem maximam quam in eo præ cæteris semper in nostris conciliis et agendis pronam et promptam invenimus; ac pro eo quod per inspectionem tam cartæ domini H. quondam regis Angliæ progenitoris nostri quam aliarum cartarum et evidentiæ coram concilio nostro ostensarum, nobis constat quod dicti prioratus de Castelacre, Pritilwell, Farleigh, Horton, et Stanesgate sunt, et à tempore foundationis eorundem semper fuerunt cellæ et membra dicti prioratus de Lewes, et ad eundem prioratum de Lewes pertinentia, supplicationi prædictæ inclinati, de gratia nostra speciali, et ex nostra certa scientia, concessimus pro nobis et hæredibus nostris dilectis nobis in Christo Johanni nunc priori de Lewes et ejusdem loci conventui, ac prioribus et conventibus dictorum prioratum et successoribus suis, quod iidem priores de Castelacre, Pritilwell, Farleigh, Horton, et Stanesgate, et quilibet eorum ac monachi ibidem commorantes, ac eorum successores cujuscunque nationis fuerint, ut indigenæ et non alienigenæ de cætero teneantur et reputentur, et quod dicti prioratus de Castelacre, Pritilwell, Farleigh, Horton, et Stanesgate, ac terræ, tenementa, redditus, servitia, feoda militum, et advocaciones ecclesiarum, libertates, et omnia alia eisdem prioratibus qualitercunque spectantia, occasione alicujus guerræ inter nos vel hæredes nostros et Gallicos, seu aliquos alios alienigenas motæ vel movendæ, vel alterius cujuscunque causæ propter quam terras, tenementa, redditus, servitia, feoda militum, advocaciones ecclesiarum, libertates, vel quæcunque alia ad religiosos alienigenas spectantia in manum nostram, vel hæredum nostrorum, capi contigerit vel seysiri in posterum, non capiantur vel seysiantur; nec quod aliquas impositiones seu auxilia eis ut alienigenis ex quacunque causa imponantur; licet aliqua impositiones seu auxilia aliis religiosis alienigenis per nos vel hæredes nostros in futurum imposita fuerint, sed in omnibus ut indigenæ et Anglici habeantur et pertractentur, et sint de eadem conditione in omnibus sicut Anglici sunt in perpetuum: quodque ipsi priores et monachi de Castelacre, Pritilwell, Farleigh, Horton, et Stanesgate, et eorum quilibet et eorum successores, de fine, firma, subsidio, ac omnibus aliis oneribus, impositionibus, auxiliis, et demandis, quæ ab eis ut de alienigenis occasione guerræ prædictæ, vel alterius cujuscunque causæ alienigenas tangentis motæ vel movendæ impositæ et imposterum imponendum, exigi poterunt in futurum, ex nunc erga nos et hæredes nostros liberi sint, exonerati, quieti, et penitus imperpetuum absoluti, sine contradictione vel impedimento nostri vel hæredum nostrorum aut ministrorum nostrorum quorumcunque; eo non obstante quod dicti prioratus de Castelacra, Pritilwell, Farleigh, Horton, et Stanesgate, in literis nostris prædictis expressè nominati non fuerunt. Proviso semper quod si prædicti priores dictarum cellarum vel successores sui aut aliquis eorundem, apportum aliquod alicui domui religiosæ in partibus transmarinis solvere teneantur vel teneatur, iidem priores earundem cellarum et successores sui apportum illud nobis et hæredibus nostris de cætero solvant. In cujus rei testimonium has literas nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste meipso apud Westmonasterium vicesimo die Maii, anno regni nostri Angliæ quadragesimo septimo, regni vero nostri Franciæ tricesimo quarto.

Priory of Prittlewell, in Essex.

ROBERT the son of Swein of Essex,^a called also Robert de Essex and Robert Fitz-Swein, founded Prittlewell priory, according to Newcourt and Tanner, in the reign of Henry the Second, but more probably in that of Henry the First. He dedicated it to the honour of the Virgin Mary, and made it a Cell to the then Alien Priory of Lewes in Sussex.

In his charter, which will be found in the Appendix, Robert de Essex ordained that the prior of Prittlewell should pay to the prior of Lewes for ever, on the feast of St. Pancras, a mark of silver, yearly, as an acknowledgement.^b

Newcourt says, "Soon after the founding of this priory, Thomas Becket archbishop of Canterbury became a great favourer thereof, as appears by his charter: 'Thomas Dei gratia Cant. ecclesiæ minister humilis, universis sanctæ ecclesiæ filiis ad quos præsentis litteræ pervenerint, salutem. Suscepti nos officii sollicitudo admonet servorum Dei paci et tranquillitati cura providere pervigili: inde est quod monasterium beatæ Mariæ de Pritewell, cum capellis suis de Sutton et Eastwood, et cum omnibus decimis villæ de Middleton, et omnia parochialia jura ejusdem villæ: ecclesias etiam de Rayleigh vel Ragele, et Thundersley, et utraque Shobery, et Canwedon, Wykeford, Stook, Clavering, Langley, cum omnibus pertinentiis earum, &c. sub Dei et nostra constituimus protectione:' which was afterwards seconded by Hubert Walter one of his successors, viz. 'Nos autem prænominati gloriosi martyris Thomæ prædecessoris nostri in hac parte vestigiis non immerito inhærentes, supradictum monasterium de Pritewell fratresque ibidem Deo famulantes, cum bonis suis omnibus et possessionibus, pari favore sub Dei et nostra constituimus protectione: ecclesias quoque universas, quæ superius continentur, prout eidem monasterio rite collatæ sunt, cum omnibus ad eam juste pertinentibus, memoratis fratribus præsentem scripto autentico confirmamus.'"^c

In the 47th of Edward the Third, as has been already mentioned under Lewes Priory, Prittlewell, as one of the Cells of that House, was made denizen.

Weever says that Prittlewell was held to be a Cell to the priory of Lewes till A. D. 1518 only: "whenas a great contention arose between the two houses, insomuch that

PRIORS of PRITTLEWELL.

W. occurs prior between the years 1213 and 1226.^e

SIMON DE WALTHAM, monk of Lewes, was presented by the prior of Lewes to Prittlewell, and confirmed by the king, May 12th, 1241.^f

WILLIAM was the next prior.^g Upon whose resignation

NICHOLAS DE COKEFELD, prior of Cliff, was preferred to Prittlewell, and had the temporalities restored to him May 16th, 1281.^h

PETER DE MONTELLIER, upon the death of Cokefeld, was made prior by John prior of Lewes, and had the temporalities given to him October 24th, 1290.ⁱ

HENRY DE FAUTRARIS received the temporalities May 4th, 1308.^k He was succeeded by

GILES DE SEDUNO, who received the temporalities July 1st, 1309.^l

THOMAS DE SHELNESTROD had the temporalities restored to him July 1st, 1310.^m

WILLIAM DE ANMUMACO, AUMUMACO, or AVERNUS, received the temporalities April 20th, 1311.ⁿ He had the king's letters of protection March 14th, 1314.^o Whether or not this prior was removed is not certain, but from the following entry upon the Patent Rolls it may be concluded more than probable: "Prioratus de Priterwell ære alieno oneratus, rex concessit custodiam ejusdem Adæ de Osgodeby 10 Feb. an. 9 Edw. II." ^p

JAMES DE CUSANTIA was appointed prior of Prittlewell by the prior of Lewes Dec. 1st, 1316.^q He occurs again in 1325.^r

GUICHARD DE CHENTRIACO was presented by the prior of Lewes in 1360. The king restored the temporalities to him on March 24th that year.^s

FRANCIS DE BAUGIACO, also presented by the prior of Lewes, had the temporalities restored to him Oct. 2, 1361.^t

JOHN SAVER was the next prior appointed: the king received his fealty July 28th, 1363.^u

RICHARD YSEWODE received the temporalities March 5th, 1377. He had been presented to the priorate by John prior of Lewes.^x

RICHARD LACHEME was appointed prior in 1428. He received the temporalities on June 23rd that year.^y

HUGH had the temporalities restored to him Jan. 28th, 1467.^z

JOHN ESTON was prior in 1513.^a

THOMAS NORWICHE was the last prior.^b

^a Swein of Essex is one of the great land-holders in Domesday Book. Kelham says, "He was son of Robert, who was son of Wilmarc, and had fifty-five lordships in Essex alone. He was settled in England before the Conquest, and readily joining with William the Conqueror, was either confirmed in the possession of his lands, or had them restored to him." Domesd. Book illustrated, 8°. Lond. 1788, p. 129.

^b See the Append. Num. I. From the following entry in the Abbreviatio Placitorum, p. 2, the founder seems to have granted the priory of Prittlewell another charter:

"Henricus arbalistarius petit advocacionem ecclesiæ de Wikford versus Priorem de Priteswell, sicut illam quæ pertinet ad liberum dominium suum quod habet in eadem villa ex dono domini Regis. Prior venit et dicit quod Robertus de Essex filius Sweni dedit ecclesiam illam Ecclesiæ de Pritewelle et monachis Sancti Pancratii de Lewes in puram et perpetuam elemosinam; et inde profert cartam ipsius Roberti in qua illud idem continetur et confirmationem regis Henrici avi quæ prædictam ecclesiam eis confirmat ex dono ipsius Roberti tunc capitalis domini ejusdem fundi." The entries relating to the spiritual and temporal possessions of Prittlewell in the Taxation of 1291 are numerous; though no total or aggregate valuation of its possessions appears upon the Record.^a

The Return in the Liber Valorum 26 Hen. VIII. in the First Fruits Office is no more than this:

Speed makes the gross income to have been 194*l.* 14*s.* 3*d.* ob.

The site of this priory was granted in 1537 to Sir Thomas Audeley, together with Prior's Manor in Prittlewell, and the rectory and advowson of the vicarage.^b Sir Thomas Audeley, in 1551, parted with them to Sir Robert Riche.^c After 1673, upon the partition of the Riche estates, this came to Daniel earl of Nottingham, who sold it to Mr. Daniel Scrutton, of Billericay, in whose family it continued in Morant's time.^d

An impression of the COMMON SEAL of this priory, on white wax, is attached to a deed in the Office of the Duchy of Lancaster, bearing date 1343.^e The subject is the Annunciation. The angel has a scroll, the words on which are illegible. Between him and the Virgin is a flower-pot. The field of the Seal is diapered. The figures are standing between two slender pillars, under ornamented arches. The legend is s. COMVNE. COVENTUS. DE. P. TE. WELLE: but the five last letters can only be conjectured; the legend being much defaced.

Priory of Farleigh, Farlega, Fernlegh, or Monkton-Farleigh, in Wiltshire.

UMPHREY de Bohun the second, says Tanner, gave the church of Farleigh to the priory of Lewes; whence a convent of Cluniac monks was placed here about the year 1125. He ascribes the foundation of this priory to Humphrey de Bohun the second, rather than to his son the third Humphrey, to whom Dugdale attributes it in one page of the Baronage,^a because this last was not come to his estate, nor was dapifer till the 5th of Stephen; and the charter of Humphrey de Bohun the third, and Margaret or Margery his wife, printed in the Appendix to the present Account,^b is rather of confirmation (and supposes the monks to have been some while settled here at Farley) than of foundation. He did not die till A. D. 1187, and so was not likely to found this priory sixty-two years before.^c

Reyner, vol. i. p. 209, ascribes the foundation of this house to Humphrey de Bohun the fourth earl of Hereford, and Maud the empress.^d

Another charter from Humphrey de Bohun the third, beside that already referred to, will be found in the Appendix;^e as well as a confirmation from King Henry the Third of the priory's possessions, in the 11th year of his reign, in which the donations of the empress Maud are enumerated.^f

William fitz John, in addition to other donations, gave the monks here the hermitage of Havescumbe.^g

The Lewes Chartulary preserves a Composition between the prior and convent of Lewes and Henry de Bohun earl of Hereford, relating to the nomination, institution, and election of the priors of Farleigh. It stipulates that, upon any vacancy in the priorate of Farleigh, the patron or his agents, and two of the monks of that house, should proceed to Lewes, and ask for the appointment of a new prior; upon which, the prior of Lewes was to name two persons, monks either of Lewes or Farleigh, one of whom was to be chosen, by the patron and the two monks of Farleigh, to be the prior of that house. The prior of Lewes was to be the Visitor of Farleigh, and, upon just cause, could remove the prior there. In lieu of all other customs or exactions, the prior of Farleigh was to pay one mark annually to the priory of St. Pancras Lewes; and he was to make his personal appearance once a year at Lewes upon the feast of St. Pancras. This Composition is dated on October the 10th, 1280.^h

Two Instruments will be found in the Appendix, taken from the third volume of Prynne's Works; one dated in the 24th Edw. I. when the revenues of the convent were restored, upon its being found by inquisition that the priory was not under the power or obedience of the king of France;ⁱ the other in the 26th Edw. I. when the Prioress and Nuns of Martigniaco, having alienated several manors which had been given to them in frankalmoigne by King Stephen for the maintenance of divine service, to the prior and convent of Farleigh and others, the same were seized for the king's use into the hands of his escheator.^k

WILLIAM GALSHAM, prior, presented to the chantry of St. Andrew Chippenham in 1334.^d

In 1336 the prior of Farleigh appears to have absented himself in foreign parts; upon which, the prior and convent of Lewes, considering that he had not gone upon any necessary business of the house, committed the administration of the affairs of the cell to two of its monks.

WILLIAM PRESTON was prior in 1409, in which year he died.^e

JOHN STONE occurs prior anno 17 Hen. VIII.^f

LODOWICK was prior in the 26th Hen. VIII.^g

Leland, in his Collectanea, tom. ii. p. 84, gives the valuation of this priory at 100*l.* per annum:^h "Monk-Farleigh prior. Cluniacen. cella de Lewes, annui redditus centum libræ." In his Itinerary he speaks of it as "a Priorie standing on a litle hille, sumtyme having Blak Monkes, a prior, and a convent of twelve."ⁱ

In the Valor of the 26th Hen. VIII. the gross revenue of Farleigh appears to have amounted to 217*l.* 0*s.* 4½*d.* per annum; the net income to 153*l.* 14*s.* 2½*d.* Tanner says, a Benet MS. gives 152*l.* 3*s.* 7*d.* as the value.

This priory was dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, and was granted in the 28th Hen. VIII. to Sir Edward Seymour viscount Beauchamp.^k

Prior de Farlegh.

In spiritual. de porcione ejusdem in ecclesia de Cosham in dec.

The Lewes Chartulary already quoted, fol. 159 b, contains the account of a process against the prior and convent of Farleigh on the part of Lewes Priory for withdrawing from the obedience of the latter; but it leaves the business to further process.

Ibid. fol. 167, we have a separate charter of Humphrey de Bohun "de ecclesia de Bischopistrete."

Among the charters given to the British Museum by the late Lord Frederick Campbell, which had belonged previously to Thomas Astle, Esq. are the following grants to Farleigh:

xiii. 11. Carta Walteri Croc Deo et B. Mariæ Magd. de Ferleia et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus de una virgata terræ in Wadeswic com. Somers.

xiii. 12. Carta Willielmi fil. Johannis de Heremitorio de Havescumba, cum terris apud Lim et Chinectunam. See the Append. to the present Account, Num. IV.

xiii. 14. Carta Simonis Porter de terris et tenementis cum omnibus suis pertinentiis infra parochias de Langley et Chipenham. 2 Hen. IV.

xiii. 15. Carta Adalelmi filii Gaufridi Dapiferi de una virgata terræ apud Hornigeham.

In the Abbreviatio Placitorum, pp. 190, 198, 204, several Pleadings occur relating to the manor of Alinton in Wiltshire, belonging to this priory in the 4th, 8th, and 10th Edw. I. See also the Placita de Quo Waranto of the reign of Edw. I. pp. 798, 800, 808: and the Rolls of Parliament, vol. i. p. 64.

The following Records relating to this priory occur in the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer's Office in the Exchequer:

[Registr. de Lewes, MS. Cotton. Vesp. F. xv. fol. 164.]

UNIVERSIS Christi fidelibus præsentem litteras inspecturis frater Main prior de Ferl. et ejusdem loci humilis conventus æternam in Domino salutem. Noverit universitas vestra quod cum mota esset controversia inter nos et nobilem virum Henr. de Bohun com. Hereford ex una parte, et priorem et monachos de Lewes ex altera super institutionibus et destitutionibus priorum in domo de Farle et debita obedientia secundum regulam beati Benedicti. Tandem amicabile compositione lis inter nos mota in hunc modum conquievit: videlicet quod vacante prioratu de Ferl. Henr. de Bohun comes Hereford et hæredes sui vel nuncii ipsorum cum duobus monachis de Ferl. ad hoc destinatis venient Lewesiam, et priorem sibi dari a priore de Lewes postulabunt. Prior vero de Lewes bona fide et sine qualibet fraude nominabit duos quos idoneos ad hoc esse crediderit de domo de Lewes vel de Ferl. vel de aliis domibus Clun. ordinis. Quo facto dict. comes et hæredes ipsius vel nuncii ipsorum ac prædicti monachi ad hoc destinati assument sibi in priorem unum ex duobus quem magis idoneum ad hoc esse crediderint et illum habebunt pro priore. Qui quidem prior abbati Clun. et priori de Lewes debitam exhibebit obedientiam secundum regulam beati Benedicti et institutionem ordinis Cluniac. salvo eo quod superius et inferius dictum est de institutione et destitutione priorum, priori etiam de Lewes spectantem. Habet autem prior de Lewes potestatem in eadem domo ordinem corrigendi tam in priore ibidem instituto quam in monachis, secundum regulam beati Benedicti et consuetudinem Cluniacensis ordinis, non obstante carta quæ dicebatur prædecessoribus ipsius Henrici de Bohun a prædecessoribus prioris de Lewes et monachis antea concessa. Salvo tamen eo quod prior de Ferl. amovere non poterit nisi ex justa et rationabili causa. Pro omni vero exactione et consuetudine temporal. dicti prior et monachi de Ferl. annuam marcam argenti ad sanctum Pancratium in festo sancti Pancratii persolvent sicuti a longis retro temporibus fuerat constitutum, priore de Ferl. capitale domum de Lewes semel in anno, scilicet in festo sancti Pancratii personaliter visitante. Renunciatum est etiam ex utraque parte impetratis et impetrandis. In hujus rei testimonium ut perpetuum robur optineat, sigillum nostrum cum sigillo conventus de Ferl. huic scripto apposuimus. Actum anno Gratiae millesimo cc. octavo, decimo mensis Octobris.

Priory of Monks Horton, in Kent.

ASTED, who had access to the Chartulary of Horton, has been the most minute of any of our topographical writers upon the history of this priory. It appears to have been founded in the beginning of the reign of Henry the Second, by Robert son of Bernard de Ver,^a on part of the demesne of the manor of Horton. The founder dedicated it to the honour of God, the blessed Virgin Mary, and

St. John the Evangelist; and, placing in it monks of the Order of Cluni, subjected it as a Cell to the priory of St. Pancras at Lewes.^b The said Robert, with Adeliza, daughter of Hugh de Montfort, his wife, by a second charter, gave to the monks here the manor of Horton with its appurtenances, together with the land and tenants of Haiton and Hingsell, and of the Marsh, and the services which the tenants performed at Saltwood, with the woods of Redbroc and Wittingehangre; the prior of Horton paying yearly to the church of St. Pancras above mentioned one mark of silver as an acknowledgement. And they ordained that the prior of St. Pancras Lewes from time to time should have the management, government, and disposition of the prior and monks of Horton, in the same manner as of his own, according to the Rule of St. Benedict and the Order of Cluni. And they gave to the monks of Horton, besides, the tithes of Etretton, in the same manner in which Robert the chaplain had held them; and in Essex the church of Purley with its appurtenances; and likewise five shillings which were paid from Hait and Saltwood, and twenty-five pence paid from a portion of the said land at Estbrogie.^c By a third charter they gave the manor of Tinton, the churches of Stanford and Brabarne, and other premises; and confirmed their former donations.^d

Other benefactors to this priory were, Osbert marshal of Robert de Ver above mentioned, Hugh de St. Quintin, Alberic de Marinis, John and William de Orlestone, John earl of Ewe, and Adeliza his countess, John and Stephen de Heringod, William de Valoins, Robert and Hamo de Aldelose, Simon de Tevegate, Richard Fitz Dering of Hayton, &c. whose various donations were confirmed by Henry de Essex, by King Stephen, and by several different popes.^e

The release of this house from the condition of an alien priory, together with several other of the cells of Lewes, in the 47th of Edward the Third, has been already noticed in a former page.^f In the eighth year of the following reign its revenues in temporal and spiritual possessions were valued at 98*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*^g In the reign of King Henry the Sixth this priory is stated to have been taxed at 106*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* although the total revenue of it was 117*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*^h The Valuation in the 26th of Henry the Eighth makes its total revenue to have amounted, at that time, to 111*l.* 16*s.* 11½*d.*; the clear income to 95*l.* 12*s.* 2*d.*ⁱ

RICHARD GLOUCESTER, alias BRISLEY, was the last prior. He surrendered his monastery into the king's hands; and was provided for with an annuity of 15*l.* a year, which was still paid in 1553.

The site of the priory of Horton, with the possessions belonging to it, did not remain long in the hands of the crown; for the king, in his 29th year, granted them, subject to certain exceptions and payments therein mentioned, to Thomas archbishop of Canterbury and his successors;^x who, that same year, conveyed the site of the priory, with sundry lands adjoining and belonging to it, in this parish and elsewhere, back again to the crown; whence they were in the next year of that reign, being the 30th of it, granted, to hold in capite by knights service to Richard Tate of Stockbury, Esq.^y who was then in possession of them by a former lease from the crown.^z He was afterwards knighted, and in the 1st

The difference seems to have been comparatively trifling between this Taxation and that of Pope Nicholas IV.

^h Hasted, ut supr. from the Register of Horton priory; by which it appears there were here at that time only six monks, with the Prior, all priests and professed, though by their charter of foundation, Hasted says, thirteen were to be maintained, or, if their revenues came short, at least eight. But see the Append. Num. IV.

In the Harleian manuscript 2044, fol. 56 b, we have,

"Exemplificatio Status Monasterii de Horton.

"Imprimis sunt sex monachi cum priore, omnes sacerdotes et professi. Item divinum servitium tam die quam nocte horis competentibus cum aliis observantiis secundum numerum fratrum ibidem existentium devote celebratur et observatur," &c.

^t He collected and transcribed the Register of the Priory, says Hasted, as it now remains.

The original of this Register was formerly in the possession of the family of Rooke, afterwards of William Somner of Canterbury. See Tann. Notit. Monast. A transcript of it was not many years since in the Surrenden Library, though now in other hands.

The Collectanea from this Register in the Harleian manuscript 2044, fol. 54, consist of the three charters of Robert de Ver copied by Dugdale: immediately following the first of which is a hortatory letter of encouragement to the founder from R. abbat of Cluni. After the third charter is a copy of King Stephen's confirmation, and a letter of Pope Lucius II. entitled "Lucius Papa super prima fundatione monasterii de Horton ad Henricum Winton. episcopum, dat. Lat. v^{to}. idus Maii, indict. vij^a. Incarn. Dominicæ anno m.c.xliij^{to}. pont. vero Lucii II. papæ anno primo."

Hasted says, "There is a MS. Chartulary in the Bodleian library at Oxford, Dodsw. lv. which seems to be that once in the possession of William Somner. And I have in my possession part of an original Chartulary on vellum containing the twenty first charters of those in the Register above mentioned; and a complete transcript of that once in the Surrenden Library." ^z Hasted says, King Henry VIII. by his indenture, in his 29th year, let for twenty-one years to Richard Tate of Stockbury, Esq. the House and Site of the late priory of Horton, with all houses, buildings, orchards, gardens, &c. within the site and precinct of the same, and also one water-mill, with the mill and whole stream of water running to it, and thirteen pieces of land therein described, containing in the whole ninety-two acres; and also the tythes in all and singular the aforesaid premises, with the fisheries, liberties, and commodities belonging to the year of king Edward the Sixth alienated the site of the priory, with the lands belonging to it, to Walter Mantell, Esq.^a who being, with his nephew Walter Mantell and others, attainted and executed for being concerned in Sir Thomas Wyat's rebellion in the 1st of queen Mary, this estate became forfeited to the crown, where it staid till queen Elizabeth, in her 13th year, restored it to his eldest son Matthew Mantell, to hold to him and his heirs male; in whose descendants the property is still vested.^b

Tanner refers to "Rot. pat. 18 Edw. II. p. 1. m. 17. de manerio de Tynterdon et reparatione walliarum in marisco de Romenel."

In the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer's Office in the exchequer, is an instrument "De vicario de Romeney et priore de Horton, in comitatu Kancie accusatis de receptione firmæ ecclesiæ de Romeney." Trin. Rec. 21 Edw. III. rot.

The following is Hasted's account of the Ruins of this priory as they remained in his time :

"The priory of Horton stands among the meadows in a bottom, near the stream which flows by it from Broadstreet. The situation is very low and damp, and so obscure and retired, having a large wood which reaches close up to it, that it is hardly to be seen before you are within a very small distance of it. There is but a small part of it remaining; what is left is made use of for a dwelling-house, being a long narrow building, of ashler stone and flints, seemingly of the time of king Henry VIth, though by the windows it appears to have been much altered at different times; and there are the remains of a tower at the east end, and a small part of a very fine, large, circular arch, with zigzag ornaments of a much antienter date, seemingly the great entrance into the priory, or perhaps the church of it; beyond which, still further eastward, that part which was taken down by the king's order soon after the suppression of it, seems to have stood."

Less of the ruins of Horton are now remaining than were extant in Hasted's time.

Priory of Stanesgate, in Essex.

WITHIN the precincts of the parish of Steple, on the brink of the river which runs from Maldon, near Ramsey, stood the Priory of Stanesgate, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen. By whom it was founded does not appear; but, from a grant of tithes made by the prior and convent here, with the consent of the prior and convent of Lewes, to the nuns of Clerkenwell, in

1176, it is evident that it was, at that time, a Cell to Lewes.^a

The taxation of 1291 contains but few entries relating to the possessions of Stanesgate.^b Two Extents, however, of the 18th of Edward II. explain fully the total of its revenues at that time.^c As one of the Cells of Lewes, it was made denizen in the 47th of Edward III.^d

In 1525 this house was suppressed, among the smaller monasteries which were granted to Cardinal Wolsey toward the endowment of his two colleges at Oxford and Ipswich.

From the release of the prior and convent of Lewes, in that year, made to the dean and canons of Wolsey's College at Oxford, it appears that, beside the site of their house, the monks then possessed the manor of Stanesgate; the priory manor of Stanesgate; a water-mill, and several messuages, lands, and tenements, in Stanesgate, Steple, Ramesey, Woodham Mortimer, Tillingham, Maldon, Great and Little Tottingham, Tiptree, Messing, Tolleshunt Darcy and Tolleshunt Major; the great tithes of Stanesgate, Steple, and Raynham; and the advowsons of those vicarages.^a

The revenues of Stanesgate were then rated, in spiritualties, at 5*l.* 3*d.*; and, in temporalties, at 38*l.* 8*s.* 3*d.*

Upon the Cardinal's fall, in 1525, this house fell again into the king's hands; and, in the 28th of Henry VIII. A. D. 1536, was granted in exchange for other possessions to the prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

After the suppression of St. John's Hospital, in 1543, King Henry VIII. granted the manor of Stanesgate, with its appurtenances, and the rectory and advowson of the vicarage of Steple, to Edmund Mordaunt and his heirs.^b He, by licence, dated 1st June, 1544, alienated them to Sir Richard Riche, Lord Riche. They passed to his descendants, the Earls of Warwick. The possessor of Stanesgate manor, in Morant's time, was said to be Charles Hoskyns, Esq. of Croydon.^c

The church, or, as it is called, the chapel of Stanesgate, is now converted into a barn.^d

Priory of Clifford, in Herefordshire, A Cell to the Priory of Lewes.

FROM a return to an Inquisition, taken in the 20th of K. Edward the Third, it appears that Simon Fitz Richard Fitz Ponce was the founder of Clifford Priory. He had been lord of the fee of Clifford, and was the ancestor of the Countess of Lincoln.^a Tanner dates his foundation of it in the time of K. Henry the First.^b

From a previous Inquisition, taken in the 18th of Edward the Third, it appears that this priory had never been alien, and that it was neither subject to, nor paid an apport to any priory abroad. It is farther stated, that it was subjected to Lewes Priory by the ancestors of Alesia countess of Lincoln.^c

Roger earl of Hereford granted to the monks of Clifford the liberty of buying and selling in his lands, free of toll, "citra Waïam."^d John, the son of Gilbert de Monmouth, also gave them similar liberties, with freedom from toll in his town of Monmouth.^e

In the 19th of Edward II. the prior and convent of Clifford had licence to appropriate the church of Dorston.^f

The PRIORS of this house being appointed by those of Lewes, but few of their names have been preserved.

PAUL KYNTON received the temporalities from Thomas Nelond, prior of St. Pancras Lewes, March 1, 1427.^g

NICHOLAS HUGHES is mentioned by Cole as the last prior.^h

According to Pope Nicholas's Taxation, if we include the church of Clifford, the spiritualities of this priory amounted, in 1291, to 33*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*: the temporal possessions to 18*l.* 12*s.* 4½*d.*ⁱ

In the 26th Hen. VIII. the clear value of the whole was no more than 57*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.*; the gross income 65*l.* 11*s.* 11*d.*

The site of this house was granted in the 6th of Edward the Sixth, to William Herbert earl of Pembroke.

In Nasmith's edition of Tanner, exclusive of the patent already noticed, of the 19th of Edw. II., the following records are referred to:

"Carta Ricardi fil. Ricardi fil. Pontii donans duos homines in Framtune, MS. Macro, 12. ii. 10.

"Cart. 35 Hen III. m. 11, de lib. war. in Clifford, La Bache, et Sinicumb.

"Pat. 4 Ric. II. p. 3, m. 5, pro mess. et c. acris in Herdwyke."

"De Samuele et Nathaniele Tracy, occasionatis ad ostendendum quo titulo tenent situm nuper Prioratus de Clyfford, et alias terras in comitatu Herefordiæ."—Pasch. Rec. 12 Eliz. rot. 52.

A small portion of an impression from the SEAL of Clifford Priory is still appendant to the deed, L. F. C. xvi. 16. in the British Museum. The area of the obverse represents the Virgin Mary seated, with the infant Jesus in her arms; but the inscription round it is gone. The Counter Seal gives a smaller oval representation of the same subject, with the figure of an ecclesiastic beneath. The inscription, MATER. DEI. MEMENTO. MEI.

The priory of Clifford was situated in the parish of its own name, on the borders of the county of Hereford, nearly two miles from Hay, in the county of Brecon.

Castleacre, or Estacre Priory in Norfolk,
A Cell to the Priory of Lewes.

ASTLEACRE priory was founded by William de Warren, the first earl of Surrey,^a according to Tanner, in or before the year 1085,^b for monks of the Cluniac order; whom the founder made subordinate to the house of that order at Lewes. The monastery of Castleacre, according to Blomfield, was dedicated to God, St. Mary, and the Apostles St. Peter and St. Paul. Tanner speaks of it as dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary only.

^a Not William de Warren the second, as in Leland, Collect. tom. i. p. 238, and Weever.
^b Tanner says, "Matth. Westminster and the Norwich Annals, place the foundation in A.D. 1090, whereas the Monasticon (see the present volume, p. 12. col. 2.) has the grant of the church of Acre, and lands here to the priory of Lewes before the death of Gundreda, the founder's

In a charter, which will be found in the Appendix, William de Warren, the first earl of Surrey, gives to this priory the church of Acre, the church and advowson of Methelwold, the church and advowson of Leaden Roding in Essex; together with the churches of Wickmere and Trunch, and two parts of the tithe of his demesnes in Grimston in Norfolk.^c Herbert bishop of Norwich confirmed this grant, and certified that the monks of Acre had entered upon that church with his consent, and that the monastery there built was erected by his "provision."^d
William the second earl of Surrey confirmed the aforesaid grant, and that of two carucates of land in Acre, given by his father, and all the heath land belonging to Wick; and gave also to the priory part of his own heath land by Wick; the land of Ringulf; two shillings rent of land which Osbern de Gloucestre held in Acre; two orchards; and all the plough-lady, which was in A.D. 1085, as Baron. vol. i. p. 74; and likewise an account of monks being in the chapel of the castle here before the death of William de Warren the first, which happened A.D. 1089. So that the year 1090 must refer either to the entire finishing the buildings, or the founding of their new church by earl Warren the second."

land from those orchards to the castle of Acre, upon which the monks had founded their new church, because that which they had previously had was too small and inconvenient; all the moor by the water of the ploughland, and a small part of another moor which Wimer his dapifer gave; the moiety of a mill by Southacre; three shillings rent of land in Lynn; Wlmar the mason in Acre, with his garden and fifteen acres of land; a rent in kind, of two thousand eels in Methwold; five shillings rent of land; a garden; and twenty-four acres of land "ad ecclesiam faciendam." He moreover confirmed whatever lands had been given, with consent, by the tenants of the estate at Acre, either in his time or his father's; and all tithes or churches given by them without consent. For the enumeration of the minor donations here alluded to, the reader is referred to the charter itself;^a as well as to other charters of benefaction and confirmation,^b the minute contents of which need not to be recapitulated here.

Ebrard bishop of Norwich, about the year 1140, confirmed the right of presentation, or the right of tithes belonging to this priory, in the following churches: Acre, Newton by Castleacre, East and West Lexham, Dunham Magna with St. Mary's chapel, Kempston, Wissingeset, Wesenham St. Peter, and St. Paul, Shingham, Otringhee, Methwold, St. Mary Magdalen at Wigehale, Haverhill, Depden, Haspale, Bacheton, Trunche, Wikemere, Itringham, Hailedune, Fulmodeston, East and West Barsham, St. Andrew at Tatersete, and Congham.^c The church of Dunham Magna was given by Herveus Canis, with five acres by Racheffesse, and part of a meadow at Southacre, in the time of Henry II.^d

King Henry I. confirmed to the priory of Castleacre the churches of Southereic and Neuton:^e as did king Henry II. with the addition of the church of Flete.^f Both kings also gave them charters of freedom from toll.^g

Blomfield says the church of Haringby was appointed to them of the gift of John Hauteyn lord and patron, about the year 1200: and the church of Finsham St. Michael about the same time, of the gift of William Talebot.^h

Symon bishop of Norwich gave them a large confirmation of their ecclesiastical possessions in 1265; preserved in the priory register.ⁱ The contents of this instrument however may be considered as superseded by the Return of the Taxation made in 1291; the contents of which will be found in the note below.^k

Blomfield has enumerated several benefactions to this priory, of consideration, subsequent to the general confirmations.

William de Vealtre, he says, gave the church of Cricheston (now Croxton) and all the land there which his grandmother Osmed had in dower, and Sir Walter de Grancourt quitted his claim therein, and granted the prior to present to the church as to a chapel belonging to Fulmodeston.

Ralph de Warren gave two fishing boats on the mere of Saham in King John's time.

Giles de Wachesham, son and heir of Osbert, two parts of the tithes of Wachesham.

John de Nerburgh, by the consent of Alice his wife, gave a turbary belonging to his demesne in Nerburgh, and confirmed the grant of the land given by his father Reginald.

Hugh de Fothighetune gave two parts of the tithe of his demesne in Rucham.

Julian, daughter of William Fitz Richard de Wirmele, patroness of the church of St. Mary de Rucham, with the consent of William, her son and heir, granted a moiety of all the tithes of her demesne there.

Walter de Grancourt gave by fine in the 4th Hen. III. the church of Fulmodeston, which they had of the grant of Hugh his ancestor.

Adam Talbot gave by fine 37th Hen. III. the church of St. Michael of Fincham.

William Bardolf gave the church of St. Peter of North Birlingham.

John Pecheham, archbishop of Canterbury, granted an indulgence of thirty days to all who would pray for the soul of William the third earl of Warren, and fifteen days for that of Ela his countess, and twenty days for the souls of William the first earl of Warren and Surrey, and Gundreda his wife, dated at South Malling, 3 id. July, 1283.

About this time, Blomfield says, the prior was found to hold four hundred and sixty acres of arable land, twenty of pasture, ten of meadow, five water mills with the liberty of fishing therein, in pure alms, and divers other lands in this town, held by thirty-six tenants, a court baron, two folds, two free boars, and two bulls of the earl of Warren.^a

John Plantagenet earl Warren, by his deed reciting that whereas his stewards and others his officers in Norfolk had demanded of this priory certain pensions of meats and drinks as their right, given at first by the monks, out of their free will and respect to the servants of the earls of Warren, belonging to their manor of Wike in Castleacre, he, by this deed quits claim to the same, and charges his officers not to demand or receive it for the future: dated May 10th, 9 Edw. II.^b

In the 47th of Edward the Third, as has been already stated in the account of Lewes, this priory was made denizen, and was exempted from its subjection to Lewes as a cell.^c

In the 15th of Richard the Second, the church of Haverill, with its chapel, was appropriated to Castleacre, as was the church of South Creik in Norfolk in the second of Henry IV.

CASTLEACRE PRIORY although a CELL to LEWES, was still sufficiently independent to have SUBORDINATE CELLS itself. These were MINDHAM or MENDHAM in Suffolk; and BROMHOLM, SOUTH REINHAM otherwise NORMANNESBERCH, and SLEVESHOLM in Norfolk. An hospital at RACHENESSE in Southacre for the reception of leprous people was also subordinate to Castleacre; as well as CRABHOUSE or WIGENHALE priory in Norfolk, for Austin nuns.

The prior of Coln in Essex paid an annual pension to Castleacre of xxvj^s. per annum. The prior of Castleacre had also a pension of xxvj^s. viij^d. out of the church of Aspal in Suffolk, v. marks from that of Geyton in Norfolk, and a pension from the church of Barefield Parva in Essex.^d

PRIORS of CASTLEACRE.

A complete and connected catalogue of the priors of Castle Acre is probably at this time irrecoverable. In the Harleian Register of this house a list is preserved, which we shall give as it stands in the page, written in different hands, the latter names evidently continued from time to time :

and his convent, surrendered this priory with the manor of Castleacre priory, and all other its appurtenances to King Henry VIII. In the surrender deed, the same is said to have been made "for certain causes, them, their souls and consciences especially moving." It was signed by the prior and ten monks.^a

The king, on December the 22d, in his 29th year, granted the site of this priory, with various manors, rectories, advowsons, rents, &c. which had belonged to it, to Thomas duke of Norfolk.^b In the second year of Queen Elizabeth, the then duke of Norfolk alienated the site to Thomas Gresham Esq.^c who subsequently conveyed his right in it to Thomas Cecil afterwards earl of Exeter. William earl of Exeter, the son of earl Thomas, sold this priory to Sir Edward Coke, whose descendant, Thomas William Coke of Holkham, Esq. is the present possessor.

Blomfield says: In 1428 the spiritualities of this priory were valued at 189*l.* 17*s.* per annum, and the temporalities at 130*l.* 18*s.* 8½*d.* In the 26th of Henry VIII. the gross revenue of this priory amounted to 324*l.* 17*s.* 5½*d.* The clear revenue to 306*l.* 11*s.* 4¾*d.*^d

The only REGISTER of this priory to which the Editors of the Monasticon have had access, is that in the Harleian Collection of Manuscripts, No. 2110; a folio volume, the greater part of which appears to have been written about the middle of the fourteenth century. The following is the account of the Ruins of this priory given by the continuator of Blomfield's History in 1775:

"The site of the priory church lies west of the castle, was a venerable large Gothic pile, of free-stone, flint, &c. and built in a cathedral or conventual manner. Great part of the front or west end of it is still remaining, where the principal entrance was through a great arch, over which was a stately window. On each side of the great door were doors to enter into the north and south aisles. Under the tower [was an arch which] as the grand door served for an entrance into the nave or body. At the north and south ends of this front, or west end, stood two towers supported by strong arches and pillars. The nave or body had twelve great pillars, making seven arches on each side, the lowest joining to the towers. On the east end of the nave stood the grand tower, supported by four great pillars, through which was the entrance into the choir. On the south and north sides of this tower were two cross aisles, or transepts; and at the end of the north transept there seems to have been a chapel or vestiary. The choir was of equal breadth with the nave and ailes, but much shorter, and at the east end it was in form of a chapel, and here stood the high altar as I take it. The cloister was on the south side of the church, and had an entrance into it at the west end of the south aile, near to the tower, and another at the east end of the said aile near the grand tower. The chapter-house seems to have joined the east side of the cloister, and the dormitory to have been over the west part of the cloister. West of the cloister, and adjoining, was the Prior's apartment, now converted into a farm house. In a large room above stairs, called now the Prior's dining-room, is a curious bow-window of stone, consisting of nine pannels. In the first were the arms of the priory painted on the glass; in the second, the arms of the earl of Arundel, and earl Warren, quarterly, but now broke and gone; in the third, Mowbray duke of Norfolk, gules a lion rampant argent; fourth, the red and white rose united, and a crown over it; fifth, France and England, quarterly; sixth, the rose, &c. as above; seventh, Earl Warren's arms; eighth, quarterly, the earl of Arundel in the first and fourth quarter, and in the second and third Matrevers, sable, fretty, or, and Fitz-Alan, baron of Clun, per fess, azure and argent quarterly; ninth, argent, a cross componè, or and azure, between twelve cross crosslets, fitchè sable; the PRIORY ARMS, as I take it, and these letters, J. W. joined together by a knot, and under it SPITV . PRINCIPALI . CONFIRMA . ME. By this it appears that this window was built by John Winchelsey, prior in the reign of Hen. VII. or VIII. Afterwards it might be converted into a dining-room, but that it was originally a large chapel, and this room was only the west end of it is apparent: it extended to the south tower of the church, where at the east end of it is a large window, as in a chapel, and a step or ascent here, as to an altar; and on the South wall, near to this ascent, is an arched carved seat of stone, rising in form of a pyramid, with the shield of the Earl Warren alone, which testifies it to be an antique pile, built in their time before the patronage of the priory came to the earls of Arundel; and at the north-east corner, near to the altar-piece, is a door-place with a stone arch; and here was a stone staircase which led down into the cloister. In another room was, a few years past, in a window, the broken portraiture of one of the earls of Arundel, in armour, with a broad-sword in his hand, and on his surcoat the arms of Arundel, Matrevers, and Clun, as above, and part of a legend, 'My trust ys'; also on a chapeau, gules, an oaken slip, vert, acorned or.

Among the ancient charters preserved in the British Museum there is one belonging to this priory, L. F. C. xxiii. 15. "Conventio inter priorem et conventum monasterii B. M. de Castleacre et Robertum Hoberd rectorem medietatis ecclesiæ parochialis de Skernyngg, de decimis in Heringeshaghe. Dat. 20 Apr. A.D. 1366."

"The site of this priory took in several acres. The grand entrance was north of the priory church, where is now standing a large and stately Gate-house of free-stone. Over the arch, as you enter, are the arms of the Earl Warren, of Arundel and Earl Warren quarterly, France and England, and those of the priory. The whole site was inclosed with a lofty stone wall, good part of which is still standing." ^a

The ruins of Castle Acre priory are still amongst the finest of the religious houses of Norfolk.

Since Blomfield's time various dilapidations have taken place; but the outline of the Ruins, as he has described them, may be still traced. Some large columns of the nave, the walls of the transepts, and considerable remnants of the conventual buildings to the south of the church are remaining; as is the porter's lodge. The site of this monastery, within what may be called the walled precinct, is said to contain twenty-nine acres, two roods, ten perches.

Priory of Mündham, or Mendham, in Suffolk:

A Cell to Castleacre.

UGDALE, in the former edition of the Monasticon, traced this priory in Norfolk.

Tanner says, "About A.D. 950 Bishop Theodred gave by his will^a to the church of this place several lands in this and the adjacent towns, by which it seems to have been more than parochial an hundred years before the Conquest

"How long it continued so," he adds, "is not at present known; but in King Stephen's time, upon the island of Hurst or Bruninghurst in this parish, William the son of Roger de Huntingfeld founded a Cluniac priory subordinate to Castle Acre in Norfolk;" which he dedicated to the Virgin Mary.

Two charters from the founder are preserved in the Register of Castleacre.

In the first, William de Huntingfeld gives to the monks of Castleacre the isle of St. Mary of Mendham, with Ulveslage, and the granges there, and various other lands, rents, and homages; and certain land in Crochestune with its appurtenances; on condition that as many brethren as might be requisite "ad locum regendum in ista insula" should be placed in it; and their number afterwards increased, as the same improved, till a regular Convent was formed. The island was to pay such subjection to St. Mary at Acre as that monastery paid to St. Pancras at Lewes, and St. Pancras to the church of Cluni; with half a mark yearly by way of acknowledgement.^b In the second charter the founder stipulates for the construction of a Church of stone.^c

Stephen de Saukevill released to the priory of Mendham and the monks of Acre settled there, all his right in Hurst.^d

Roger de Huntingfeld, apparently the son of the founder, gaveto the monks here the church of St. Margarett at Linsted; a moiety of the church of St. Peter at Linsted; certain pasture, with eleven acres of meadow, and a plantation of alders; the third part of the tithe of his demesne in Sutorp; five shillings rent in Bradenham; and all his right in the church of Mendham.^e Among the Instruments given in the Appendix, also, another charter of this Roger will be found, appointing, with the consent of the convent of Acre, a prior at Mendham.^f

The prior of Castleacre covenanted with this Roger that the prior of Mendham should not be deposed unless for disobedience, incontinence, or dilapidation of the house; and that if such deposition should take place, it was not to be without the advice of the monks of Mendham and of the patron: yet, if the offence were manifest, and the monks and patron did not consent to the deposition, the same was to be effected by the bishop of the diocese. It was further agreed that the convent of Mendham should consist of at least eight monks, four of whom were to be sent from Acre. If any man betook himself to Mendham for fear of death he was to be received; but none in health were to be admitted without the consent of the prior of Acre. If the House increased so as to be able to maintain the congregation, the monks were then at liberty to receive any at Mendham, according to their own discretion.^g

The Harleian manuscript 972, fol. 113, gives a genealogical table of the patrons of this priory of the family of Huntingfeld, to the 50th of Edward III.^h

Blomfield says, in 1386 Sir Robert de Swillington, knt. Sir Roger Bois, knt. John Pyeshale, clerk, and Robert de Ashefield settled the patronage of this monastery on Isabel de Ufford, countess of Suffolk.ⁱ By another Instrument, of the 2d Hen. IV. the reversion, after her death, was granted to John de la Pole, clerk, Richard de la Pole, Roger Drury, knt. William Bardwell, knt. and Robert Bolton, clerk, and their heirs.^k

One benefactor is mentioned by Blomfield subsequent to the founder and his son. In 1239 Richard son of Benediet, after his decease, settled a messuage and sixty acres of land on this priory.^a

Taylor, in his Index Monasticus, adds the following names of benefactors. Roger de Hammervill, about A.D. 1140: Ingelram de Gisney, or Gyney, before 1250: Emma his daughter, widow of Henry de Tholetorp, 1250: Sir Miles Stapleton, knt. 1385: Walter Nyche, of Mendham, 1469.^b

In 1291 the temporalities of this priory appear to have been valued at 4*l.* 12*s.*^c

PRIORS of MENDHAM.

JOHN DE LINDESEIE appears to have been appointed under the auspices of Roger de Huntingfeld son of the founder.^d

JOHN also occurs as prior in the 1st Edw. II. A. D. 1307.

Besides these, Blomfield has transcribed the following names and dates of priors who occur upon the Court Rolls of the manor of Mendham:

1250. SIMON.

1340. JOHN DE WALTUN.

1342. HENRY DE BERLEGH succeeded.

1353. WILLIAM.

1382. JOHN DE TOMSTON.

1400. ROBERT.

1420. JOHN BETELEEE succeeded.

1449. THOMAS REDE.

1487. THOMAS PYTTE.

1501. THOMAS BULLOCK.

1523. SIMON.^e

A writer in the Gentleman's Magazine for 1808 adds to these,

JOHN, prior in 1206, and another

JOHN in 1273.^f

This house, and all its revenues, were given by King Henry the Eighth, together with the dissolved priories of Cardigan, Bethkelert, Ankerwyke, &c. to the then newly restored monastery at Bustlesham or Bisham in Berkshire, A.D. 1537, by way of augmentation, for the maintenance of an abbat and thirteen monks of the Benedictine Order. But that monastery was shortlived, being surrendered on June 19th, 30th Hen. VIII. In which year, according to Blomfield, the site and lands of Mendham priory were granted to Charles Duke of Suffolk. Tanner says, the site of Mendham was granted to Richard Freston and Anne his wife, in the 2d and 3d of Philip and Mary; Blomfield that it was conveyed to Freston at that time by the duke's family. It certainly continued with the Frestons for some time; from them it passed to the Bacons, and then to the Rants. When Blomfield wrote, the site belonged to Mrs. Frances Bacon of Earlsbam, widow. The greatest part of the parish of Mendham is in Norfolk, but the priory stands just over the river on the Suffolk side. Taylor, in his Index Monasticus, p. 91, says, the present owners of Mendham are, in Suffolk, George Rant, Esq. in Norfolk, the Rev. Anthony Freston.

Among the ancient deeds preserved in the British Museum is one relating to this priory.

No Common Seal of this religious house has as yet been met with, but the seal of one of its priors John . . . 1 Ed. II. is appendant to a deed in the Augmentation Office.^g This seal is thus described by Madox in his Formulare. A neat oval seal in green wax. It has the effigies of the B. Virgin, crowned, sitting on a splendid throne: in her bosom the infant. The inscription at the edge, is s. FR'IS JOH'IS MENDHAM. So far Madox is correct, but he has omitted to mention that underneath the Virgin are the priory arms, viz. on a fess three plates, being the same arms as were used by William de Huntingfield the founder.

There is no valuation of the possessions of the priory in the General Ecclesiastical Survey 26 Hen. VIII.; but it twice occurs in this record, first, under the college of Wingfield, where it is noticed that the college made an annual pension to the priory of Mendham of 9*s.* and, 2dly, under the vicarage of Mendham, where, among the charges incumbent on the vicar, one was, that of a certain annual pension of 13*s.* 4*d.* paid to the priory of Mendham now suppressed.

A record in the office of the King's Remembrancer, Exchequer, bears this title:

Mendham; Kingshall, and Mendham priory, Suffolk. Decretum tangens annualem redditum exeuntem de maneriis illis. Pasch. 44 Eliz. rot. 169.

And two others in the Lord Treasurer's Rem. Office, thus:

Mendham Priorat.

De Edwardo Ward, arm. occasionato ad ostendendum quo titulo tenet Manerium de Mendham priorat. in com. Suffolk. Pasch. Record. 8 Jac. I. rot. 198, et Hill. Record. 12 Jac. I. rot. 281.

In the Gentleman's Magazine for 1808, vol. LXXVIII. part ii. p. 969, is an account of Mendham priory, with a view of the ruins as they then stood. Taylor, in his Index Monasticus, fol. 18, p. 91, says, "Some interesting specimens of ecclesiastical architecture may be seen in the remains of the conventual church of St. Mary of Mendham. Much of this ruin has been recently removed to another site. It is situated in the hundred and deanery of Hoxne, and archdeaconry of Suffolk.

tion in the church of Mendham amounted to xvj. marks and a half: the prior of the Holy Trinity at Ipswich had a portion of forty marks: and the prior of Sees a portion of c^s. It is added, "Item dicunt quod nona pars vellerum et agnorum ejusdem Villæ valet per annum xxxviij. mrc. et non plus, eo quod prior de Mendham habet de dote ecclesiæ viij^{ss}. acras terræ quæ valent per annum vj. mrc. Bromholm Priory in Norfolk.

ROMHOLM, or, as it is sometimes called, Baketon Priory, was founded by William de Glanvill, A. D. 1113, for certain Cluniac monks from the priory of Castleacre, to which this house was for sometime subordinate. Dugdale, says bishop Tanner, in his Baronage, vol. i. p. 423, makes Bromholm and Baketon distinct priories, which they certainly were not. But it is not clear, he adds, whether William de Glanvill did not settle the Castleacre monks in Baketon town, and his son Bartholomew remove them to the extremity of the parish, or rather into the then neighbouring, and now united, parish of Keswick, to the place called Bromholm, where they continued till the Dissolution.^a Bromholm priory was dedicated to St. Andrew.

^a Speed and Weever mention two monasteries at Bromholm, one of Cluniacs dedicated to St. Sepulchre, the other of Benedictines, de-

Bartholomew de Glanvill's charter, confirming his father's donations, enumerates in the endowment of this monastery the land of Stanard the priest and the church of Casewic, Bromholm, the church of Dilham, the tithe of his lordship of Baketon, and two parts of the tithe of Stainges, Horham, Alreton, Langho, and Brug; also of Sneseeling, with the whole tithe of his mills in Baketon and Wilefort, two parts of the tithe of the mill of Honing, and one mill at Manesle in demesne; with the land of Herfrid the priest, and part of his wood in the mill way to Takesgate; two parts of the tithe of various homagers or tenants, whose names are enumerated; the tithe of the pannage of Baketon and Hotham; and two parts of the turbage or turbary of Swathefield. He, moreover, by way of augmentation, bequeathed to the priory, after his death, Gristcombe and all that he possessed in the fields there, with his villans, to be free and quit from all customs except Danegeld. He also gave the monks here the church of Paston with its appurtenances, with all his wood and land there, his land at Guneho, at Briges, at Aldehithe, and Lawceland, and of dedicated to St. Andrew; but certainly without good authority.

Editha de Briges; thirty acres by the sea; a meadow at Brereholm; a marsh by Bromholm; ten other acres by the sea; and the tithe of Richard the priest of Bachetuna; all in honour of God, the Virgin Mary, and St. Andrew, for the health of his own soul, his father's, and the souls of all his friends living and dead.^a

Stephen, earl of Moreton and Bologne, afterwards King of England, becoming possessed, by grant from King Henry the First, of the lands of Robert Malet in Norfolk, and amongst them of the manor of Bromholm, as superior lord, confirmed the donations which William de Glanvill had made to his monks.^b

The Continuator of Blomfield, who appears to have had access to the Register of Bromholm, gives the following notices of benefactors subsequent to the founder and his son.

King Henry the First, he says, gave the manor of Burgh to Vincent, which Ralph, the son of Roger de Burgh or Burgo, held of him in Burgh in Lothingland by serjeanty, which serjeanty Ralph granted to Gilbert de Wesenham, and he afterwards regranted to the king, and the king confirmed the manor free to the convent, reserving the advowson to the Crown, and the dower of Alice, widow of Roger de Burgo, for her life; and, in consideration of this grant, the convent released to the king a rent-charge of five marks per annum from the exchequer, which the king had granted anno regni 29.^c

Agnes de Rollesby gave an annual rent there of 18s. 8d.

Elstan Kemp gave four pence rent in Lodowyestoft or Lowistoft.

Walter de Blundeston gave Lambcote, and a marsh there.

Gilbert, son of Nicholas de Repps, gave twelve pence rent in Repps.

These grants appear to have been confirmed by King Henry III. in his eighteenth year, he and his mother being then at Bromholm.

The said king, in his thirteenth year, granted the monks a fair at Bromholm on the feast of the Exaltation of the Holy Cross and two days after, and a weekly market on Mondays.^d

King Edward the Second, in his sixth year, in honour of God, and out of his especial devotion to the Cross of Bromholm, and for one hundred marks paid to him, confirmed to the priory the manor of Baketon, with wreck at sea and all other privileges, the monks paying 20*l.* per annum into the exchequer as a fee-farm rent for ever.^e

William de Crostweyt, son of Godfrey de Skegeton gave two parts of his tithe to this priory. The deed undated.^f

Gilbert, son of Thomas Knight of Ilketeshall gave them his tithes in Hedenham in 1252: these consisted of two garbs from the demesne of Gilbert, two garbs of the demesne of Roger de Mohaut in Cressingland, and two from the demesne of Roger de Colville of Ca . . ton.^g

Sir John de la Veile, or Velie, knight of Witton, and Lettice his wife, released all their right in the church of Hanninges for twenty marks, in the first of Edward the Third, and also in the church of Witton, and the mediety of Ridlington. The Veiles were lords of Witton.^h

King Edward the Third, in the fifteenth year of his reign, granted a licence in mortmain for the priory to purchase the fifth part of the manor of Thomas Peche in Baketon of Henry de Sidestrand and Robert de Walesham, the manor being held by the king in capite as of his honor of Eye. Robert de Shelton clerk, and John de Hapisbergh rector of Berdwell, conveyed another part of the same manor to the monks to found a chantry in the priory church for a monk to pray for their souls.ⁱ

Pope Celestine confirmed to this house the churches of Baketon, Casewyk, Paston, Witton, and Dilham, in the first year of his pontificate.^k

Pope Gregory, in his thirteenth year, on the 15th kal. Oct. confirmed to them the appropriation of Hanninges church, a vicarage there being reserved.^l

William, prior of Acre, with his convent, for a certain annual payment, granted for ever to Bromholm the church of Witton with the tithe of the manor land.^m

Beside the churches abovementioned, in the 30th Edw. III. licence was granted to appropriate the church of Warham in Norfolk; and in the 8th of Richard II. that of Bardwell in Suffolk.ⁿ

The convent of Bromholm also held lands in fee-farm of Castleacre priory producing annual rents to the amount of fourteen marks.^o

In the 15th of Edward the First the Prior had the assize view of frankpledge, pillory, tumbrell, and wreck of sea from Mikelham to the meer that divided the hundreds of Tunstede and Happing.^p

Richard, earl of Cornwall, son of King John, and brother of King Henry the Third, as well as his son Edmund earl of Cornwall, as lords of Bromholm, were patrons of this priory.^q King Edward the Second was afterwards patron by inheritance.^r

In the 20th Edw. III. Robert Ufford, earl of Suffolk, capital lord of Bromholm, was patron; and in the 15th Hen. VI. William de la Pole, earl of Suffolk. In the latter year an agreement was made between the said William and Robert then Prior, that whereas the said prior and convent held the fifth part of the manor of Baketon called the king's part, paying yearly to the said earl and his heirs male twenty pounds; and by virtue of that part had a certain lete with view of frank pledge belonging to it valued at 34*s.* 4*d.* per annum. The prior granted to the earl the aforesaid lete, 34*s.* 4*d.* wreck of sea, &c. belonging to it for his life; and the earl covenanted to pay the said sum of 34*s.* 4*d.* to the prior out of the fee-farm of twenty pounds abovementioned. The date of this agreement was March the 1st, 14th Hen. VI.^s

The greatest profit, however, arising to the monastery of Bromholm, was derived from a celebrated Cross made from the fragments of the real Cross. It was brought to England in 1223. The story of it is related in Matthew Paris. The substance is, that an English priest who officiated in the Greek Emperor's chapel at Constantinople, having in his keeping a cross made of the wood of our Saviour's, on the death of the emperor brought it into England, and would not part with it to any monastery unless the convent would take him and his two sons into it as monks. The monastery of Bromholm complying, and setting up this cross in their chapel, there was so great a concourse of persons from all parts to reverence it, that the monastery became abundantly rich by the gifts and offerings made to it.^t Piers Plowman alludes to these pilgrimages to it in his vision:

"But wenden to Walsingham, and my wif Alis,
And byd the Roode of BROMHOLME bring me out of dette."

^t "Eodem anno, A. D. 1223, apud Bromholm crebuerunt divina miracula, ad gloriam et honorem salutiferæ Crucis; in qua Salvator mundi pati dignatus est pro redemptione generis humani. Et quoniam tanto thesauro Britannia in Oceano constituta divina largitate meruit beatificari, dignum est, imo dignissimum memoriis posterorum imprimere, quo ordine a tam remotis partibus in Britanniam sit delata. Verum Comes Flandrens Baldewinus, ex Cocite Constantinopolitanus Imperator effectus; ubi per multorum curricula annorum strenuè vixit, contigit illum a perfidis Regibus quodam tempore graviter infestari, contra quos cum impetu, et absque deliberatione progrediens; lignum dominicum cum aliquibus reliquiis (quæ semper ante illum a Patriarcha et Episcopis deferri consueverant, quotiescumque adversum inimicos Crucis prælium commissurus periret) hac vice portare neglexit quod eadem die experimento miserrimo recognovit. Nam dum temere cum exercitu modico, non habito respectu ad multitudinem barbarorum, qui in decuplo exercitui suo superabundabant in hostes prorupit; in momento tam ipse Imperator, quam totus ejus exercitus ab inimicis crucifixi cir-of those who visited it. Capgrave says, that no fewer than thirty-nine persons were raised by it from the dead, and nineteen blind persons restored to sight.

In respect of the subjection of the monks of Bromholm to the priory of Castleacre, it appears that at an early period it was agreed between the convents, that the former raising the rent of the fee-farm of Witton, which they held of the monks of Acre, ten shillings a year, the latter should remit and quit all other claims whatsoever which they have upon the monks of Bromholm in the form of aids or recognitions.^a

In the year 1229, Pope Gregory the IXth, to put an end to the controversies between the priors of Lewes and Acre and the prior of Bromholm, respecting the appointment of the prior of Bromholm, referred the matter for determination to the abbat of Osolveston and the deans of Stamford and Rutland, who decreed that the prior of Acre should nominate six monks, three of Acre and three of Bromholm, out of whom the monastery of Bromholm should choose one for their prior.^b

Some years after this, Pope Celestine, by a bull dated in the fourth year of his pontificate, discharged this monastery from all subjection to that of Acre.^c

PRIORS of BROMHOLM,

From Blomfield's History of Norfolk :

VINCENT occurs prior in the reign of Henry the First. PHILIP, about 1210.

VINCENT, in the 21st Hen. III.

CLEMENT, in the 42d Hen. III.: as appears by a fine then levied between him and William de St. Omer of forty shillings in arrear, due to the prior.

cumvallati, omnes aut interfecti sunt, aut in captivitatem abducti. Pauci quoque ex omnibus qui per fugam elapsi sunt, de Imperatore quid actum sit, vel quo devenerit, penitus ignorabant. Erat autem ea tempestate Capellanus quidam natione Anglicus, qui in capella Imperatoris cum suis clericis divina celebravit mysteria; qui unus fuit ex custodibus reliquiarum, et annulorum, aliarumque rerum dicti Imperatoris. Hic itaque cum casum cognovisset de morte, ut omnes prædicabant, domini sui Imperatoris; ab urbe Constantinopolitana cum dictis reliquiis, et annulis, et rebus aliis multis, cum lapidibus pretiosis latenter recedens; ad Angliam usque pervenit. Veniensque ad S. Albanum, cuidam ibidem monacho quandam Crucem argenteam et deauratam, cum duobus digitis de S. Margareta, et annulis aureis lapidibusque pretiosis vendidit: quæ omnia nunc in monasterio S. Albani in magna veneratione habentur. Deinde dictus Capellanus de mantica sua quandam crucem ligneam extrahens, ostendit eam quibusdam monachis; de qua etiam affirmavit cum juramento, quod indubitanter erat ex ligno illo in quo Salvator mundi pro redemptione generis humani pependit. Sed quia non credebatur dictis ejus ibidem, recessit inde; thesaurum imprecabilem, licet ignotum, secum gerens. Habuit autem dictus Capellanus duos filios parvulos, de quorum sustentatione et cura nimis erat sollicitus; qua curiositate ductus, in pluribus Monasteriis tali conditione prædictam obtulit crucem; ut ipse et filii ejus reciperentur ad Ordinem Monachatus. Qui cum multis in locis inter divites repulsam passus fuisset, venit tandem ad Cellam quandam quæ Bromholm nuncupatur, pauperrimam, et ædificiis commodis destitutam, in territorio Norfolkensi sitam; et accersito ad se priore cum quibusdam de fratribus, ostendit eis Crucem supra dictam, quæ duplici ligno ex transverso fuerat fabricata, habens ferè longitudinem manus humanæ; et rogavit humiliter, quatenus cum ipsa Cruce et aliis reliquiis quas habebat, ipsum et filios suos reciperent ad Ordinem Monachorum. Prior vero et fratres ejus, de tanto exhilarati thesauro, illico procurante domino, qui honestam semper amplectitur paupertatem; dictis Capellanis adhibuerunt fidem; et lignum dominicum reverenter accipientes, detulerunt illud in Oratorium suum; et cum quanta potuerunt devotione, in loco honestissimo servaverunt. Hoc denique anno, ut prædictum est, cœperunt divina celebrari miracula, ad laudem et gloriam vivificæ crucis, in Monasterio prædicto; ubi mortuis vita, cæcis visus, claudis gressus restituitur; leprosis caro munda donatur, obsessi a dæmonibus liberantur; et quicumque infirmus cum fide ad lignum prædictum accesserit, incolumis et sanus recedit. Frequenter autem, adoratur, et colitur Crux præfata, non solum a gente Anglicana; verum etiam ab hominibus de regionibus longè positis, et qui de illa divina audierunt miracula, devotissime venerantur." “De literis regis patentibus Thomæ Woodhouse arm. de situ maneriorum de Bromeholme et al. in com. Norfolc. fact. Pasch. Rec. 38 Hen. VIII. rot. 26.”

Hearne, in his preface to Adam de Domerham, p. lviii. has printed a Grant from Richard de Paston to the priory of Bromholm, of certain rents for keeping their Books in repair : copied from an old Leiger Book pertaining to the priory, which, Feb. 8th, 1726, was in the hands of Mr. Paston of Pauntley in Gloucestershire.^a

The SEAL of the prior, says the continuator of Blomfield, is round and large, about three inches diameter, of red wax ; the impress being the west end of the priory church. Under an arch in the centre is the figure of St. Andrew, seated, a glory round his head, his right hand elevated, and holding a cross, supposed to represent the cross or rood of the priory. Above, in an arch, is the bust of thé Virgin, with the infant Jesus in her arms. The legend, SIGILLUM . PRIORIS . ET . CONVENTUS . SCI . ANDREE . DE . BROMHOLD.

ARMS of Bromholm Priory. Tanner and Edmondson give these, as in the initial letter to the present account : Arg. a Cross voided sable, coticed of the last ; all within a bordure, Or. Blomfield says, Arg. a Cross, gu. upon a pedestal of three steps, with a greater and less transverse at top. Le Neve, in his MSS. says, Arg. a Cross, sable, fimbriated Or. upon a pedestal of one step, within a bordure Or.

Bromholm priory was situated in the parish of Bacton, about six miles from North Walsham.

The great gateway of entrance, a considerable portion of the church, part of what is believed to have been the kitchen of the monastery, and other indications of offices and lodgings, still remain. The priory precinct, partly walled, and partly moated, occupies about thirty acres.

The Rev. W. T. Spurdens, of North Walsham, in a letter to the editors, says, “The nave, and transepts of the church (except the west front), seem to be of the original edifice. The west front, the choir, and most of the conventual buildings are of a later date : perhaps erected when an addition was made to the fame and revenues of the house by the acquisition of the Holy Cross. The principal gate is to the north. Another gate, over the moat, is of smaller dimensions, and the arch is fallen.”

A View of the Ruins of Bromholm was published in 1738 by S. and N. Buck, which was copied into Booth’s History of Norfolk in 1779.

quem redditum præcentor prædictæ ecclesiæ de Bromholm recipiet de præfatis hominibus et hæredibus suis, ad emendationem librorum dictæ ecclesiæ de Bromholm. Scilicet ad festum sancti Lucæ Evangelistæ quatuor denarios de prædicta Claritia et de hæredibus suis, et duos denarios ad festum sancti Andreæ de servitio prædicti Radulphi [et] hæredum suorum, et duos denarios ad Pentecosten, et duos denarios ad festum sancti Michaelis, in perpetuum. Et ut hæc concessio et donatio, et cartæ meæ confirmatio firma et illæsa permaneat, eam præsentis scripto et sigilli mei appositione corroboraui, his testibus, Laurentio de Kepps, domino Gaufrido de Glanvill, Gerard de Norford, Willielmo Constabulario, et multis aliis.”

This grant, Hearne adds, was mentioned and confirmed by letters patent of King Henry the Second at Bromholm 16 Feb. anno regni xviii°.

Cirographum inter domum de Acra et Bromholm de annuo redditu.

[Ibid.]

OMNIBUS sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis præsens scriptum visuris vel audituris priores de Acra monachorum et de Bromholme eorumque locorum conventus, salutem in Domino. Universitati vestræ notum fieri volumus quod cum quædam conventio orta esset inter priores de Acra monachorum et de Bromholme, et eorundem locorum conventus super auxiliis et recognitionibus quæ prior et conventus de Acra exigebant de hominibus de Wittona, quos prior et conventus de Bromholme tenent ad perpetuam firmam de prædictis priore et conventu de Acra, tandem in hunc modum mediantibus viris discretis in formam perpetuæ pacis sopita est: scilicet quod prior et conventus de Bromholme adauxerunt annuatim firmam suam quam solebant reddere priori et conventui de Acra, per decem solidos singulis annis in perpetuum reddendos: ita quod ubi prius solebant reddere tredecim marcas et octo solidos et octo denarios per annum, de cætero reddent quatuordecim marcas et quinque solidos et quatuor denarios ad tres terminos; scilicet ad festum sancti Michaelis sexaginta et quatuor solidos, ad purificationem beatæ Mariæ sexaginta et quatuor solidos, et ad Pentecosten sexaginta et quatuor solidos. Pro hac autem annuæ firmæ augmentatione prior et conventus de Acra remiserunt et quiete clamaverunt in perpetuum omnes exactiones, recognitiones, et omnes demandas et auxilia quæ prius habuerunt vel habere potuerunt erga domum de Bromholme occasione prædictæ firmæ de Witton et aliarum possessionum per cartas de Acra eis concessarum, et confirmatarum. Et ut hæc conventio et concessio inter prædictas domos perpetuam obtineat firmitatem, præsens scriptum ad modum cirografi factum utriusque domus priores et conventus sigillis suis confirmaverunt. Compositio inter nos et domum de Bromholme.

UNIVERSIS sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit, P. Dei permissione abbas de Osolvestune, et decanus de Rotelande, salutem. Mandatum domini Papæ Gregorii IX. suscepimus in hæc verba. Gregorius episcopus servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis abbati de Osolvestune, de Stanforde, et de Rotelond decanis Lincolniensis diocesis, salutem, et apostolicam benedictionem. Dilecti filii prior et conventus de Lewes Cluniacensis ordinis sua nobis petitione monstrarunt, quod cum monachi de Bromholme ejusdem ordinis, Norwicensis diocesis, ex capitulo monasterii de Acra jam dicti ordinis, sibi debeant priorem assumere quotiens priore vacare contingit ecclesiam eorundem, ipsi nitentes vindicare sibi jus eligendi libere de suo conventu priorem, super hoc priorem et conventum præfati monasterii de Acra coram venerabili fratre nostro Roffensi episcopo et conjudicibus suis in causam, literarum piæ memoriæ Honorii Papæ prædecessoris nostri auctoritate traxerunt; unde dicti prior et conventus de Lewes quibus ipsum monasterium de Acra subjacet, sicut dicunt, rem suam agi videntes, cum sæpediti prior et conventus de Acra factum hujusmodi non possunt deducere in iudicium sine ipsis, pro jure suo sedem apostolicam appellarunt; quorum appellationi dicti iudices humiliter detulerunt: ideoque discretioni vestre per apostolica scripta mandamus, quatinus si est ita, audiat quæ iidem prior et conventus de Lewes pro jure suo duxerint proponenda, et quod canonicum fuerit appellatione postposita statuatis, facientes quod decreveritis per censuram ecclesiasticam firmiter observari. Testes autem qui fuerunt nominati si se gratia odio vel timore subtraxerint, per censuram, eandem cessante appellatione cogatis veritati testimonium perhibere. Quod si omnes hiis exequendis non potueritis interesse duo vestrum ea nihilominus exequantur. Datum Laterani decimo septimo kalendas Maii pontificatus nostri anno primo.

Hujus Gregorii auctoritate mandati, partibus in nostra præsentia constitutis, priore et conventu de Lewes contra priorem et conventum de Bromholme proponentibus, quod cum monasterium de Bromholme monasterio Acrensi quod est specialis ipsius cella, et immediate sibi subjecta, antiquitus consueverit esse subjectum, secundum regulam sancti Benedicti et ordinem Cluniacensem; videlicet in priorem et suppriorum præficiendo et destituendo, monachos ponendo et recipiendo, unum pro alio mutando, eandem domum visitando, et prioris ejusdem visitationem recipiendo, et alia, secundum consuetudinem ordinis Cluniacensis in eadem domo corrigendo, Philippus prior et monachi ejusdem domus de Bromholm compositionem quandam cum ipsis Acrensibus, super statu et ordinatione ipsius domus de Bromholm, auctoritate abbatis de Valle Dei ejusque judicium à bonæ memoriæ Innocentii Papæ delegatorum secundum formam sigillis utriusque domus et eorundem judicium signatam inierunt. Sed ipsi Bromholmenses tam obedientiam et reverentiam quam antiquitus præfato suo monasterio Acrensi exhibere consueverant, quam formam dictæ compositionis observare postmodum recusarunt, in enorme dampnum suum, et ipsius sui monasterii Acrensis et gravamen; propter quod, secundum statuta ordinis sententia excommunicationis meruerunt innodari, unde petunt sibi justiciam exhiberi. Dicunt etiam quod dampnificati sunt tam ipsi quam domus sua de Acra per hujusmodi rebellionem ad valentiam quingentarum marcarum et amplius, super quo petunt ab ipsis Bromholmensibus sibi satisfieri; hæc dicunt salvo sibi jure addendi minuendi vel mutandi. Post multas verò altercationes inter partes hinc inde habitas, tandem lis coram nobis conquievit, ac à partibus super præmissis est compositum, et in formam perpetuæ pacis consensus, in hunc modum; videlicet, obeunte vel cedente Vincentio nunc priore de Bromholm, ac post eum quandocunque vacante prioratu de Bromholm, monachi de Bromholm infra octo dies postquam vacaverit domus de Bromholme significant priori et conventui de Acra apud Acram literatoriè et per certum nuncium vacationem domus de Bromholme. Et si fortè prior Acrensis absens fuerit, nuntiatio vacationis prioratus de Bromholme conventui de Acra facta sufficiat; et tunc prior de Acra infra mensem post nuntiationem sibi et conventui de Acra apud Acram sic factam à conventu de Bromholm, bona fide et in periculo animæ suæ sine fraude et dolo nominabit tres monachos de Acra quos magis crediderit esse ydoneos ad regimen dictæ domus de Bromholm, et tres monachos de Bromholm similiter quos magis crediderit esse ydoneos ad regimen dictæ domus de Bromholme, videlicet suppriorum de Bromholme et duos alios ejusdem domus monachos, et monachi de Bromholme infra mensem post nominationem à priore de Acra sibi literatoriè, et per certum nuncium nuntiatam, eligent et assumunt unum de sex nominatis, quem voluerint, sibi in priorem bona fide et in periculo animæ suæ secundum quod ecclesiæ suæ magis expedire prospexerint, consensu patroni sui requisito. Qui patronus sine difficultate et mora suum prædictæ nominationi et electioni præbebit assensum. Et si fortè non præstiterit non ideo minus stabunt et valebunt nominatio facta à priore Acrensi et electio facta à conventu de Bromholme vel à majori et saniori parte conventus, cui sic nominato et electo episcopus loci quod suum est impendet. Et si prior Acrensis infra mensem post nuntiatam sibi et conventui suo in forma suprascripta vacationem apud Acram à conventu de Bromholme, non nominaverit vel nominationem à se factam conventui de Bromholm non significaverit, ex tunc licebit conventui de Bromholm illa vice quem voluerit sibi eligere in priorem, consensu patroni sui, ut supra requisito. Et si conventus de Bromholm, post nominationem sibi à priore Acrensi, in forma suprascripta factam, infra mensem, unum de sex nominatis non elegerit, tunc conventus de Bromholme assumet sibi in priorem unum de sex nominatis, quemcunque prior Acrensis voluerit illa vice, consensu patroni, ut supra, requisito. Quod si vacante prioratu de Bromholm contingat prioratum de Acra vacare vel priorem Acrensensem in transmarinis partibus moram facere, supprior de Acra cum concilio conventus Acrensis expediet ea quæ expedienda forent à priore Acrensi in hac parte. Pro procuracione autem tam à priore et conventu Lewensi quam à priore et conventu Acrensi in domo de Bromholm petita, ad quam se nullo modo teneri dicebant monachi de Bromholm, percipiet idem prior et conventus Acrensis pro bono pacis quadraginta solidos annuatim ad duos terminos, videlicet in crastino synodi Paschæ viginti solidos, et in crastino synodi sancti Michaelis viginti solidos, apud Norwicum. Item ubi prior et conventus de Bromholm soliti fuerunt solvere priori et conventui de Acra quatuordecim marcas ad quinque solidos et quatuor denarios pro possessionibus terris et redditibus quos de eisdem tenent, in posterum solvent annuatim viginti marcas de bona et legali moneta sterlingorum priori et conventui de Acra vel eorum certo nuncio terminis quibus ex antiquo redditum suum percipere consueverunt; videlicet ad purificationem beatæ Mariæ sex marcas et novem solidos. Ad Pentecostem sex marcas, octo solidos, et decem denarios. Et ad festum sancti Michaelis sex marcas et octo solidos et decem denarios. Et tam prior et conventus de Lewes quam prior et conventus de Acra omnes questiones, obedientias, exactiones, subjectiones alias à nominatione supradicto priori de Acra, vacante prioratu de Bromholme, competentes priori et conventui de Bromholm in perpetuum remiserunt, nullam obedientiam subjectionem seu visitationem hinc inde faciendam, excepta nominatione supradicta in domo de Bromholm ex; sed liberi et absoluti in omnibus aliis dicti prior et conventus de Bromholm in perpetuum remaneant, transactione inter de Acra et de Bromholm ecclesias coram abbate de Valle Dei et conjudicibus suis à domino papa delegatis, seu et aliquo jure ecclesiæ Lewensi vel Acrensi ante compositionem istam competente, non obstante. Nos vero ad petitionem auctoritate domini papæ nobis in hac parte commissam dictam compositionem confirmavimus, et sigillorum nostrorum munimine corroboramus. Acta siquidem sunt hæc in præsentia nostra apud Stanford in ecclesia beatæ Mariæ propè pontem, die Mercurii proxima ante dominicam palmarum anno ab incarnatione Domini mcccxxix. pridie idus Aprilis. Priore et conventu Lewensi, per venerabilem virum Robertum priorem Acrensensem ad componendum procuratorem sufficienter datum, comparentibus: de Acra et de Bromholm prioribus personaliter comparentibus: conventu de Acra per magistrum R. de Rokelond, et conventu de Bromholm per Borardum monachum de Bromholm ad componendum procuratores sufficienter datos comparentibus. Qui priores cum in iudicio præsentem se dictam compositionem in posterum servaturos, vel per se vel per alium procuratores quod in posterum observetur, inspectis sacrosanctis juraverunt, et huic compositioni, pro ipsis manibus subscripserunt procuratores. Et utriusque conventus tam de Acra quam de Bromholm ad hoc specialiter dati in animas fratrum suorum consimile sacramentum præstiterunt, partes subjecerunt in perpetuum nostræ, ac successorum nostrorum jurisdictioni qui pro tempore erunt. Ut et Bromholmenses ad supradictam pecuniæ annuam solutionem, et ad expensas necessarias solvendas, si quas fecerit domus Acrensis eidem domui occasione supradictæ pecuniæ suis terminis non solutæ, et utramque partem ad omnia supradicta firmiter et fideliter observanda per censuram ecclesiasticam possinius compellere. Renuntiantes omni appellationi impetratæ et impetrandæ et omni juris remedio sibi competenti. Et ad perpetuam hujus rei memoriam et securitatem forma compositionis istius tam signis nostris quam partium signata penès abbatem de Osolvestune residet. Hiis testibus, decano de Stanford, magistro R. de Cantulupo, domino G. Herford, magistro R. de Wrsistede, magistro R. de Rokelond, magistro Waltero de Suthfeld, domino R. capellano, Waltero aurifabro, Nicholao camerario, Galfrido de Whineberewe, Roberto Wardebois, et aliis.

NUM. V.

Quod Pr. de Bromholm non sit imposterum domui de Acra subjectus.

[Ex autographo in bbl. Deuvesiana.]

CELESTINUS episcopus servus servorum Dei dilecto filio nobili viro Willielmo de Glanvill advocato prioratus de Bromholm salutem, et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum teneamur de singulorum profectibus cogitare, commodis tamen eorum præcipuè qui se religioni manciparunt nos oportet intendere, et ipsorum onera quantum cum Deo possumus supportare. Audivimus siquidem quod cum antecessores tui domum quandam in fundo suo apud Bromholm intuitu divinæ pietatis fundassent, et eam possessionibus quibus fratres ibidem domino sub religionis habitu servituri possent sustentari, ditassent, monachi de Acra quia rogati duos de commonachis suis ad ipsam domum destinaverunt ut fratres ejusdem ordinis sui observantiam plenius edocerent, ipsam domum monachis suis cæcis claudis debilibus et viribus corporis destitutis onerare, et fratres observantiæ ordinis et ipsi domui accomodos ab ea extrahere et elongare non verentur. Nos verò indemnitati supradicti prioratus paterna volentes sollicitudine providere et quæ circa eum perperam attemptantur, falce correctionis apostolicæ resecare; auctoritate tibi præsentium et per te prælibatæ domui duximus indulgendum, ut supradicta domus de Bromholm ab indebita memoratorum monachorum de Acra jurisdictione et molestatione sine appellationis et contradictionis obstaculo perpetuò maneat absoluta. Adicimus etiam ut obeunte eo qui nunc temporis præfati domui prior præest, nullus ibi qualibet surreptionis astutia vel violentia præponatur nisi quem tua discretio et fratres communi consilio vel pars consilii sanioris secundum timorem Dei et beati Benedicti regulam priorem providerint eligendum. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ indulgentiæ infringere vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit indignationem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursum. Data Romæ apud sanctum Petrum non. Maii pontificatus nostri anno quarto.

Compositio inter Willielmum Abbatem S. Benedicti de Hulmo et Priorem et Conventum de Bromholm de libero accessu ad fontes de Burgo in Luthinglond.

HÆC est convectio facta inter dominum Willielmum abbatem sancti Benedicti de Hulmo et ejusdem loci conventum ex una parte et Clementem priorem et conventum de Bromholm ex altera, videlicet quod prædictus prior et conventus de Bromholm concesserunt pro se et successoribus suis præfatis abbati et conventui et eorum successoribus liberum accessum annuatim ad fontes suos in Burgo in Luthinglond qui vocantur Ebbewelles, et quod inde aquam sufficientem possint haurire tantummodo ad aquationem bidentum pascentium in duobus mariscis juxta ripam de Norwyc jacentibus qui vocantur Suthcotes quorum unus jacet juxta Ravenesnes ex parte australi fluminis, et alius ex parte aquilonali fluminis versus Redham. Pro quibus accessu et aquæ haustu prædicti abbas et conventus tenentur singulis annis quamdiu aquam ibidem perciperint in duobus caseis de melioribus dictorum mariscorum ad tempus medii Maii præfatis priori et conventui de Bromholm persolvendis. Ita videlicet quod si ex parte prænominatorum abbatis et conventus cessatum fuerit in solutione prædictorum caseorum ad terminum antedictum, liceat sæpeditis priori et conventui de Bromholm vel eorum servienti impune eisdem aquam denegare donec eisdem de prædictis caseis plenarie fuerit satisfactum. In cujus rei testimonium alternis scriptis in modum cyrographi confectis Partes signa sua apposuerunt. Hiis testibus, domino Willielmo de Stalham, domino Rogero de Wltertune militibus, &c. Act. apud sanctum Benedictum die Veneris proxima ante cathedram sancti Petri anno Domini millesimo ducentesimo quinquagesimo secundo.

Priory of Normannesberch, in the Parish of South Reinham, in Norfolk:

A Cell to Castleacre.

THE Register of Castleacre supplies the chief Deeds which illustrate the history of this priory.

Godfrey or Geffrey de Lisewis, it appears, granted to the monks of Acre a cell which had been built by his father William de Lisewis in the place called Normannesberch, in honour of St. Mary and St. John the Evangelist, with all that his father had given to the church and canons of that place;^a consisting of seventy-six acres, all the land of Medele, the land of Francheshoc, some other parcels of land, and the hermitage of Wigenhale; reserving from his donations here to himself and his heirs nothing but the prayers of the monks in the two churches of Acre and Normannesberch, but stipulating that the monks of Acre should celebrate divine service at Normannesberch by three monks at least. Godfrey de Lisewis himself gave, in this charter, for the further support of the monks, the church of South Reinham, nine acres in Gerdel, and two nativi with their goods and families.^b

In a second charter Geoffrey de Lisewis granted to the priory of Castleacre thirteen acres and a rood of land, eight acres and a rood of which were called Caldewelleil, and five acres of which lay in the field called East Girdele in South Reinham: he also, in this charter, confirmed to them the liberties which they possessed in the cell of Normannesberch, granted them a foldcourse in all the lands belonging to the church of Normannesberch, and renewed his confirmation of the different grants of William de Lisewis his father.^c

In a third charter Geoffrey de Lisewis granted to the church of Acre twenty-four acres of Land in Kiptune Blakehoe.^d

Geoffrey de Lexon gave to the monks of St. John the Evangelist here a rent of twelve pence in Reinham. This seems to be the same donation which the continuator of Blomfield ascribes to Geoffrey de Lisewis, as rent due from Gilbert Pauvere.^e

Tanner dates the foundation of the priory of South Reinham about A. D. 1160.

Aveline daughter of Richard de Oxewic, John Gun-nild, Roger son of Giles de Patesley chaplain, Geoffrey de Longvile, and Richard son of William de Ingaldesthorp are all chronicled by the continuator of Blomfield as minor benefactors to this house.^f

In the Taxation of Pope Nicholas A. D. 1291 we have the following enumeration of the temporalities of this priory:

"Bona Prioris de Normanberg.

This priory was valued at the Dissolution with Castleacre.

PRIORS of NORMANNESBERCH.

ROGER occurs prior in an Instrument of the time of King Henry the Second.^h

SIMON was prior in the 12th of Hen. II.ⁱ

HUGH occurs A. D. 1204.^k

SIMON occurs A. D. 1227.^l

The duke of Norfolk had a grant of this priory at the Dissolution, and in 1554, on March 4th, died seised of it. But in the 33d of Henry VIII. it was in the king's hands, and farmed of the king, called the manor of Lewsewiss. Afterwards it came to the Townsends; and, in 1564, Roger Townsend held all those lands, late the duke of Norfolk's, called Normansburgh.^m

The present possessors are the Marquis Townshend's trustees: Lord John Townshend, and Robert Blake, Esq.ⁿ

Tanner says,

"Vide cartas septem originales ad hoc cœnobiolum spectantes, penes v. cl. Petrum Le Neve arm. Norroy, scil. 1. ^a Bishop Tanner suspected that the first foundation of this house by William de Lisewis was for a Prior and CANONS, as a distinct establishment, and that afterwards Godefridus de Lisewis gave it to the prior of Castleacre, obliging that house to maintain MONKS here. Nothing, however, occurs in the Register of Castleacre to corroborate this conjecture. In fol. 54 there are three charters from William de Lisewis to that monastery, bestowing lands and tithes in Reinham, but without any direct mention of the Ccll.

^b See the charter in the Appendix, Num. I. The witnesses to this charter are, William prior of Lewes, Richard Coleman, Alexander the prior's notary, Philip de Mortimer, his "socii," (that is, his monks) Eustace the clerk, John and Godfrey le Halent, Geoffrey the chamberlain, and one or two more, with Seman the cook, and Hamo the earl's servant. The following is the comment upon this List by the continuator of Blomfield, as to the date of the foundation of this priory: "From this," he says, "it appears first, that Godfrey (de Lisewis) had a lordship in South-Reinham, and by this grant gave part of it to this Priory, which became also a lordship: secondly, we may have some knowledge of the time of this grant; Philip de Mortimer, who was at this time one of the chief monks of Lewes, was after Prior of Castleacre, and occurs so in 1203, so that it is probable it was in the time of King Henry the Second: thirdly, it is likely Hamon, the earl's servant here mentioned, was servant to the Earl Warren, whose ancestors founded the priories of Lewes and Castleacre. It is probable that the family of Lisewyse might hold some fees or lands under the Earl Warren."

Priory of Slevesholm, in Norfolk:

A Cell to Castleacre Priory.

SLEVESHOLME Priory, commonly called Slusham, or Slewsham, was situated in the parish of Methwold, about a mile and a half west of the church of that village, in the hundred of Grimshoe.

It appears to have been founded in the reign of King Stephen, by William earl of Warren and Surrey, who by Deed gave a certain island in the moor or fen of Melewode, called Slevesholm, in pure and perpetual alms, to God, Saint Mary, and All Saints, and to Paul the monk and his brethren serving God there; and, after the death of Paul, to him who should succeed there as prior.^a Tanner speaks of it as dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary only: Blomfield, that it was dedicated to the Virgin Mary and St. Giles.

John earl of Warren, in the third of Edward the Second, A.D. 1309, confirmed the donation of his ancestor, and directed that the prior of Slevesholm should be nominated by the prior of Castleacre, and that he should be presented before institution to him the earl of Warren, or his heirs, who alone were to admit him to the administration of the temporal possessions.^b

At what time Slevesholm first became a Cell to Castleacre is not quite clear; but William earl of Warren, about A.D. 1222, wrote to Pandulph bishop of Norwich, desiring him to grant to the monks of Acre the church of Melewde, confirmed to them by the predecessors of the same bishop, to furnish fire for the guests and poor resorting to the monastery.^c In another letter he requests the same bishop to grant his protection to the monks dwelling in the Isle of Slevesholm, which he had given them; that is, confirmed to them of the gift of his ancestors.^d

The last Instrument preserved by Dugdale in the Appendix to the present Account is a deed of Hamelin earl of Warren. It appears to relate to the fee of Slevesholm more than to the monastery; and confirms an exchange of two acres and a rood of land near the East Marsh for two others and a rood and half in Norcroft, appropriated to the church of St. George of Melewde, which was the parish-church.^e

Blomfield has preserved the following names of the

PRIORS of SLEVESHOLM.

PAUL, mentioned in the grant of William earl of Warren in the time of Stephen.

At the Dissolution the priory of Slevesholm was granted to the Mundifords of Feltwell: and Francis, son of Osbert Mundiford, Esq. had livery of it in the 23d Eliz. in the patent of which it is called a hospital.ⁱ In 1600 Edmund Mundiford held it. After this, Blomfield says, it was possessed by Captain Smith, of Croxton, who conveyed it to Edward Saunders Seabright, Esq. Sir Thomas Seabright, Bart. died possessed of it in 1736. Priory of Wenlock, anciently called Winnicas, IN SHROPSHIRE.

of Arundel, Chichester, and Shrewsbury,^d a person of vast possessions, rebuilt and endowed this monastery in the 14th Will. Conqueror, placing therein a prior and convent of Cluniac monks, who were considered as a cell to the house De Caritate in France: though, in Prynne, Wenlock is mentioned as a cell to the abbey of Cluny.^e

The possessions of this priory, as recorded in the Domesday Survey, will be found in the Appendix, Num. III.^f

Upon an Inquisition taken in the 29th Edw. I. it was found that the Cell of Prene, in Shropshire, was held of the lords of the castle of Holgod; and the priors of Wenlock used to present to the same, when vacant, to the Keepers of the said Castle, who had no other right to the said Cell than only the keeping thereof till such presentation were made.ⁱ

During the wars between England and France, Wenlock suffered the same fate as other Alien Priors. An extent of its possessions, taken in 1380, when in the king's hands, will be found in the Appendix, Num. VIII. followed by another Instrument, dated in the 18th Ric. II. declaring it "Prioratus indigena."^k

The Deed of Geoffry de Say for the Manor of Dudintun.

WHEREAS time is apt to alter what is present, to the end that the truth of the matter may not be question'd by posterity, be it known as well to all present as to come, that I Geoffry de Say with the consent of Adelisa de Chemey my wife, have deliver'd to the prior of St. Milburga of Wenlock, and the convent of the said house, all my manor of Dudintun, which is the dower of the aforesaid Adelisa my wife, on the part of Hugh de Piris, entirely with all its appurtenances, so that I reserve to myself nothing in the aforesaid manor for eight years to come, for 160 marks, which the same prior of Wenlock and the convent of the same house have given me for the same. But when these eight years are expir'd, the same prior and convent shall pay to the aforesaid Adelisa my wife yearly 14*l.* sterling, at these two terms, at the feast of St. Mary in March 7*l.* and at the feast of St. Michael 7*l.* And to the end that this contract between me and the prior and convent might be firm and stable, I have confirm'd it with the impression of my seal. These being witnesses, Martin de Hosa; Roger Porter of Wenlock; Peter the son of Roger; Peter of Tigerville; Richard Fitz-Ralph; Ralph Stutevil; William chaplain of Haouvil; Ralph chaplain of Basemvil. This contract was made in the year of the Incarnation of our Lord 1180.

HENRY by the grace of God king of England, duke of Normandy and Aquitain, and earl of Anjou, to his archbishops, bishops, abbats, earls, barons, justices, sheriffs, officers and all his lieges, French and English, of all England, greeting. Be it known to you that I have granted, and by this my present charter confirm'd the reasonable contract made between Geoffry de Say, and the monks of Wenlock, with the consent of Adelisa de Cadinneto, wife of the same Geoffry, of the manor of Dudintun, which is the dower of the said Adelisa; as the deed of the aforesaid Geoffry, and the deed of the same monks do testify. Wherefore it is my will and I firmly enjoyn, that the same contract made between them be firm and stable, and that it be firmly and solidly observ'd between them as it is made, and the aforesaid deeds do testify. Witnesses, Earl William Mandevil; Earl William of Salisbury; Richard of Dufay; Richard Lucy; Gilbert Pipard; Reginald Lucy; Robert Stuter; Hugh Creissy; Gervase Canvil. At Ivrey.

HENRY by the grace of God king of England, duke of Normandy and Aquitain, and earl of Anjou, to his archbishops, bishops, abbats, earls, barons, justices, sheriffs, and all his officers and lieges, French and English, of all England, greeting. Know ye, that I have granted to the church of St. Milburga of Wenlock, and to the monks there serving God, in alms, and by this present charter confirm'd the manor of Dudintun, with all its appurtenances, as Hugh de Piris devis'd it to them to have and to hold, after the decease of Aelicia de Caineto who was his wife, whose dower this was; upon this condition, that when it shall please me or my heir, it shall be lawful for us to resume that manor into our property, assigning to the same monks the revenues of 11*l.* in churches, or other things. Witnesses, Richard Lucy; William Fitz-Audel, sewer; Reginald Curtenay; William Lanval; Robert Marmion; Secker Quincy; Thomas Basset; Widon Foreigner; William Fitz-Ralph; Randal Broc. At Bruges.

The Charter of King Henry the III^d. concerning the same Manor.

HENRY by the grace of God king of England, lord of Ireland, and duke of Aquitain, to the archbishops, bishops, abbats, priors, earls, barons, judges, sheriffs, governours, officers, and all his bailiffs and leiges, greeting. Whereas it appears to us by inspection of the roles in our Exchequer, as well in the time of the Lord King Henry our grandfather, as of the Lord King Richard our uncle, and also of our Lord John our father, that the prior and convent of Wenlock have, of the gift of the aforesaid Lord King Henry our grandfather, the value of 11*l*. in land, in the manor of Dudinton in the county of Salop, in lieu whereof, as well in the times of our said progenitors as in ours, 11*l*. have been allow'd to our sheriff of Salop yearly at our Exchequer in the body of the said county. We holding the said donation as firm and acceptable do grant and confirm the same for us and our heirs to Aymon, now prior of Wenlock, and his successors and the aforesaid monks, to have and to hold, without let of us and our heirs, in lordships, homages, villenages, revenues, woods, meadows, and all other its appurtenances for ever, as freely and entirely as the predecessors of the aforesaid prior were wont in past times to possess them in the best and freest manner. These being witnesses, the venerable father Giles Sart, bishop; William of Valentia; Peter of Savoy; Philip Basset, our justice of England; John Maunsel treasurer of York; Robert Walerand; Ebulo of Mons; Humbert Pugeis; Ingeram Percy; Peter Nevil; William Trublevill, and others. Given with our hand at Westminster the 5th day of February, in the 46th year of our reign.

The seal to this is quite lost, the labell of red and green silk still remaining.

The Deed of William Mitleton disclaiming all Right to a Yard Land.

BE it known to all present and to come, that I William, the son of William, of Mitleton, in the court of the lord prior of Wenlock at Burton, on St. Gregory's day, in the 11th year of the reign of King Henry, the son of John, did acknowledge, that I neither have nor ever had any right to a yard land, with the appurtenances at Mitleton, which my father William held there for his life, which I had also after his death, for some time unjustly intruded myself into, and I have abjur'd the same for myself, and all my heirs for ever, and wholly quitted claim to God, and the blessed virgin Milburga, and the prior and convent of Wenlock. And in testimony hereof have affix'd my seal to this writing. These being witnesses, William chaplain of Drayton; Robert chaplain of Stokes; Roger of Burwardesly; Thomas of Cestreton; Hugh of Bracton; Hugh of Ley; Ralph of Lantor; Nicholas of Optun; Philip parson of Grete; Adam parson of Acton; John of Beckeburton; Henry of Botten; Walter Fitz-Baldwin; John of Rochale; William of Mughale; William of Laverdene; Thomas of Laverdene; William Kangelot; William Ward; Alan of Longevill; Alan Fitz-william; Richard Fitz-william; Walter More; Walter de la Lee; and many more.

The COMMON SEAL of the priory appears to have been very ancient. It is a coarse representation of Saint Milburga, the foundress. She is sitting in a homely dress, with an instrument like a two-pronged fork on her right shoulder. No part of the legend remains but the letters si at the beginning. The impression of this seal is attached to a document made in the time of prior Humbert, who is a party to it, and whose Seal is also appendant to the Deed. This Seal does not seem so ancient, and is of handsomer appearance. The subject is a whole length of St. Milburga, with a book in her left hand, and in her right a bunch of flowers. The legend is double; of the outside, the word SIGILLVM is all that is left; the inside one is SANCTA MILBVRGA. The impressions are both on green wax. The Deed has been kindly communicated to the editors by William Hamper, Esq.^a

A different Conventual Seal of Wenlock to the one here described is appendant to the Harleian Deed 83 D. 3,^b of the 30th Hen. VIII. The impression is oval. In an writing, Adam Fitz-william, clerk of Mitleton, greeting in our Lord. Be it known to you all, that I have granted and given for myself, and my heirs for ever, all the right and claim I had or could have to a yard of land with appurtenances, which I once held at Mitleton, to the prior and convent and the church of St. Milburga of Wenlock. I have also granted to the aforesaid prior and convent thirteen marks and an half in money, which Richard the son of Alan, the priest of Burewarton, ow'd me for the aforesaid land, for an hundred shillings sterling, which the said prior and convent gave me. Of which said thirteen marks and an half, I gave six marks to the works of the aforesaid church, for the health of my soul; wherefore it is my will, that the aforesaid Richard be wholly answerable to the said prior and convent of Wenlock, for the said mony, and that he fully and solidly pay to them, and their church aforesaid, the abovemention'd mony. In testimony whereof I have affix'd my seal to the present writing. These being witnesses, Roger of Pynelesdon; Roger parson of Stirchly; Thomas le Mercer; Peter the son of Peter of Calweten; Richard Chamberlain; Walter Bon Valet; and others.

The seal appending in green wax imperfect.

Composition between Simon Dean of Brug and the Convent of Wenlock, about the Church of Dudinton.

BE it known to all the sons of our holy mother the church, who shall see or hear these letters, that there was a cause depending between S. dean of Brug, and the prior and convent of Wenlock, about the church of Dudinton, the which our lord pope Celestin the Third, committed to the lord H. bishop of Lincoln, R. deacon of Lincoln, and W. archdeacon of Norfolk, to be canonically decided. But after much altercation, and many proposals on both sides, at length the contention was, by common consent of the parties, adjusted by an amicable composition, in this manner. That the prior and convent of Wenlock shall pay two pieces of gold yearly at the feast of St. Michael by the way of transaction to the dean of Brug and his successors; so that the church aforesaid of Dudinton shall for ever remain to the prior and convent of Wenlock free and quit, without any reclaiming and exaction, except the payment of the two pieces of gold aforesaid. And to the end that this composition solemnly ordain'd as abovesaid, by the common advice of the parties, between the dean of Brug, and the church of Wenlock, may for ever remain valid and unshaken, it is confirm'd by the authority of this writing, and of the seals of both parties. These being witnesses, R. archdeacon of Gloucester; master Erard canon of Gloucester; Matthew, prior of Wellebec, Adam and John masters; Philip of Beggesour; Hugh de Brug; Warin of Burwardesley; Warin of Willey; Philip of Lanley; and many more.

The seal to this last, and no date to it but only the pontificate of Pope Celestin the Third, above mention'd, shews it to have been between the years 1191 and 1198.

^a See the Appendix, Num. VI.

^b The Instrument is an Indenture between John prior of St. Milburgh of Moch Wenloke and the convent on the one part, and Richard Wylde and Randal Massr on the other, and witnesses “that wher the said Richard and Rondulzt have don and yett doo dayly service within the said monasterie in the chore and the churche ther in recompence whereof for their exhibition to wards their forder lernyng and erudicion the said prior and convent moved by their mere and pityfull charite of Inscribed SIGILL' ECCLE' VALIS . MONACHORVM . D' . WENLOK. The Counter-seal, on the reverse, represents the half-figure of a female with a crozier.

* SANCTA MILBURGA.

Moore, who, in his Monastic Remains, gives a view of Wenlock abbey as it existed in 1787, says, "If the situation of Wenlock abbey (from its proximity to the town, which has nothing to recommend it) is inferior to most religious houses, there are few better deserving notice for richness of architecture, of which the inside exhibits fine specimens, in curiously turned arches, and pillars of elegant proportion: other parts detached from the grand mass are visible. Adjoining to this building are three circular arches, enriched with undulating fillet-work. Many years ago, great part of the abbey was pulled down, to rebuild some houses; and only four years since, when the view was drawn, one of the clustered pillars of the church was nearly levelled with the ground, and a cart waited in the abbey to carry away the materials." ^a

The entrance to the abbey from the town was by a stone Gateway, one tower of which is remaining.

The following were the dimensions of the church:

Whole length of remains from east to west, 401 feet.

Length of nave of church, 156 feet: of the space under the middle tower, 39 feet: and of the Lady chapel, 48 feet by 40.

Breadth of nave and aisles, 66 feet.

[W. Malmesb. fol. 50 b.]

—MILBURGA, filia Merewaldi fratris Wlpheri Merciorum regis, apud Weneloch requiescit, olim ab accolis nota, sed post adventum Normannorum, dum nescitur locus sepulchri, aliquandiu oblivioni data. Nuper verò adunato ibi conventu monachorum Cluniacensium, dum inchoata novi templi machina, quidam puer per pavementum concitatiùs cursitaret, effracta mausolei fovea, perpalam corpus virginis fecit; tunc balsamici odoris aura per ecclesiam spirante altiùs levatum tot miracula præbuit, ut catervatim eò populorum undæ confluerent, vix patuli campi capiebant agmina viatorum, dum æquis umbonibus dives et mendicus se agerent, cunctos in commune præcipitante fide. Nec cassum eventum res habuit, adeò ut nullus inde nisi extincta vel mitigata valetudine discederet, nonnullosque regius morbus, medicis sanè incurabilis, per merita virginis relinqueret.

[Ibid. fol. 164 a.]

—APUD Wenloch fuit antiquissima sanctimonialium habitatio. Ibiq; beatissima Milburga, soror sanctæ Mildredæ, neptis Pendæ, regis Merciorum ex filio, transegit vitam, et sita est. Sed locum omnino desertum prædictus comes, scilicet Rogerus comes de Montegomerico, monachis Cluniacensibus implevit, ubi modò speciosa germina virtutum conantur in cælum.

Enimverò sepulchrum virginis clàm erat novis advenis, omnibus videlicet vetustatis monumentis violentia hostium, et temporum, deletis.

[Johan. Capgrav. de Vitis Sanctorum, fol. 232 a.]

—BEATA igitur Milburga, sicut suis progenitoribus piis, Merwaldo et Dompnevæ, Merciorum dominis, lux primogenita extitit, sic in regno parentum Deo sacratis virginibus viduisque dux primaria vitæ cœlestis præfulsit. Constructo enim in loco qui Winnicas antiquitus dicebatur monasterio, modo dicto Wenloke, virginibus congregatis præfuit ipsa mater, et vitæ regularis magistra, &c. Septimo kal. Julii migravit ad Christum, et in monasterio suo cum honore sepelitur.

Priory of Dudley, in Worcestershire.

UDLEY Priory, as will appear by one or two of the Instruments in the Appendix, was formerly reckoned, with the parish in which it stands, as part of Staffordshire, by which county it is surrounded on all sides ; but it now belongs to Worcestershire. As long ago even as 1291, the priory is stated in Pope Nicholas the Fourth's Taxation to be in the diocese of Worcester.

Gervase Painell, says Tanner, lord of the manor of Dudley, and of several others in these parts, fulfilled his father Ralph's design to found a monastery near his castle here, which he did before the year 1161 ;^a and replenished it with Cluniac monks from Wenlock, to which this priory was accounted a Cell.^b It was dedicated to St. James.

In the year 1190, Pope Lucius confirmed the monks here in their privileges and possessions. Among these were St James's church, St. Edmund's and St. Thomas's churches or chapels, in Dudley ; the churches of Northphel, Seggeslei, Portfield, Inglefield, Bratefield, with the chapels of Coston and Inglefield, all of the gift of Gervase Painell ; Womburne or Wenburne church, with Tresel chapel, given by Guido de Offeni ; Scille church, by Ralph Seille ; the village of Chyrchille, by Agnes Somery ; Saredune, by Osbert Kenefare ; lands in Wolynton, by Robert de Cleanden ; and in Ingepenne, by John Mansell.^c

In the 13th Edw. I. the prior had license to assart and dispark a heath in the forest of Kinsare, adjoining to the manor of Wodeford.^d

The following are the entries in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas the Fourth, A. D. 1291, relating to this priory :

"Dioc. Wygorn. Temp. Prior de Doddeleye habet apud Doddel. unam carucatam terræ et valet per annum viginti solid. et habet ibidem de reddit. assis. triginta solid. Et sacrista habet ibidem de redd. assis. quatuor solid. et sex denar. Et habet apud Chirchull de reddit. assis. viginti solid. [Ex ipso autographo penes Edwardum dominum Dudley, an. 1640.]

Lucius episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis Everardo priori ecclesiæ de Dudleia ejusque fratribus, tam præsentibus quam futuris, regularem vitam professis imperpetuum. Qui postpositis sæcularibus desideriis sub regulari disciplina suam voverunt Domino servitutem, apostolico debent patrocinio communiri, ne in sui propositi executione tepescant si pravorum fuerint injuriis lacerati. Ea propter dilecti in Domino filii vestris justis postulationibus clementer annuimus, et præfatam ecclesiam in qua divino estis obsequio mancipati, sub B. Petri et nostra protectione suscipimus et præsentis scripti privilegio communimus. In primis siquidem statuantes ut ordo monasticus qui secundum Deum et B. Benedicti regulam atque institutionem Cluniacensium fratrum in eadem ecclesia noscitur institutus, perpetuis ibidem temporibus inviolabiliter observetur. Præterea quasunque possessiones quasunque bona eadem ecclesia in præsentiarum justè et canonicè possidet, aut in futurum concessione pontificum, largitione regum vel principum, oblatione fidelium, seu aliis justis modis, præstante Domino, poterit adipisci, firma vobis vestrisque successoribus illibata permaneant. In quibus hæc propriis duximus exprimenda vocabulis. Ecclesiam sancti Jacobi de Dudelei, et capellas ejusdem villæ sancti Edmundi et S., ecclesiam de Seggeslei cum pertinentiis suis, ecclesiam de Portfeld cum capella de Coston, ecclesiam de Ingle cum pertinentiis suis, ecclesiam de Bratefelde cum capella de Englefeld, de donatione Gervasii Paganelli; ecclesiam de Womburne, cum capella de Tresel et aliis pertinentiis suis, de donatione Guidonis de Offeni; ecclesiam de Seille cum pertinentiis suis, de donatione Radulfi de Seille; ex donatione Agnetis de Somery, villam de Chyrchille cum pertinentiis suis; ex donatione Osberti de Kenefara, villam de Saredune cum pertinentiis suis; ex donatione Roberti de Chandeu, unam virgatam terræ in villa de Wolyntone; et terras de Ingepenne, ex dono Johannis Mansell. Sepulturam præterea ipsius loci liberam esse decernimus ut eorum devotioni et extremæ voluntati qui se illic sepeliri deliberaverint, nisi fortè excommunicati vel interdicti sint nullus obsistat; salva tamen justitia illarum ecclesiarum a quibus mortuorum corpora assumuntur. Cum autem generale interdictum terræ fuerit liceat vobis clausis januis, non pulsatis campanis, exclusis excommunicatis et interdictis, suppressa voce divina officia celebrare. Sane novalium vestrorum quæ propriis manibus aut sumptibus colitis, sive de nutrimentis animalium vestrorum nullus à vobis decimas exigere vel extorquere præsumat. In parochialibus autem ecclesiis quas habetis liceat vobis clericos vel sacerdotes eligere et diocæsano episcopo præsentare, quibus si idonei fuerint episcopus curam animarum committat, ut ei de spiritualibus vobis verò de temporalibus debeant respondere. Liceat vobis quoque clericos vel laicos è seculo fugientes liberos et absolutos ad conversionem vestram recipere, et eos absque contradictione aliqua retinere. Prohibemus insuper ne quis post factam in ecclesia vestra professionem nisi arctioris religionis optentu discedere de eodem loco præsumat. Discedentem verò sine communium literarum cautione nullus audeat retinere. Antiquas quoque et rationabiles consuetudines in ecclesia vestra hactenus observatas futuris temporibus ratas decernimus permanere. Decernimus ergo ut nulli omnino hominum liceat præfatum monasterium in aliquo perturbare aut ejus possessiones auferre vel ablatas retinere, minuere, aut quibuslibet vexationibus fatigare, sed omnia integra conserventur eorum pro quorum gubernatione et sustentatione concessa sunt usibus omnimodis profutura, salva sedis apostolicæ auctoritate et diocæsani episcopi canonica justitia, et debita reverentia Cluniacen. ecclesiæ. Si qua igitur in futurum ecclesiastica secularisve persona hanc nostræ constitutionis paginam sciens contra eam temerè venire tentaverit, secundò tertiove commonita, nisi reatum suum congrua satisfactione correxerit, potestatis honorisque sui dignitate careat, reamque se divino judicio existere de perpetrata iniquitate cognoscat, et à sacratissimo corpore ac sanguine Dei et Domini redemptoris nostri Jesu Christi aliena fiat, atque in extremo examine districtæ ultioni subjaceat. Cunctis autem eidem loco sua jura servantibus sit pax Domini nostri Jhesu Christi quatenus et hic fructum bonæ actionis percipiant, et apud districtum judicem præmia æternæ pacis inveniant. Amen.

[Ex ipso autographo penes Edw. dominum Dudley anno 1640.]

SCIANT præsentis et futuri, quod ego G. Painel, Radulfi Painel patris mei propositum considerans, qui in vitâ suâ religiosorum fratrum conventum apud Dudile stabilire proposuerat; specialiter pro animâ ejus cæterorumque antecessorum meorum, et pro salute meâ et Isabellæ uxoris meæ, et Roberti filii mei, omniumque meorum, patris mei suppleo propositum: do igitur et concedo, et hac meâ cartâ confirmo in perpetuam elemosynam, Deo et sancto Jacobo de Dudlie, et sanctæ Wylburgæ de Weneloc, et monachis apud Dudile Deo servientibus, terram in quâ prædicta ecclesia sancti Jacobi sita est, et quæ certis divisis terminatur. Do etiam prædictis monachis de Dudile, ecclesiam S. Edmundi et S. Thomæ de Dudile, et ecclesiam de Norhphel, et ecclesiam de Segesle et ecclesiam de Iggepenne, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis et libertatibus. Do insuper eis ecclesiam de Bradefel, post decessum Johannis personæ, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis. Do etiam eis dimidiam hydram in Chirrch-hullâ, et reliquam partem villæ, quæ Agnes contulit prædictæ ecclesiæ sancti Jacobi de Dudile, cum corpore suo, dari concessi, cum appenditiis suis, quæ tota est de feodo meo. Si quis autem hominum meorum, sive miles, vel cujuscumque conditionis fuerit, aliquid proprii juris monachis sancti Jacobi conferre voluerit, quancumque illud sit, ratum habeo: ita tamen ut ego et hæredes mei, servicium quod ad nos pertinet non admittamus. Et in quibuscumque pascuis mea dominica pecora pascantur ibidem et monachorum pecora de Dudile, sine contradictione pascantur, exceptis parcis meis.

Concedo etiam eis padnagium de propriis porcis suis, et hominum suorum in elemosynâ meâ residentium, per foresta mea. Do etiam eis decimam panis mei, et venationum, et piscium, quam diu apud Dudile, vel in Herdenâ morabor. Ad ædificia quoque sua propria, et ad alia esyamenta sua, capiant necessaria, exceptis hais meis et parcis, per visum dapiferi mei. Libertates etiam, quas eis donare possum, libenter dono, cum soc, et sac, et tol, et tac, et tem. Prior vero de Weneloc fratres, quos voluerit de sibi commissis, in monasterio sancti Jacobi de Dudile, ad servendum Deo stabiliet, et eis priorem, de monachis suis, consilio et assensu meo et hæredum meorum constituet: et si removeri debeat, consilio et assensu mei et hæredum meorum, et prioris de Weneloc removebitur. Et quando prædicta domus de Dudile conventum sustinere potuerit, prior de Weneloc, consilio conventus, et mei, et hæredum meorum, conventum ibidem constituet. Hanc donationem feci et confirmavi, et propriâ manu meâ optuli super altare sanctæ Mylburgæ de Weneloc, coram conventu, et super altare S. Jacobi de Dudile, coram monachis ejusdem loci. Priory of Bermondsey, in Surrey:

AFTERWARDS ERECTED INTO AN

Abbey.

ISHOP Tanner's deduction from the various statements respecting the foundation of this house, is, perhaps, that upon which we may place the best reliance.

Aylwin Child, he says, citizen of London, about the year 1082,^a began a new and fair church in Southwark to the honour of our Holy Saviour,^b with design to place therein a convent of monks of the Cluniac Order, who were procured from the Priory de Caritate in France by means of Archbishop Lanfranc, A. D. 1089; ^c about which time King William Rufus^d augmented the small estate which Aylwin had procured for these religious with the grant of the manor of Bermondsey and other revenues.

Messrs. Manning and Bray, in their History of Surrey, have taken great pains to ascertain the gradual increase of the revenues of the house; and have arranged the different donations made to it chronologically: taking first the temporal, and afterwards the spiritual possessions of the priory. Much of this information, which we shall carefully condense, was provided to their hands by the Chronicle of Bermondsey preserved in the Harleian library.^e

^a This is the year mentioned in the Chronicle of Bermondsey. But Leland, Stow, Reyner, &c. place it in 1081.

^b Not where the present church of our Saviour is, but on the other side of the Borough, near St. Mary Magdalene's Bermondsey, in the place commonly called King John's Court. Maitland, p. 1388.

^c See Lel. Collect. tom. i. p. 263. Compare also Num. I. in the VOL. V.

Appendix to the present account, sub anno, where the names of the first monks are recorded. De Caritate was the monastery of La Charité sur Loire.

^d Not King Henry the First, as Reyner.

^e The more material contents of which will be found in the Appendix.

Temporalities of the Priory.

A. D. 1082, 16 Will. Conq. Diverse rents in the city of London of the gift of Aylwin Child their founder;^a which were confirmed to them by Rufus, and afterwards by King Henry the First.

A. D. 1092, 5 Will. Ruf. The manor of Bridesthorn; three virgates and a half of land in Widon; six virgates in Hardwick, which in Henry the First's charter of confirmation are called three hides; a rent-charge of ten shillings a year out of a mill at Sutton; half the manor of Upton near Blebury, Berks; with lands called Melneham, were all given to the priory by Wynebald de Baalun and Roger his son.^b But the monks sold the four former of these, some time after, in order to purchase of Pagan de Beauchamp the manor of Richmond, alias Bengeloh, in the county of Hertford, for which they gave him a hundred and sixty marks.^c

The manor of Preston, near Yeovil, in the county of Somerset, containing two hides, was also given by Ansger Brito, a knight of Wynebald de Baalun, in 1092.^d It was confirmed to the monks on a trial upon a writ of Quo Warranto brought by the crown against the abbat and convent in 1417, 5th Hen. V. when it appeared that they were bound to provide two chaplains to pray for the soul of the donor forever.^e

A. D. 1093, 6 Will. Ruf. The manor of Charlton in Kent, with its appurtenances, was given by Robert Bloet bishop of Lincoln, chancellor of England.^f In the 53d Hen. III. the monks of Bermondsey obtained a charter for a weekly market here on Monday, and a fair on the eve, day, and morrow of the feast of the Holy Trinity.^g A manor in Hallingbury Parva in Essex, containing one hide of land, and afterwards from them called Monksbury, was given to the priory in the same year by Geoffrey Martel, with the consent of Geoffrey de Magnaville, to whom he was under-tenant.^h This, says Mr. Manning, seems to have been the same with what is elsewhere called the manor of Chantre,ⁱ whereof John de Burg, jun. passed a fine in 7th Edw. I. recognising the right of the convent.^k

A. D. 1094, 7 Will. Ruf. Two hides of land at De la Stone,^l in the county of Somerset, were given by Walter son of Ansger Brito above-mentioned; and two hides of land in Hoddesdon and Amwell, co. Hertf. by Peter de St. Olave. The former is said, indeed, in the Chronicle, to have been given to the priory in 1095, and the latter in the year following:^m but Aylwin, the founder, who died in 1094, being a witness to the charter by which these grants were confirmed, we cannot place them lower.

The manor of Bermondsey, which had hitherto been royal demesne, was this year, also, given to the priory by the king. The charter indeed is without date: but we cannot put it lower than this year for the reason already assigned, Aylwin, the founder, dying in the very beginning of it: nor can it be placed higher; because some of the grants confirmed by it were not made till after the beginning of the year.ⁿ In the 5th Hen. V. 1417, upon a trial on a writ of Quo Warranto brought against their title to the manor, the Abbat and Convent obtained a verdict in their favour against the claim of the crown.^o King William Rufus also, in the charter just mentioned, confirmed to the priory their lands in London, Charlton, Estunas, Hoddesdon, and elsewhere.

A. D. 1098, 11 Will. Ruf. The manor of Cowick, alias Cowick-bury, or Cowick-barns, and now called Quickbury, in the parish of Shering, in Essex, was this year given to the priory by Richard Guet.^p It was held by the service of one knight's fee, of the family of Warren and their descendants, as of their manor of Ovesham Hall in Matching; to the lord of which it paid 100s. upon the death of every abbat.^q

A. D. 1103, 3d Hen. I. Two hides of land at Balgeham, now called Baleham, at that time a member of Clapham, but now of Stretham, in the county of Surrey, were given by Nigel de Mandeville, with the consent of his wife.^r

A. D. 1113, 13th Hen. I. A hide of land called Withiflete, or Widflete, with a mill, and other their appurtenances in Southwark, extending also into Lambeth, Kennington, and Newington, were given by Robert Marmion.^s This land and mill, valued together at ten marks and four shillings, or 6*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* per annum, with a yearly rent-charge of 28*l.* 13*s.* 11*d.* they had licence to convey, in 12th Edw. II. to the archbishop of Canterbury, in exchange for the advowson of Croydon, and two acres of land, of the yearly value of 2*s.*^t But this exchange never took effect. In 1434, this estate, by the name of the Mills of Widflete, with a certain garden called Paris Garden, and certain lands, tenements, meadows, and pastures, in Southwark, Kennington, Lambeth, and Newington, were held of the abbey, at the aforesaid rent of 6*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* per annum, by the Knights Hospitallers.^u In fact, the monks of Bermondsey kept possession of the premises till within a year and a half of their dissolution, when Robert Parfew, their abbat (then lately made bishop of St. Asaph), prevailed with them to convey them to the king. Accordingly, by their deed dated 17th June, 28 Hen. VIII. the said abbat and convent did give, grant, and confirm unto the king, his heirs, and successors, for ever, "all that theyr manor or hyde of Southwerk, with the members and appurtenances, in the county of Surrey, and all and syngler their messuages, lands, tenements, rents, reversions, services, meadows, lesues, woodes, pastures, advowsons, waters, poles, comyns, fyshyngs, and all and syngler theyre appertenaunces, in the parysshes of Seynt Margaret and Seynt George in the sayde countye of Surrey, except and reserved unto the said abbat and convent, and to their successors, one annual pencion of twenty sterlyngs goyng out yerely of the rectorye or parysshe churche of Seynt George aforesaid." And this Deed was confirmed by act of parliament.^x

A. D. 1114, 14th Hen. III. The manor of Kynwardeston, with its appurtenances, in the county of Somerset, was given to the priory this year by Mary, wife of Eustace earl of Boulogne, and sister of Maud the queen of Henry the First; and confirmed to the monks after her death (the year following) by Eustace her husband and Stephen her son.^y

About this time also, or, according to the Annals of Bermondsey, in 1118, William de Belmeis gave the manor of Andretesbury to the Convent;^z which they shortly after exchanged with Ivo de Grentmaishill for the manor of Widford, in Hertfordshire containing two hides of land : and this exchange was confirmed by the king.^a But Ivo having mortgaged his estates^b to Robert earl of Mellent and Leicester, for five hundred marks, toward defraying the expences of his journey to the Holy Land, and dying on his way thither, Robert kept possession of Widford with consent of the priory, and restored to them Andretesbury again : and on this footing the matter rested during the reign of Henry the First.^c At length, sometime in the following reign, Robert earl of Leicester, son of Robert aforesaid, gave them Widford for Andretesbury again ;^d and from this circumstance has been considered, by the monks^e and others,^f as the original donor. This manor, with those of Upton, Bengelo, two messuages, and two carucates of the manor of Monksbury, and the manor of Cowick, were demised, temp. Edw. I. to Adam de Stratton, who was ejected on a writ of Quo Waranto brought against him in the 6th of that king, for non-payment of his fine for the alienation of it ; whereupon they were seized into the king's hands,^g but restored to the convent in 18 Edw. I.^h Being demised a second time to Stratton, they became forfeited, anno 30, for a felony by him committed, and thereby escheated to the Crown again, and were again restored to the convent, who obtained a further confirmation of them from Edward II.ⁱ and continued in possession of them till the dissolution of their house.

About this time, also, the manor of Broxbourn, in Hertfordshire, was given to the convent by Ivo de Grentmaison aforesaid, being part of the inheritance of Adelize his mother.^k But Robert earl of Mellent and Leicester coming afterwards into possession of his estates in the manner above related, it was given by Robert, his grandson, to the Knights Hospitallers.^l

A. D. 1122, 22 Hen. I. Thomas Arden and Thomas his son gave the church of St. George in Southwark, and tithes of corn in Horndon, and lands belonging to London Bridge rendering a rent of five shillings, and all the small tithes "in prædicta villâ" of wool, cheese, lambs, calves, colts, and all other titheable things :^m which grant of St. George's church King Henry the First confirmed.ⁿ

A. D. 1127, 27 Hen. I. One moiety of Retherhithe, the manor of Dulwich in Camberwell, one hide of land in Southwark, and the manor of Whaddon, or Woddens, in Croydon, were all given to the priory this year by the king. Retherhithe, says Mr. Manning, seems to have been originally a part of the manor of Bermondsey, but retained by William Rufus when he granted the rest to the priory. It was only one moiety of Retherhithe that was now given to the monastery ; the rest being granted about the same time to Robert, natural son of King Henry the First. The grant of Dulwich is what was meant by the inquest in 7th Edw. I. when they reported that Henry the First gave Camberwell to the convent. Whaddon they kept possession of till the 14th Ric. II. when they conveyed it to the archbishop of Canterbury in exchange for the rectory of Croydon.^o

At the same time that King Henry the First gave these last-mentioned estates to the priory, he confirmed to it also whatever had been given by his predecessor and others in Bermondsey, Charleton, Hallingbury, Widford, Preston, Stone, Balgeham, Hoddesdon, London, Kynewardeston, and elsewhere.^p

Some time in this reign Robert de Augi, or Ewe, younger son of William earl of Ewe, gave a messuage,^q with certain lands and tenements called Wishfields, or Westridge-fields, and Wishfield Grove, in the parish of Doding-hurst, in Essex, to this priory ;^r and this grant was confirmed by Thomas de Brienchun his son, and John Earl of Ewe his nephew.

A. D. 1137, 3 Steph. the king granted to the monks of Bermondsey a rent of forty shillings in Southwark : and in 1141 an extended charter of privileges and immunities.^s

A. D. 1142, 7 Steph. The same king gave this priory Grave, or Grove, a member of Wantage, in Berks ; and a messuage and lands called Wykes, with the villans and their services, and a mill there.^t

A. D. 1143, 8 Steph. William Fitz-Helton gave a mill at Frenyngham, i. e. Farningham, in Kent.^u They had also lands and tenements called Monkyn Lands in this and the neighbouring lordships of Horton-Kirby and Sutton at Hone.

A. D. 1144, 9 Steph. The manor of Warlington, or Warlingham, in Surrey, was given to the convent by William de Watteville, with the consent of Robert, William, and Otwell, his sons.^x In the 11th Edw. II. the monks of Bermondsey had licence to demise this manor to Robert de Kelesey for life.^y

A. D. 1145, 10 Steph. The moiety of Greenwich, i. e. that part of it which was called West Greenwich, and afterwards Deptford, was given to the convent by Walchelin de Mamynot.^z

A. D. 1152, 17 Steph. Alan Pirot gave six thousand herrings to the convent out of his manor of Erchelawis, with one acre of land.^a

The convent had also two carucates of land at Legham, in the parish of Godstone, in Surrey, given them probably, and about this time, by Ela wife of Jordan de Sackville, (who also gave other lands there to the manor of Sutton at Hone in Kent, belonging to the knights hospitallers, and) whose first husband, William de Marci, gave one third of the tithes of Cobham to this house. These lands were holden of the king in capite, in frank-almoigne ; and were demised in the 30th Edw. I. to Thomas Romaine and Juliana his wife, for their lives, at five marks a year.^b

A. D. 1157, 3 Hen. II. Walchelin de Mamynot, son of Walchelin abovementioned, gave a rent-charge of ten shillings per annum issuing out of a mill in his manor of Deptford.^c

A. D. 1160, 6 Hen. II. The king granted to the monastery this year an extensive charter of confirmation of all their estates and privileges.^d

A. D. 1168, 14 Hen. II. Walchelin de Mamynot, just mentioned gave a further rent-charge of sixty shillings per annum out of his lordship of Chippenham in Dillehurst,^e which was confirmed to them by Geoffrey de Say, his sister's son.^f

A. D. 1173, 19 Hen. II. This priory received from the king a charter of free-warren over all their lands in Surrey.^g

A. D. 1181, 27 Hen. II. A mill at Bedford was given by Milo de Beauchamp and Pagan his heir.^h

A. D. 1191, 3 Ric. II. Robert de Ciltern gave ten acres of land to the priory in Chilterne.ⁱ

A. D. 1194, 6 Rich. I. The lordship of Oswaldston in the parish of Lyd, in Kent, and the land of John the clerk in Bilsington, were given by Henry earl of Augi, or Ewe.^k

The prior and convent having purchased of William son of Andrew de Revel certain lands at Cokenhatch Parva in North-Hampsted, near Barkway, in the county of Hertford, (which had formerly belonged to Ascetil and his son

A. D. 1270, 55 Hen. III. John son of Hubert de Burg gave the manor of East Chalk in Kent to the priory:^c which grant was confirmed to the monastery in the 34th Edw. III.^d

About this time, also, Roger de Leybourn, who died in the 56th of Henry III. gave to the priory the lordship of Patlesworth in Kent;^e which, in the 11th Edw. II. they demised to Sir Walter de Huntingfield for eighty marks, with a covenant to repay the same to the said Walter in the church of St. Mary Overey.^f

A. D. 1329. King Edward the Third confirmed to the monks of Bermondsey their various possessions, as contained in the charters of the different kings his predecessors.^g

A. D. 1397, 20 Ric. II. The prior and convent had a grant of the hundreds of Brixton and Wallington, with the return of writs, &c. within the same;^h which was afterwards confirmed to them by letters patent of King Henry the Sixth.ⁱ

In the same year, 21 Rich. II. the other moiety of the manor of Rotherhithe,^k was demised to the prior and convent here by the abbey of St. Mary Graces in fee-farm for ever, at the annual rent of 20*l*.^l This was the moiety which was given by King Henry the First to his natural son, Robert earl of Gloucester.

In the 7th Hen. IV. it was found, on inquisition, that the prior was in possession of twenty-two acres of land and eight acres of meadow in Rotherhithe called Brokeshall, formerly parcel of the common of the vill of Rotherhithe, without the king's licence.^m

Of the

Spiritual Possessions of the Priory

we find that

A. D. 1092, 5 Will. Ruf. The advowson of the church of Hardwick, with the tithes of Estinton, (now Easington) both in the county of Gloucester, and the advowson and tithes of Upton near Blebury, Berks, were given to the convent by Wynebald de Bralun.ⁿ The donation of Upton, indeed, is placed in the Annals of Bermondsey in the year 1152; but we find it confirmed to the priory by a charter of Rufus as early as 1094.^o Two parts of the tithes of Estinton were released to the rector thereof by the convent in the 36th Hen. III. anno 1252, in consideration of twenty shillings to be paid to the priory yearly on the octaves of Pentecost.^p

The advowson of the church and the tithes of Omeney, now Amney, in the county of Gloucester, were also given to the convent this year, by Odo de Tirone, a knight of Wynebalds.^q

II. made an absolute conveyance of it to the priory.^k They continued in possession of the advowson till the suppression of the abbey; after which, viz. 12th May, 35 Hen. VIII. it was granted to Sir Richard Southwell.^l The tithes were probably alienated some time before; and on this occasion it

ⁱ Chron. Berm. Manning, vol. i. p. 193, says, "We have authority for asserting that the exchange had been made much earlier, it being stated in Domesday Book, fol. 230 a, that 'Hugo Grentesmainel, father of Yvo, in the time of the General Survey, possessed seven houses in the borough of Leicester, in right of the lordship of Andretesberie, four of which were held under him by Hugo de Witvile with sac and soc, and those expressly said to be in exchange for Wadford.' Hugh de Grentemaisnil died 1094; and his son engaging in rebellion against Henry I. 1107, was induced to undertake a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, whence he never returned, but previously pledged all his lands to Robert de Bellomont, earl of Mellent and Leicester, who, as is above mentioned in the text, confirmed them to the monks of Bermondsey."

"In Andretesberie, according to Nichols's History of Leicestershire, vol. iii. pp. 123, 124, at a place called ALDERMANSHAW, the monks of Bermondsey had a cell for three of their members. But the true situation of Andretesberie, however, appears to have been unknown to the prior and convent of Bermondsey in 1470; for, in a dispute, about that period, between the prior and the abbat of Leicester, the former alleged that there had been a parish church with a font and right of burial, but no trace of such building could be found by the inquest, but only walls of some 'heremitorium, bovarium, sive ovile;' and the prior was denied all right to the spot, and all tithes or dues from it."

might be that a pension of sixpence per annum was reserved to the convent, and another of eighteen pence per annum to the prior.^a

A. D. 1122, 22 Hen. I. The advowson of the rectory of St. George, Southwark, was given by Thomas Arden, of Horndon on the Hill; in Essex, and Thomas his son; and they continued in possession of it till the 17th June, 28 Hen. VIII. when they conveyed it to the crown.^b This church paid a pension of 20s. per annum to the priory, reserved, probably, on their relinquishing the tithes to the rector, which might have been granted to them with the advowson.^c The said Thomas, and Thomas his son, did, this year also, give them the tithe of corn in their demesne land, now called the manor of Arden Hall, in Horndon, aforesaid;^d on the alienation of which a pension was reserved to the convent of fifteen pence per annum.^e

A. D. 1127, 27 Hen. I. This year the priory obtained the king's charter, confirming to them the advowsons of Bermondsey, Fifhyde, Hardwick, and Upton, with the portions of tithe belonging to them in Alferton and Fifhyde.^f But Fifhyde was reconveyed, or otherwise relinquished, before anno 1331, when Nicholas de Beauchamp, one of the heirs of the Tani family, and afterwards the family of Scroop, appear to have presented to it.^g Hardwick also, and Upton, were afterwards taken from, or alienated by them; the former being given to the abbey of Gloucester, and the latter to the church of Salisbury.^h

They had also the advowson of the rectory of Retherhithe, probably as parcel of that moiety of the manor which was given them this year by the king. They were in possession of this at the dissolution of their convent; and received of the rector a pension of 20s. per annum.

A. D. 1132, 32 Hen. I. The king gave to the priory the advowsons of the churches of Schorn and Cobham annexed, in the county of Kent, with the tithes of corn, lambs, &c.ⁱ which were afterwards appropriated to the convent;^k and which, in 26 Edw. III. they demised to the priory of Rochester.^l The tithes given at this time were two-thirds of the whole; the remaining third was afterwards given by William de Marci, being those of his demesne.^m The pension reserved upon these to the bishop of Rochester, at the time of their appropriation,ⁿ was four marks per annum.

A. D. 1139, 5 Steph. Two parts of the tithes of Cherlton-Camville, in the county of Somerset, were given to the priory this year by Gerard de Camville.^o They were afterwards demised in perpetuity to the prior of Kenilworth, for two marks per annum, to be paid at Kynwardeston.

A. D. 1143, 8 Steph. The advowson of the church of Writtle, in Essex, was given to the priory by King Stephen;^p but taken from them again by King John, and by him given, anno 1203, to the hospital at the church of St. Mary in Saxia at Rome^q (commonly called the hospital of the Holy Ghost), to which it was confirmed by King Edward III. It was afterwards seised by the crown, as the possession of an Alien Priory, and given to William of Wickham, who, in 14 Rich. II. gave it to New College in Oxford, the present proprietors of the rectory and patrons of the vicarage.^r The rectory has a manor belonging to it still, called the manor of Romans fee.

A. D. 1150, 15 Steph. Two parts of the tithes of cattle and corn in Melcomb (i. e. Melcomb-Horsey, in the county of Dorset) were given by . . . Fitz-Osbert.^s And, in 1291, a pension of two marks per annum was paid to the priory in lieu thereof.^t

A. D. 1154, 19 Steph. The advowson of the rectory of Camberwell in Surrey, was given by William, earl of Gloucester, son of Robert, earl of Gloucester, natural son of King Henry I.;^u and this grant was confirmed by King Henry II. anno 1159.^x Notwithstanding which, their title was for some time disputed by his descendants, till the year 1247, 32 Hen. III. when Richard de Clare, earl of Gloucester, great-grandson of William aforesaid, passed a fine,^y whereby he released his claim to the prior and convent for ever; who afterwards obtained the king's licence to appropriate it.^z And, whereas, the nuns of Haliwell had divers woods in East Dulwich, and other parts of this parish, it was agreed, in the 29 Hen. III. that they should pay tithes to the priory and convent for so much thereof as they should convert into arable land.^a

A. D. 1155, 1 Hen. II. The tithes of Wicklondes, in the parish of Woolwich, but on the north, or Essex side of the Thames, were given by William, son of Henry of Eltham.^b

A. D. 1156, 2 Hen. II. The advowson of the rectory of Bengcho, in the county of Hertford, was given them by Reginald de Tani, eldest son of Ansculph and Maud;^c and confirmed to them by King Henry II. in 1159;^d and by Richard de Tani in 1272. They afterwards obtained licence to appropriate it.^e

A. D. 1158, 4 Hen. II. William de Wateville gave them the advowsons of the rectory of Warlingham, and chapelry of Chelsham in Surrey,^f which were confirmed to them by the king the year following;^g and which, in the 28 Edw. I. they obtained the bishop's,^h and in 8 Edw. II. the king's licence to appropriate.ⁱ They continued in possession of these till the Dissolution.

A. D. 1159, 5 Hen. II. The advowson of the rectory of Bedington, was given to the priory by Ingelram de Funteney, and Sibyl de Wateville^k (sister of William aforesaid, and wife of Alan Pirot): which grant was confirmed by the king in the same year,^l and afterwards by King Edward III.^m In the 38 Hen. III. anno 1246, they recovered an annual pension of a hundred shillings, payable to them out of this rectory; and also two marks sterling for tithes of lands in the said parish formerly belonging to Richard Huscarle, which was continued to them as a pension in lieu of the said tithes.ⁿ

A. D. 1168, 14 Hen. II. The advowson of the rectory of Birling, in Kent, was given to the convent by Walchelin de Maminot,^o and confirmed to them by charter of King Hen. II.;^p and, afterwards, by Geoffrey and William de Say, grandsons of Alice, sister of Walchelin.^q This church was afterwards appropriated to the convent; when a pension was reserved thereupon to the bishop of Rochester and his successors, of twenty shillings per annum.^r

A. D. 1177, 23 Hen. II. The tithes of Wood-Ditton, in the county of Cambridge, were given by Robert Fitz-Humphry;^s but were demised in fee-farm at ten marks a year to the priory of Thetford, in 1261.^t

A. D. 1179, 25 Hen. II. The tithes of the mansion of Langford, in Norfolk, were given by Hugh de Montfort the fourth;^u and two parts of the tithes of the said lordship by William, son of Richard de Francheville, who held of Hugh,^x by whom also this grant was confirmed the same year.^y The convent were charged for their spiritualities here, in 1428, eleven shillings.^z

The tithes of his mansion at Bodney in Norfolk were also given to the convent this year by the said Hugh de Montfort:^a and also the tithes of his mansion of Wikes, alias Garboldesham,^b in the same county: William de Francheville jun. having given them also two parts of the tithes of that lordship. This portion issued out of the church of St. John Baptiste, one moiety of the advowson of which belonged to this manor: and, in 1428, the convent was taxed, for its spiritualities here, 13s. 4d.^c The said Hugh gave also to the priory the tithes of his mansion at Nacheton.^d But Blomefield, in the article of Newton, says nothing of it: and it is uncertain, indeed, whether this is meant of Necton, or of what was called Neketon's fee in Bokenham's manor in Garboldesham; or, lastly, of Nacton in Suffolk.

A. D. 1182, 28 Hen. II. The whole tithe of the lordship of de la Stane in the parish of Godichestre was given by John de Trenchefeule.^e But whether this be the de la Stone, of which Walter Brito gave two hides in 1094; or whether it was a manor of that name in Godmanchester in the county of Huntingdon, is not clear.

A. D. 1190, 2 Rich. I. Two parts of the tithes of Ludgershall, in the county of Buckingham, were given by Geoffrey de Tayle.^f

A. D. 1227, 11 Hen. III. They had also the tithes of Powynton, Lyntecon, and Blackmanston; for, this year, they compounded with the abbat of Bec in Normandy for the same, at 8s. a year, to be paid within the octaves of Michaelmas at Kynewardeston.^g These places are said, in the Annals of the monastery, to be in the county of Somerset. But Bovington was a manor in the parish of West Tyneham in Dorsetshire, belonging to the abbey of Bec; and Lutton (here mis-spelt Lyntecon) and Blakmanston were members of it.^h

A. D. 1229, 13 Hen. III. The tithes of the demesne of Hugo de Bray, parcel of the rectory of Lamhith, did also belong to this priory: for, this year, the prior compounded with the said rector for the same, in consideration of ten shillings a year to be paid at the convent of Bermondsey.ⁱ

A. D. 1241. The priory was also possessed of the tithes of Stikeldon in the parish of Greenford, in Middlesex: and, this year, compounded for them with the priory of Ankerwyk, at 5s. a year.^k

A. D. 1270, 54 Hen. III. John son of Hubert de Burg gave the advowson of Chartre.^l This seems to have been a chapel in their manor of Monksbury in the parish of Hallingbury Parva, in Essex.^m

A. D. 1318, 11 and 12 Edw. II. The convent agreed with Walter Reynolds archbishop of Canterbury for the purchase of two acres of land in Croydon, of the yearly value of 2s. with the advowson of the rectoryⁿ there, and, in 14th Edw. II. for the rectory itself, and advowson of the vicarage,^o in exchange for a hide of land at Withiflete, with the mills, valued together at 10 marks per annum, and other appurtenances in Southwark, and a yearly rent of 28l. 13s. 11d. formerly given them, viz. 13 Hen. I. by Robert Mar-mion. But this did not take place.^p

A. D. 1321, 15 Edw. II. This year, and thenceforth to the dissolution of the convent, they presented to the rectory of St. George Botolph Lane;^q but when, and by what means they became possessed of the advowson, is not recorded.

A. D. 1322, 16 Edw. II. They presented to the rectory of St. Andrew Holborn. This advowson was given by Gladerinus, a presbyter, to the church and canons of St. Paul, in trust that this convent should hold it of them, paying a yearly acknowledgment of 12d. at their cathedral. They continued patrons of it till their dissolution: after which, 15 Sept. 1545, 37 Hen. VIII. the advowson was given by the king to Sir Thomas Wriothesley, afterwards Earl of Southampton.^r

They had, also, from this time to that of their dissolution, the alternate advowson (with the abbat and convent of Westminster) of the rectory of St. Magnus London Bridge:^s but how much earlier they were possessed of it, and by what means they became so, is not discoverable.

A. D. 1386, 10 Rich. II. The priory had also two parts of the tithes of the demesne of Kimbolton in the county of Huntingdon (formerly given them by Odo de Dammurtin, and afterwards confirmed to them by William de Say)^t which they demised this year to the priory of Stoneley in that county, for 6s. 8d. to be paid, at Easter in every year, at their house in Bermondsey.^u

A. D. 1390, 14 Rich. II. The priory, with consent of William Courtney, archbishop of Canterbury, patron, and John Godewyke, then rector, obtained a grant of the rectory of Croydon, in exchange for the manor of Woddens, or Whaddon, in that parish, given them by King Henry the First in 1127; the said manor to be exempted from all tithes arising and becoming due to the said rectory in future. The bull for this exchange bears date 27th Sept. 1390; the king's patent, 13th December; and the bishop of London (the pope's delegate's) degree, 16th January following. At the same time it was agreed, by indenture annexed, that, in presenting to the vicarage on every future vacancy, the archbishop should nominate two clerks, whereof the convent should present one for institution.^x After the dissolution of the abbey, Mr. Manning says, the rectory was granted to the family of Walsingham. The advowson of the vicarage returned to the archbishop; out of which had been paid to the convent, while they continued rectors, an annual pension of 5l. 6s. 8d. or eight marks, as one of the conditions of the endowment by Archbishop Stratford in 22 Edw. III. anno 1348.^y

A. D. 1307, 21 Rich. II. This year the advowson of the rectory of Kemsyng in the diocese of Rochester was given them by Guido Mone,^z which they obtained the king's licence to appropriate;^a reserving a pension to the bishop of Rochester and his successors of 6s. 8d. per annum. This advowson, after the dissolution of the abbey, was granted by Queen Elizabeth to Sir Peter Manwood, knt.

They had also a certain portion of the tithes of Cheyham in Surrey, in lieu of which they received of the rectory a pension of two marks.^b

PRIORS and ABBATS of BERMONDSEY.

PRIORS.

PETER, one of the monks who came originally from La Charité, was the first prior: and was so ordained by the prior of the foreign monastery. He was appointed in 1089. He died on the 4th id. June, 1119: and was succeeded by

HEREBRAND, or HEREBRANUS. He died in 1120; when

PETER succeeded; and, after him, WALTERUS, who died in 1134. He was succeeded by

CLAREMBALDUS, according to the Annals of Bermondsey; but Manning says, "ROBERT DE BELLISMO is spoken of in Lib. Cart. Berm. MS. Oxon. as prior in King Stephen's time, when the convent restored Andretesbury to Robert earl of Leicester for the manor of Wideford, in the county

ROBERT DE BLOIS, or BLESENSIS, was made prior. He resigned, not, as Manning says, in 1154, but in 1155. In the following year

ROGER was chosen prior. He resigned, and was made abbat of St. Owen in 1157; when

ADAM succeeded on the 7th id. June. Adam became abbat of Evesham in 1161, 7th Hen. II. when

GEOFFREY became prior of Bermondsey. He resigned in 1163, when

PETER became prior. He resigned in 1166, when

RAYNOLD succeeded to the priorate. Raynold resigned in 1167, and was succeeded by a second

ROGER. He, in 1175, was elected abbat of Abingdon, where he died March 29th, 1184. His successor at Bermondsey in 1175 was

ROBERT DE BETHLEEM. He resigned in 1176, when

WERRICUS succeeded, also called GUERIC. Upon the death of Clarembald, in 1178, he was removed to the abbacy of Feversham.^b

BERTINUS, whom Manning calls BERTRANNUS, succeeded at Bermondsey. His death is entered in the Annals of the monastery in 1184, when

CONSTANTIUS, or CONSTANTINUS, succeeded. He died in 1186, when

HENRY DE SOLIACO became prior. According to the Annals so often quoted he died the same year, and was succeeded by

ADAM, who likewise died the same year, and was succeeded by a second prior of the name of

HENRY. This Henry, the Annals say, resigned in 1189, upon being made abbat of Glastonbury.^c

RICHARD NORMAN, or NORTHAM, succeeded on the feast of St. Nicholas. He died in 1201, when

HUGH was made prior. He died in 1210.

RICHARD was the next prior. In 1221 he was chosen prior of Wenlock, when another

HUGH succeeded, who also died in 1221, and was succeeded by

GAUFRIDUS, or GEOFFREY. Geoffrey died in 1222, when

ODILO succeeded, but died the following year, when a third

HUGH succeeded. In 1225 he died, when

GILBERT became prior. He died in 1226.

HUGH, his successor, also died in the same year.

WILLIAM, who succeeded, died in 1227.

JOSBERT was prior from 1227 to 1229; when, upon his death,

BERNARD succeeded, but died within a month.

AYMO then succeeded, who died in 1231.

HUGH, the fourth of the name, was the next prior. He died in 1234; to whom

PETER succeeded.^d He died in 1240, when

HUMBERT, INGLEBERT, or GILBERT, succeeded. Humbert died in 1245, and was succeeded by

ROGER. Roger died in 1247, and was succeeded by a second

HUMBERT, or YMBERT. He died in 1253, when

HAYMO succeeded, who dying the same year,

SYMON became prior. Symon died in 1225, when another

HAYMO became prior. He died in 1258, when

GWICARDUS became prior.^e He was made prior of Wenlock in 1265,^f and was succeeded at Bermondsey by

JOHN. The Patent Roll calls him JOHN DE CHARTRES. He was appointed by Milo prior of La Charité, and received the temporalities Feb. 5th.^g Upon the death of John de Chartres in 1273,

HENRY DE MONTE MAURI was appointed prior on Nov. 12th.^h He resigned in 1276, and was succeeded by

JOHN, who dying the same year,

PETER became prior.ⁱ but he also dying in 1276, another

JOHN succeeded. Upon whose death, in 1278, another

PETER became prior. His appointment is noticed upon the Patent Roll, where he is called PETER DE MONTE SANCTI VINCENTII, and is said to have had the temporalities restored to him on Sept. 21st that year.^k Upon his death in 1283,

ROBERT succeeded.^l Upon whose death in 1285,

HENRY NORTHAM was made prior. He is called HENRY only upon the Patent Roll, where the temporalities are stated to have been delivered to him on May 5th.^m He died, according to the annals of Bermondsey, in 1288, when

JOHN NORMAN succeeded.ⁿ John died in 1290, and was succeeded by

WILLIAM DE LA CHARITE, who died the same year.^o

PETER, who also succeeded and died in 1290, had

HENRY for a successor.^p He is mentioned on the Patent Roll as occurring July 20th, 18 Edw. I.^q Henry, according to the Annals, died in 1300, and was succeeded by

PETER. But the Patent Roll says that PETER DE SANCTO SIMPHONIACO was appointed prior by the prior of La Charité July 4th, 25 Edw. I. and the temporalities restored 13th Dec. 26 Edw. I, A. D. 1298,^r and that

HENRY was appointed prior on the death of Peter, in 1299, on November 27th, in which year he received the temporalities.^s According to the Annals,

PETER, prior of Bermondsey, died in 1307, to whom

HENRY succeeded.^t Who died in 1312, when

PETER DE ST. LAURENCE became prior.^u To him the temporalities were restored on October 28th, 1312.^x He died in 1319, and was succeeded by

GEOFFREY DE DELVIZ, who died in the same year.^y To whom

PETER was the successor.^z Peter died in 1321:^a when

WALTER succeeded.^b Upon the Patent Roll he is called WALTER DE DILING. He received the temporalities upon July 6th, that year.^c Upon his death, in the same year,

HENRY succeeded; he resigned, in 1323, for the priorate of Wenlock,^d when another

WALTER succeeded at Bermondsey, but died the same year.^e

JOHN DE CUSANCIA received the temporalities of this priory, April 18th, 1324.^f In which year also we find the king issued his letters patent for arresting the prior and certain monks of this house for entertaining certain rebels therein.^g These rebels, Mr. Manning says, were probably some of the adherents of Thomas, earl of Lancaster, who, after his defeat, about two years before, had taken Sanctuary in this Convent.^h John de Cusancia resigned in 1359; and

JOHN DE CAROLOCO succeeded, who continued Prior till his death in 1363.ⁱ

^d According to Pat. 22 Hen. III. m. 5, GWISCARD received the royal assent as prior in 1238. See MS. Harl. 6957, p. 74.

^e Thus far the Annals of Bermondsey, MS. Harl. 231, have been implicitly followed for the list of priors.

^f According to the Patent Roll, however, GILBERT DE BUSSAL was appointed prior of Bermondsey by the prior of La Charité in 1265. Pat. 45 Hen. III. rex consent. 5 Aug.

PETER DE TENOLIO was his successor. He died December 29th 1372:^a and on January 18th following RICHARD DENTON, or DUNTON, the first Englishman who filled the office, was appointed prior.^b His good offices in obtaining the denization of Bermondsey, and in the repairs and increase of the buildings, will be hereafter mentioned. In the 14th of Richard II. he resigned, when JOHN ATTILBURGH was appointed prior.^c He received the temporalities December 3, 1390.^d Having procured his priory to be erected into an abbacy, he himself became the first of the ABBATS OF BERMONDSEY.

JOHN ATTILBURGH was created abbat by Pope Boniface the IXth at the request of King Richard the second, August 13th, 1399. On the 20th January, 1400,^e he resigned, and was made bishop of Athelfeld:^f when HENRY TOMSTON, or TOMPSTON, otherwise GOMPSTON, succeeded as Abbat. The royal assent was given to his election on Feb. 9th.^g He died on May 19th, 1413;^h and was succeeded by THOMAS THETFORD, to whose election the royal assent was given June 8th, 1413.ⁱ He died, not as Manning says, in 1428, but in 1432:^k when JOHN BROMLEIGH was elected. The royal assent was given to his election Feb. 14th, and the temporalities restored to him Feb. 19th that year.^l At the time of his resignation in 1473 he is called JOHN SAY, alias BROMLEY.^m JOHN DE MARLOW was elected in 1473.ⁿ He occurs in the 14th Edw. IV. A. D. 1490; in the 5th of Henry VII. again in 1503, and lastly in 1516.^o ROBERT WARTON, WHARTON, or PARFEW, S. T. B.

of the university of Cambridge, was prior, according to Manning, as early as 1520.^p But according to Bishop Kennet's Excerpta from the Originalia, the temporalities were restored to him Oct. 1st, 17th Henry VIII.^q He was consecrated bishop of St. Asaph, July 2d, 1536, 28th Henry VIII.,^r having on the 30th of the preceding month obtained a dispensation to hold this abbey in commendam. He surrendered the abbey to the king Jan. 1st, 1537-8, 29th Henry VIII. and obtained a pension of five hundred marks, or 333*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year.^s In April, 1554, he was translated to Hereford by queen Mary, of which see he died bishop Sept. 22d, 1557, and was buried there in his cathedral.

The advowson of the abbey of Bermondsey was in the monks; but their election was not valid till confirmed by the king.^t

In 1514, by letters patent dated June 24th, the king granted the next advowson of this abbey to Thomas Wolsey, then bishop of Lincoln, and John Reve de Melford, abbat of St. Edmundsbury:^u but whether they ever collected under this grant, or whether it was resumed, does not appear.

This house was one of those which, as appears by the date of its surrender, Jan. 1st, 29th Henry VIII. anticipated the designs of the crown upon the greater monasteries, by a voluntary resignation of its estates.^x Mr. Manning thinks it not improbable, when we consider the preferments to which the last abbat was advanced, who made the surrender, that he was put in by the Court with a view to that event.

The possessions of Bermondsey Priory, in the taxation of Pope Nicholas IV. A. D. 1291, are rated altogether at the annual sum of 279*l.* 3*s.* 0½*d.* The temporal possessions at 228*l.* 19*s.* 8½*d.*: and the spiritualities at 50*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*^y

bey amounted to 474*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.*:^a the gross income to

About three years and a half from the time of its surrender, viz. 8 July, 1541, 33d Hen. VIII. the scite of this abbey, being the capital mansion of the manor, was granted to Sir Robert Southwell, Knt. Master of the Rolls, to hold to him, his heirs, and assigns for ever, at a yearly reserved rent of ten shillings.^b On the 30th August following, the said Sir Robert Southwell, by deed of bargain and sale, conveyed the same to Sir Thomas Pope, Knt. and Elizabeth his wife, in fee; to whom it was confirmed (together with the ten shillings reserved thereupon in the Grant to Southwell) by letters patent of the king, dated 16 March, anno 36; and who is said to have taken down the church and adjacent buildings, and to have erected a dwelling-house on his manor from the materials. This dwelling-house, being intended for the capital mansion of the manor, and thenceforth called Bermundsey House (together with the yards, gardens, and edifices thereto belonging, containing by estimation twenty acres), he re-conveyed to Sir Robert Southwell by deed dated March 4th, 1554-5; and it is supposed to have been the same which afterwards came into the hands of Thomas earl of Sussex, who died here in 1583. The remainder of the premises belonging to the site of the abbey, and heretofore purchased of Sir Robert Southwell on 30th Aug. 33 Hen. VIII. the said Sir Thomas, by deed of bargain and sale, dated 10th Nov. 1556, 2d and 3d Phil. and Mar. conveyed (together with the manor, demesne lands, advowson of the rectory, &c. of which he had a grant in 36 Hen. VIII.) to Robert Trapps, citizen and goldsmith of London. The further descent of these premises may be seen in Manning.^c

Of the internal state and history of this Foundation, says Manning, we know little or nothing; the Annals of the house having perished in the general wreck of its fortunes.
We find, however, that provincial chapters were sometimes holden here;^d and that the court occasionally made use of it for their meetings on affairs of state. Thus, at Christmas, 1154, King Henry II. immediately after his first coronation, held his court here, where he treated with his nobles on the state of the kingdom.^e In the reign of King Henry III.

many of the nobility, having taken the cross upon them, met at this house to deliberate on the order of their journey.^f And, in 25 Hen. III. William de Eborum and his fellow-justices itinerant held their assizes here on the 6th of May.^g

The prior and convent were obliged to find a competent maintenance for the Earl of Gloucester and his heirs whenever they should come hither:^h and Ralph earl of Stafford in particular, who married Margaret daughter and heir of Hugh de Audley earl of Gloucester, is said to have died, 31st Aug. 46 Edw. III. seised in demesne as of fee of an apartment or lodging within this priory.ⁱ A remote ancestor of the Earl of Gloucester, in 19 Steph. had given the advowson of Camerwell to the convent;^k which was ratified to them by Richard de Clare earl of Gloucester, a descendant of his, in 33d Hen. III.^l For this and other services, their posterity enjoyed this appointment in the nature of a corrody.

The bishops of Winchester formerly claimed of this convent an annual procuration or entertainment for one day, when they held their visitations in this part of their diocese: but, on a revival of this claim, anno 1276, by Nicholas de Ely, then bishop, the convent pleaded an exemption. The bishop contested it: and at length a compromise took place on the following conditions, viz. that the prior and convent, and their successors, on the first coming of every bishop of Winchester to Bermondsey, after his installation, should, in token of their regard for him as their diocesan, meet him in procession; and, in lieu of the procuration or entertainment, should pay unto him and to his successors five marks of silver, for that time, at his house in Southwark: and, in every succeeding year, two marks and a half at Michaelmas. Moreover, that whenever it should happen that the bishop should go beyond sea, the

Catharine, queen of Henry Vth. retired to this monastery either for devotion or safety, and died here 3d Jan. 1437; but was interred at Westminster.

Elizabeth, queen of Edward IVth. was condemned by an order of council, in 1486, to forfeit all her lands and goods, and to be confined in Bermondsey abbey, where she soon afterwards ended her life.^b

Manning gives the following notices of eminent persons buried in the Conventual Church here :

Adelaid, or Adelize, daughter of the Countess of Beaumont in France, wife of Hugh de Grentemaisnil, and mother of Ivo de Grentemaisnil, a benefactor to this house, was interred here in the time of William Rufus, or Henry the First.^c

William earl of Moreteign and Cornwall, son of Robert, who possessed a hide of land in the manor of Bermondsey at the time of the General Survey, was also interred here in the beginning of Henry the First's time. Ralph Brooke says he became a monk of this house.^d

Mary, daughter of Malcolm III. king of Scotland, sister of Maud, wife of King Henry the First, and wife of Eustace earl of Boulogne, who gave the manor of Kynewardeston in Somersetshire, died April 18th, 1115, and was buried in this church, with the following inscription on her tomb :

Nobilis hinc tumulata jacet comitissa Maria ;
Actibus hæc nituit ; larga, benigna fuit.
Regum sanguis erat ; morum probitate vigeat ;
Compatiens inopi : vivit in arce Poli.^e

Walchelin de Maminot the younger, a benefactor to the piory, died here in the beginning of the reign of Richard I. as appears by the testimony of Julian the countess, his wife, recorded in a Chartulary formerly belonging to the monks of this place.^f

To these, Mr. Lysons adds, as also interred here, Leofstan provost of London, anno 1115 ; Margaret de la Pole, 1473 : and dame Aimè Audley, relict of John lord Audley.^g

The CHRONICLE of Bermondsey preserved among the Harleian manuscripts No. 231 furnishes a copious article in the Appendix to the present Account of the priory. Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, refers to various Excerpts and Abstracts from it in different libraries.

Tanner also mentions "Liber cartarum et munimentorum de omnibus libertatibus, ecclesiis, redditibus, pensionibus, portionibus, et de omnibus aliis possessionibus ad Domum S. Among the Harleian charters in the British Museum is one, 44 H. 16. an Indenture between John, abbat of Bermondsey, and the rector and parishioners of St. Michael Crooked-lane, London, respecting a tenement in that lane, dated Sept. 6th, 1439, 18th Hen. VI.

The ROOD, or CROSS of BERMONDSEY, to which pilgrimages were occasionally made, is stated to have been found near the Thames in 1117.^h

^h See the Append. Num. I. sub. an. In the Harleian MS. 6970. p. 97, among Excerpts from the register of John Romane, archbishop of York, we read, "XL dies indulgentiæ concessæ iis qui contribuerunt ad fabricam ecclesiæ sancti Salvatoris de Bermundesey juxta London. vel ad eam orandi causa et ad adorand. VENERABLEM CRUCEM in eadem EMINENTER POSITAM accesserint."

following notice of the taking down of the Rood of Bermondsey in 1538, in the mayoralty of Sir Richard Gresham :

"M. Gresham mayr. On Saynt Mathies day thapostull the xxiiijth day of February, Sonday, did the bishop of Rochester preche at Polls Cros, and had standyng afore hym all his sermon tyme the pictur of the Roode of Grace in Kent, and was gretely sought with pilgryms, and when he had made an ende of his sermon the pictor was torn all to peces; then was the PICTOR OF SAYNTE SAVIOUR that had stand in BARMSEY ABBEY many yeres in Sowthwarke takyn down."

Of the SEALS of Bermondsey abbey, engraved in Wilkinson's "Londina Illustrata,"

The first, appended to an instrument in the Chapter-House at Westminster, of the year 1274, represents our Saviour seated, his right hand elevated, and holding a book in the left. Legend SIGILLVM . SCI . SAL The rest of the inscription lost.

The second, of the same date, has a similar representation of our Saviour, but with the sun and moon in the area above, and in a small arch at bottom a man's head. The remains of the legend of this seal are ORIS . S RMONDSE There is a small counter-seal to it, of a round form, representing the Virgin and child, with MATER . DEI . MEMENTO . MEI.

A third, appendant to a deed of 1266, which, with the preceding, is likewise in the Chapter-House at Westminster, seems to have been the prior's private Seal. It is triangular, and represents the flight into Egypt, and under a pointed arch at bottom, a man's head. Legend . SIGI ORIS . BERMVNDESEYE.

A grant in the Augmentation Office, of the year 1356, relating to a messuage in Rotherhithe, presents a fourth Seal. It represents our Saviour between two apostles preaching to a multitude. Legend SIGIL . EC E . SCI . SALVATORIS . DE . BERMUNDESEYE. The counter-seal, smaller in size, presents a half-length of our Saviour, with the right hand elevated, and holding a mound in the left. Legend EGO . SVM . VIA . VERITAS . ET . VITA.

Appendant to a Book of Indentures at Westminster, which will be mentioned again hereafter, is another Seal of this abbey; that probably which was usually affixed to instruments of the greatest consequence. The impression is round and large; with the counter seal of the same size. The obverse represents the transfiguration of our Saviour, before Peter, James, and John; the sun, moon, and stars being represented in those spaces of the area which are not filled by the figures. Legend SIGILLVM . COMMVNE . MONASTERII . SANCTI . SALVATORIS . DE . BERMUNDESEYE. The reverse, or counter seal, represents our Saviour seated on a rainbow, the right-hand elevated, and holding a mound in the left. On each side a shield of arms supported by an angel; the dexter coat, France and England quarterly; the sinister England alone. The sun, moon, and stars again appear in the upper part of the area; and the base contains an assemblage of persons in the midst of a grove of trees, all apparently in the act of adoration. The centre figure with a mitre and crozier. Legend SALVA . NOS . XP'E . SALVATOR . PER . VIRTVTEM . SANCTE . CRVCIS.

There is a Seal of Bermondsey, different to any of these, appendant to the Harleian charter 44 A. 16. already mentioned. In the area on one side is the figure of our Saviour sitting; the right hand uplifted, the left bearing a mound surmounted by a cross. On the reverse, a small full length figure of the Virgin Mary, with hands uplifted, surrounded by a glory.

Of the ORIGINAL FABRIC of Bermondsey Abbey our information is slight. The "Nova et pulchra Ecclesia," mentioned in Domesday, is presumed to allude to it.

In 1338 the church of this house appears to have been dedicated afresh, with several of its numerous altars.^a The cloister and refectory were either built or rebuilt by Prior Dunton, in 1380; who covered the nave of the church with lead, and made new with glass the windows in the Presbytery, in 1387.^b Abbat Thetford, in 1430, covered the cloister with slate, "cum petra vocata slat."^c

Wilkinson, in his work already quoted, has given several Plates illustrative of the Remains of this monastery, which have now almost all disappeared. These are,

1. A general view of the remains as they appeared in 1805, with the adjacent country. Taken from the steeple of the church of St. Mary Magdalen, Bermondsey.

2. East view of the Gateway of Bermondsey Abbey, near the parish church.

3. Inside of a room adjoining those under the hall, Bermondsey Abbey, with several fragments of remains, capitals, mouldings, &c.

4. Inside and outside of the Hall, Bermondsey Abbey.

5. Inside of one of the rooms under the Hall. But it is to be observed that this hall, in reality, was not a part of the abbey, but of the mansion which was erected upon its site by Sir Thomas Pope. Though Mr. Wilkinson thinks that that portion of the fourth plate, which is entitled "Inside of the Hall," is probably of the hall or refectory of the monastery; as its appearance seems older than Sir Thomas Pope's time.

6. The Arms and Seals of the prior and convent.

7. Fac simile from one of the Books of Indentures for the foundation of King Henry the Seventh's Chapel, at Westminster, to which the abbat of Bermondsey was a party, and whose seal is appendant thereto. From the original in the Chapter-house.

8. A Ground plan of the abbey of Bermondsey, from an original drawing taken in 1679; with a view of the north and west gates of the abbey.

The GATEHOUSE, the last principal remain of this Abbey, was taken down in 1805.

The small Priory of St. JAMES, DERBY, was a CELL to Bermondsey, the history of which will form the next article of our work.

Richard, Prior of Bermondsey, with the consent of the convent, built, A. D. 1213, adjoining to the walls of his monastery, an ALMSHOUSE or HOSPITAL for converts and poor boys in honour of St. THOMAS of CANTERBURY.^d It was under the government of the almoner of the priory, and exempt from episcopal jurisdiction.

Priory of St. James, Derby.

A Cell to Bermondsey Abbey.

in which year King Stephen confirmed his grant.^a He adds, upon the authority of the Patent Roll, 14 Hen. III. that it was protected as a poor hospital, and in the next reign reckoned among the alien priories,^b but that it continued till the general Dissolution, temp. Hen. VIII. when the king was accounted founder, and the yearly income thought to be about 10*l*.^c

This is all the account which Tanner gives of it, and the only other record to which he refers is Cart. 16 Joan. p. 2, m. 1. At the time when the taxation of Pope Nich. IV. was made, A.D. 1291, it seems to have been but slenderly, endowed, for its temporalities are there thus stated, “Prior S. Jacobi de Derby habet in decanatu de Akele 5*l*. 8*s*. 4*d*.” and it does not appear to have then had any spiritualities.

In the fourteenth year of Edward the Third, John de la Cornere is said to have given to the prior of Derby one acre and an half of land for the enlargement of his manse, &c.^d

In Lysons’s Magna Britannia,^e these additional observations to Tanner’s account are to be found, namely, that the Cluniac monks, being all connected with the abbey of Clugny in France, this priory was returned as alien in the reign of Edward I. It was then called Prioratus sancti Jacobi de Derby de Aldenna. It continued, nevertheless, till the Dissolution, when its revenues were estimated at 11*l*. 15*s*. 11*d*. per annum.

Before the Reformation, the chamberlains of Derby rendered annually to the monks of this house two pounds of wax for the right of passage over St. James’s Bridge.^f The priory was situated at the end of St. James’s Lane.

Messrs. Lysons add, “We do not know what became of it after the Reformation, unless it were the same which was granted to the Corporation by the name of the Free Chapel of St. James, with all the lands, &c. thereto belonging.”

There is no specific return of the possessions of this Cell to be found in the General Ecclesiastical Survey, 26 Hen. VIII. but it is twice incidentally mentioned there; first, under Lilleshull abbey, Salop, where, among the charges incumbent on that monastery, a payment of two shillings yearly is stated to be made to the hospital of St. James at Derby for lands in Blakorby; and again, under Lenton priory, Notts. of ten shillings paid to the prior of the cell of St. James in Derby, issuing out of lands in Dunston.

Davies, in his Historical View of Derbyshire,^g says, the priory was, in the wars between Henry the Fifth and the French, detached from the abbey of Clugny in France, to which the whole order was subject, and afterwards depended upon one of the same order at Lenton, near Nottingham; but he cites no authority, and his assertion may be questioned from the circumstance, that when the abbey of Bermondsey was surrendered into the hands of the king (Hen. VIII.), a compensation, by way of pension, of seven pounds per annum, was made to

THOMAS GAYNESBOROW, the then prior of Derby.^h

No Seal has been met with of this priory or its priors.

Priory of St. James near Exeter.

ALDWIN de Redveriis, or Rivers, earl of Devonshire, says Tanner, gave the chapel of St. James without the city of Exeter, with the tithes and other estates, to the head monastery of St. Peter at Cluny, and to the abbey of St. Martin de Campis near Paris, before A. D. 1146, that a Prior and some monks of that Order might be settled here; which was accordingly done, and it became subordinate to this last-mentioned house.

The founder's charter, detailing his endowment, is given in the Appendix;^a together with a confirmation from Richard earl of Devonshire, his son, A. D. 1157;^b a like confirmation from Robert bishop of Exeter;^c and another from the Empress Maud.^d

Stephen de St. Leonard gave six acres of land to this priory;^e and Baldwin earl of Devonshire before-mentioned, by another charter, gave to it the church of Tiverton.^f

Mr. Oliver, in his "Historic Collections relating to the Monasteries of Devon," says, that, thirteen years after the foundation of this house, Robert Warlewast, bishop of Exeter, consecrated the cemetery adjoining the Conventual Church.

In a memorandum of Nicholas Braybrooke, librarian to Bishop Thomas Bytton (Mr. Oliver adds), mention is made of a collection of documents relating to this priory, and formerly belonging to that bishop.

A catalogue of the manuscripts and charters which were found in the Treasury of Exeter cathedral in the year 1257 is given in Bishop Bronescombe's Register. One of these was entitled "Confirmatio Theobaldi Cantuariæ archiepiscopi de capellâ monachorum sancti Jacobi."

The community of this house, it appears, was small, consisting of a prior and four monks only.^g

The convent depending on a foreign house, its revenues were often seized by the Crown, "occasione guerræ," during the wars between England and France;^h till it was, at last, wholly suppressed: after which King Henry the Sixth made it part of the endowment of King's College in Cambridge.

Where no other authority is quoted, the following List of the

has been obtained from Mr. Oliver's "Historic Collections."

ALURED occurs prior A. D. 1157.

JOHN was admitted January 6th, 1276.ⁱ

PETER DE SEYNT died late in 1304.

STEPHEN succeeded in the month of November the same year.

JOHN DE NANTOLIO, admitted 1st of August, 1314.

WILLIAM DE BYTEDENE. Mr. Oliver, from the Exeter Registers, describes this prior as unfit for his office. Bishop Grandison styles him "vagabundus et nullibi residens." On the 8th May, 1334, this bishop excommunicated him for refusing to appear before his commissioners, but absolved him four months after.

JOHN occurs prior in 1341.

JOHN LESPER, instituted in November, 1349.

JOHN DE WORCESTER, admitted 10th June, 1363.

RALPH DE CHIELFHAM was nominated to this priory by King Edward III. Oct. 6th, 1369.^k

JOHN GEVYLE succeeded 12th Octob. 1370. Oliver says he was a monk of Montacute, in Somersetshire; and, for his merit, collated to this priory by Brantyngham bishop of Exeter.

RALPH LEYE succeeded Feb. 20th, 1374.^l

AUGUSTINUS.

THOMAS DENE was prior in 1428. He is supposed to have been the last person who filled the office.ⁿ

In the Taxation of Pope Nicholas the Fourth we find,

"Prior S. Jacobi in ecclesia de Tiverton 4*l*. 3*s*. 8*½d*." ^o

The following are the temporal possessions:

"Apud Crowele quod taxatur 13*s*. 4*d*.

In civitate Exon. de redditu 4*s*.

Summa totalis 5*l*. 15*s*. 4*d*." ^p

According to Pat. 16 Hen. VI. p. 2, the value of St. James's Cell at that time amounted to the annual sum of 16*l*. "Rex in recompensationem boni servitii quod Johannes Delabere in juventute regis in officio eleemosynariæ Regis impendit, dedit ei Prioratum S. Jacobi juxta Exeter alienigenam, post mortem Johannæ nuper Regina Angliæ, valoris xvi*l*. per annum pro termino vitæ, 15 Feb." In the former edition of the Monasticon, vol. i. p. 1039, the valuation of this house, by some error, is placed at 502*l*. 12*s*. 9*d*.

Being annexed to King's College Cambridge there is no valor of this monastery, nor any minister's accompts.

The matrix of the SEAL of Thomas Dene, prior of this monastery, is still extant, in silver, of a small oval form. In the area St. James the Great is represented on it, habited as a pilgrim, beneath a canopy of Gothic tracery: with this legend round, s. FRIS . THOME . DENE . PRIOR . EXONIE. This matrix, in 1822, was in the possession of John Carew, Esq.

Tanner refers to a chest of rolls and charters of this house at King's College Cambridge, to which Dugdale appears to have had access.^q He also refers to

"MS. Dodsworth in bibl. Bodl. Oxon. vol. cviii. fol. 21.

"Pat. 6 Hen. IV. p. 2, m. 16.

"Pat. 22 Hen. VI. p. 2, m. 6.

"Rec. in Scacc. 12 Edw. IV. Mich. rot. 33."

The scite of this priory is now emphatically called the old abbey; but hardly a vestige remains to mark its situation.

stituere velitis et eidem in negotiis prædicti prioratus agendis, si placet, consilium et auxilium impendatis. Valeat bene et diu vestra paternitas reverenda. Datum A. D. 1276, die Dominica in vigiliâ sancti Matthæi apostoli."

Noverit universitas vestra quod ego divinae pietatis intuitu, assentiente Ricardo filio meo, totam terram quae dicitur Cotelega cum toto bosco et omnibus pertinentiis suis monasterio beati Jacobi apostoli quod extra muros civitatis Exon. devotè constitui, et monachis Cluniacensibus ibidem Deo et sancto Jacobo servientibus, pro remedio animae meae et filiorum filiarumque mearum et omnium parentum et amicorum meorum per manum domini Roberti Exon. episcopi in die qua cimiterium ejusdem monasterii dedicavit in perpetuam Dei elemosinam, cum eadem libertate et liberis consuetudinibus quibus manerium meum de Exeministre tenui et habui. Præterea donavi ipsis monachis medietatem decimae de piscaria mea de Toppeshama. Ex donatione autem et rogatu Aviciae de sancto Leonardo, confirmavi ipsis duas acras terrae in quibus conductus aquae molendini eorum factus est, et occupationem aquae redundantis in terram ipsius Aviciae. Concessi etiam praefatis monachis ut nova molendina faciant in terra sua ubi voluerint, amotis molendinis meis de Toppesham; ita quod de cætero nec mihi, nec hæredibus meis, nec alicui infra Scutebrocam et Toppesham aliquod molendinum facere licebit. Hoc quidem concessum est assensu et voluntate praedictae Aviciae de sancto Leonardo. Hæc itaque omnia ex intini cordis affectu et ex voti debito ad praedictorum monachorum sustentationem donavi, supplicans attentius hæredibus meis ne super his aliquam molestiam fratribus inferre præsumant, immo potiùs paternae devocionis memores quod piè actum est fovere et manutenere dignerentur. Confirmatio donationum per Robertum Exon. episcopum.

[Ibid.]

OMNIBUS ad quos praesens scriptum pervenerit, Robertus Dei gratia Exon. episc. salutem in Domino. Noverit universitas vestra, quod venerabilis Baldewinus de Reveris Exon. comes, filio suo Ricardo concedente, et plenarium assensum præbente, pro remedio animæ suæ, et præcipuè pro anima uxoris suæ Adeliz et patris sui Ricardi, et matris suæ A. et pro omnium prædecessorum, successorumque suorum animabus, totam terram cum capella sancti Jacobi extra Exon. et cum decima, et omnibus pertinentiis suis, quas Walterus filius Wlwardi ex eo liberè et quietè tenuit, ipso Waltero rogante et concedente, quicquid juris et domini in eis habebant, hærede sua Edith assentiente, Deo et monasterio sancti Petri de Clun. et sancti Martini de Campis ad sustentationem monachorum Clun. ibidem Deo et S. Et quia hæc prædicta prædictorum fratrum sustentationi minime sufficere estimavit, divini amoris instinctu totam ecclesiam de Tuiverton, cum capellis et omnibus pertinentiis suis, permissione et assensu meo, donavit, et scripto autentico confirmavit. Volens ut monachi ab omni vexatione liberi et immunes, orationi vacent, et Deum pro se et suis indesinenter exorent. Præterea præfatus B. illustris comes Exon. ecclesiæ S. ^a Tiverton in Devoniam.

Priory of Lenton, in Nottinghamshire.

LENTON priory appears to have been founded very early in the reign of Henry the First: certainly, as Tanner thinks, before the year 1108.^a It was built by William Peverel, who gave it to God and the church of Cluni, and to Pontius the abbat there and his successors, yet so that it should be free, paying a mark of silver yearly as an acknowledgment. He endowed this monastery with the town of Lenton and its appurtenances, except four mills, of which he held two in his own demesne, and his wife Adelina the third, and Herbert, his knight, the fourth; the rest of the mills being given to the monks, and properly seven: likewise with Radford, Morthon, Kichton, and their appurtenances, and whatsoever he had in Newtorpe and Papelwich, in wood, plain, &c. likewise Blacowell in the Peak,^b with its appurtenances: Corthahall, in Northamptonshire,^c with the wood and all, except the fee of one knight, and the land of Thurstin Mantell: likewise two parts of the tithes of his demesnes, of all things which could be tithed, viz. in Blideesword in Northamptonshire, with a rustic or villan, who held a virgate or yard-land, to gather the tithes; in Doston also in Northamptonshire, in Newbot, in Tideswell in Derbyshire, in Bradewell, Badecowell, Hoccalaw, Esseford, Wirmnil, and Hulme; two parts also of the tithes of his demesne pastures in the Peak, namely, Sachaleros, Ferneley, Darnehal, Quatford, Buchestanes, Sirebroch, Stafdon, Cudal, Crehil, Chaldelaw, Dunningestede, Chelmardon, Stauredal; the whole tithe of colts and fillies, where he should have "haracium," or any one else in his demesne pastures; the whole tithe of his lead, and of his venison or hunting, as well in skins as flesh, and the whole tithe of the fish of his fishery at Nottingham. He gave also, with King Henry the First's consent, the church of St. Mary of the English borough of Nottingham, with the land, tithes, and appurtenances; the church of St. Peter, and the church of St. Nicholas, likewise in Nottingham; the churches of Radeford, Lindebey, and Langar, in Nottinghamshire, with land, tithes, and other appurtenances, and a villan holding a virgate of land; the church of Fote-ston in Leicestershire, with a virgate of land; the churches of Herleston, Corthohal, Irencester, and Rissenden, in Northamptonshire, with a villan in the latter vill holding a virgate. He likewise granted to this monastery whatsoever his homagers should bestow on it for the benefit of their souls. Of these, the first was Avenellus, who gave lands from his demesnes in Haddon, Methdweploth, and Mamax; Safred gave lands in Empingham, and Baseford; and Robert Fitz Pain others in the latter vill. Robert de Heriz gave lands in Hesburne and Ostecrophth; Geoffrey and William in Ernesby; Norman de Montfaltrel, in Asebech, in Chillwelle, and in Horpoll; Roger Brito, in Walenthon and in Kalahal; Gocelinus, in Wathenoch; Ralph Mala-herbe, in Aspeley; Serlo Blund, in Torp; Erbert, in Gonnolveston; Helgot, in Baresword and in Cotis; Robert de Paviliaco, in Hooton; Walter Flammonyth, in Hauresham; Hugh son of Richard, in Claindon; Norman de St. Patrick, in Devesburch, and in Blucolwesley, and in Raalund; Geoffrey de Heriz, in Stapelford; Adelelmus, in Langleley; and Robert the son of Warner, in Tovethon. Robert de Moretuein also, and his heirs, gave a yearly grant of ten shillings for ever.^d

King Henry the First confirmed the above donations; as well as the subjection of the monastery to the house of Cluni.^e

King Henry the Second gave to the church of Lenton eighty acres of land in Corthal, with the mill at Blachelif, in exchange for the land of Papelwich which he transferred to the canons of Newstead, in Shirwood:^f and by another charter granted them freedom from toll.^g

By a charter of King Stephen Hugh de Burun's grant of Cottesgrave was confirmed to the monks.^h

This charter, in the Inspeximus of King Edward the Second, is followed by two other charters of King Henry the Second: one granting to the monastery a fair of eight days duration at the feast of St. Martin, commanding that no one, during that time, should buy or sell in Nottingham;ⁱ the other granting to the monks the hermitage of Kershall, in Lancashire.^k

King John confirmed the grant already mentioned of eighty acres of assarts at Curtehal, the hermitage of Kershall, and the fair of eight days, in the first year of his reign, by a charter dated on the 6th of April:^l and by another charter, dated on the 22d of the same month, he confirmed to them the churches of Maperteshal and Falmeresham, which had been given by Robert the son of William.^m He granted them also certain privileges in Berkswood:ⁿ and, by a third Charter, the tithe of all game killed in the counties of Nottingham and Derby.^o

The Inspeximus from which the substance of the above charters has been taken finishes with an enumeration of various grants by other persons: these are, of the church of Winchingeston, with its appurtenances, by Robert earl of Mellent; of the tithe of assarts in the forest of High Peak, by William de Ferrers, earl of Derby; of the churches of Oscinton and Orseley, by Hugh de Burun and his son, Hugh Meschin, with a moiety of the church of Cotesgrave; of the church of Brocton, a chapel, and certain lands in that vill, by Richard Buissel; of the manors of Holm and Donestone, by Matthew de Haverseg; and of a moiety of the church of Adingburgh, the land of Reginald in Chilewell, the church of Barton, and two parts of the tithe of his demesne in Boneye and Brademare, by Odo de Bodeya.^p

Burton, in his History of Leicestershire, says that Lenton priory had lands in Broughton with the advowson of the rectory, and tithes in Knaptoft, in that county: and Bridges, in his History of Northamptonshire, gives it a pension of sixteen shillings out of the rectory of Bilsworth; the manor and advowson of the rectory of Courtenhall; the advowson of the rectory of Inchester for some time; and the advowson of the rectory of Rushdon.^q

3. "Registrum in bibl. Cotton. Otho B. xiv."

A charter from the first of these is given by Dugdale in the Appendix to the present Account.

The Cottonian manuscript Otho B. xiv. here mentioned, disappeared in the fire at Westminster in 1731. The following is the description of it given in Smith's Catalogue of the Library: "Chartularium prioratus de Lenton in agro Nottinghamensi a Gulielmo Peverello fundati, cum syllabo maneriorum, advocatum ecclesiarum, portionum garbarum et fœni, pensionum, terrarum, et reddituum, ad ejusdem priorem et conventum spectantium." It was a folio volume, containing one hundred and seventy-four leaves of vellum, exclusive of six leaves at the beginning, and three leaves at the end, which contained an index. The present manuscript marked Otho B. xiv. in the Cottonian collection, is not the same which was placed under that number previous to the fire.

In the Office of the King's Remembrancer in the Exchequer are the following documents relating to Lenton:

The Donation manuscript in the Museum, No. 6164, beside the Extents already mentioned, has two Accounts of the outgoings of this priory: viz.

p. 514. "Compotus Roberti Bozun de exit. prioratus de Lenton a die Dominica prox. post festum S. Margaretæ an. r. r. E. xxv. usque ad festum S. Mich. prox. sequens." p. 517. "Compotus Roberti Bozun de exit. prioratus de Lenton. a festo S. Michaelis an. r. r. Edw. xxv. finiente usque ad idem festum per annum revolutum."

The Harleian manuscript 1499, p. 42, says, "THE ARMES of this House ys Golde and Azure quarterly; over all a playn crosse sable borderid Gold."

An imperfect impression of the SEAL of Lenton priory is appended to the Harleian charter already quoted, 44 F. 19. It is of an oval form, in red wax: and on the area of the front represents our Saviour, seated. The inscription, . . . ILLVM CONVENTVS SANC . . . ENTO . . . On the reverse is a small Counter Seal, also oval, with the half figure of a monk, bearing a sort of sceptre terminating in a fleur de lis in his right hand: inscribed ✠ SIGNVM PETRI P . . . IS DE LENTONA.

All vestiges of Lenton priory had long disappeared, when, a few years ago, the discovery of a brass plate of the Crucifixion (engraved in the Gentleman's Magazine, vol. lxvii. p. 281) drew attention to its site: subsequent to which a stone coffin, the bases of some pillars, and a large portion of the foundation walls, which had been uncovered by Mr. Stretton, the then owner, determined it more precisely.

KERSHALL, or KYRKSHAW, in Lancashire, was a Cell to Lenton. Tanner says, King Henry the Second granted before the year 1184,^b and King John in the first year of his reign confirmed to Lenton priory the Hermitage here, which thereupon became a small House of Cluniac monks, and, as Cell to that priory, was granted in the 32d of Henry the Eighth to Baldwin Willoughby.^c

^c Previous to this, in the 30th Hen. VIII. the site had been leased for twenty-one years to John Wode:

Orig. 30 Hen. VIII. p. 2. Lancast. "Rex tertio die Februarii dimisit ad firmam Johanni Wode scitum cellæ de Kersall in com. Lanc. (et diversa al. terr. ibidem specificata) nuper prioratui de Lenton in com. Nott. spectan. habend. a festo Michaelis ultimo præterito ad finem termini xxj. annorum reddend. inde regi xj^{li}. vj^s. viij^d. per annum." ro. clxxiiij^{to}.

Cole, however, in his manuscripts at the Museum, vol. lxx. p. 188, gives the copy of an original Deed, which designates Ranulph or Ralph de Gernon earl of Chester, who died in 1156, as the real founder of Kershall. He says, "My worthy and much respected friend Dr. Farmer communicated the following papers to me in 1780. The first is a very ancient Deed, about Henry the Second's reign, on a piece of parchment of six inches deep and four broad, which, being used as lining to the cover of an old book, has suffered a trifle by being worm-eaten." The other papers were letters. The following is a transcript of the Deed :

"R. Consul Cestriæ episcopo Cestriæ, archid. et omnibus ordinatis Dei, et constab. Cestr. dapif. B. . . justiciariis, vicecomitibus, ministris, et ballivis, et omnibus hominibus suis, clericis et laicis, Francis, et Anglis, salutem. Sciatis me concessisse et dedisse Deo et sanctæ Mariæ et monachis Sanctæ Trinitatis de Lenton in elemosinam Kere-shalam, locum ad servicium Dei edificandum, et pasturam, et ad se dilatandum de essartis, et piscariis, et de rebus illis omnibus quibuscunque se dilatari et aisiari poterint. Quare volo et firmiter præcipio quod prædicti monachi bene et honorifice prædictam elemosinam solam et quietam et liberam de omni seculari servicio habeant, ne aliquis meorum super timorem Dei, et meum amorem temere perturbet. NICOLAUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, carissimo in VOL. V.

Christo filio Edwardo regi Angliæ illustri, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Pridem ad notitiam regiam per nostras litteras duximus perferendum, qualiter dilecti filii, frater Petrus de Siviriaco de Lenton, Cluniacensis monasterii monachi, diligentius attendentes quod nonnulla statuta, quæ, felicitis recordationis, G. papa nonus, prædecessor noster, super reformatione dicti Ordinis edidit, et quæ, in virtute obedientiæ, districtè ac inviolabiliter observari præcepit, in ordine ipso minime servabantur, tùm ex hoc, tùm etiam ex aliis certis causis ad sedem apostolicam appellarunt; et, ne . . . abbas monasterii supradicti, post hujusmodi appellationes eorum, et arripiendum iter ab eis ad Romanam curiam accedendi, contra ipsos, vel eorum aliquem, aut adhærentes, vel adhærere volentes eisdem, aliquid innovaret, vel etiam attemptaret, sive ad citationem, monitionem, vel excommunicationis, suspensionis, et Inderdicti sententias, vel ad amotionem, seu privationem prioratum prædictorum et domorum ipsorum, per se, vel per alium, quacunque auctoritate, procederet nomine suo, et eis adhærere volentium in hac parte, iterato ad præfatam sedem contra eundem provocârunt abbatem, et etiam appellârunt, ad prædictorum prosecutionem se ad eandem sedem personaliter conferentes; quibus in actum perductis, tam præfatus abbas, quam diffinitores Capituli generalis, priores ipsos suis prioratibus et administrationibus, contra justitiam, privaverunt, in prædicto prioratu de Lenton fratre Ranaudo, monacho supradicti monasterii, de facto, cum de jure nequiverint, subrogato; quam ad præsentationem abbatis ejusdem in priorem prioratûs prædicti, cujus diceris esse patronus, recipiens, in prioratûs ipsius et bonorum ac jurium suorum fecisti possessionem induci.

Nos autem, ad pacificum statum et prosperum ejusdem monasterii, et personarum, in ipso degentium, intendentes; et considerantes attentius quod tam præfatus frater Petrus, quàm cæteri prædicti priores prioratibus suis injustè fuerant spoliati; quodque inde dampna pertulerant unde ipsis comoda debuerant provenisse; eis, amotione seu privatione hujusmodi nequaquam obstante, prædictos prioratus de procuratoris ejusdem abbatis assensu, et justitia restitui-mus exigente; celsitudinem regiam rogantes attentius, et hortantes ut, apostolicæ sedis processibus devotis animis te coaptans, eidem fratri Petro, priori possessionem plenariam prioratûs de Lenton prædicti, ac jurium et bonorum suorum, sublato difficultatis obstaculo, restitui faceres sive reddi, eum in possessione ipsâ regii favoris auxilio conservand. sic te in hoc benigne ac liberaliter habiturus, ut exinde tibi à Domino præmium, et a nobis dignæ commendationis cumulus proveniret. Porro nuper ad nos pervenisse cognoveris, quod præfatus abbas, dictis prioribus adhuc in curiâ Romanâ morantibus, debitum naturæ persolvit; jam de alia electione, ut dicitur, celebratâ concorditer in monasterio supradicto, ac electus hujusmodi ad curiam ipsam in proximo venturus asseritur, ad confirmationem electionis suæ humiliter postulandam, propter quod eundem priorem, usque ad ipsius electi adventum, oportet apud sedem apostolicam residere, ut, tam ipso, quàm cæteris prioribus supradictis ibidem præsentibus, circa statum ejusdem monasterii possit utiliùs et efficacius actore Domino, provideri: cum itaque præfatus prior, occasione hujusmodi præpeditus, ad partes Angliæ se personaliter conferre non valeat, dicti prioratûs sui possessionem corporaliter recepturus, serenitatem regiam rogandam attente duximus et hortandam, quatinus pro nostra et apostolicæ sedis reverentia procuratori ejusdem prioris, ipsius nomine, ac pro eo, corporalem possessionem prioratûs prædicti, ac bonorum, et jurium suorum omnium, consuetudine contraria non obstante, benigne facias assignari. Sic devote nostris obtemperando precatibus, sic efficaciter quod petimus adimplendo, ut proinde regiæ devotionis promptitudinem, quam in hac parte facilem cupimus inveniri, condignis laudibus attollamus. Si vero quisquam in eodem prioratu de Lenton, se dixerit aliquod jus habere, parati sumus facere sibi super hoc, cum requisiti fuerimus, exhiberi justitiæ complementum. Dat. Priory of Pontefract, in Yorkshire.

FROM a charter of Hugh de la Val, which will be again mentioned presently, it appears that Robert de Lacy founded this priory in the reign of King William Rufus. The "T. venerabilis archiepiscopus Eboraci" therefore spoken of in the founder's two charters, could not have been Thurstin, as Leland suggests,^a but Archbishop Thomas I. who died in the year 1100.

By the founder's first charter it appears, that Pontefract was at its very beginning subjected to the foreign house of La Charité sur Loire, whence its earliest monks were imported: it was dedicated to St. John the Evangelist, and, beside its site in the founder's manor of Kyrkebi, was endowed with the land of Brakenhil, the custody of the hospital of St. Nicholas at Pontefract,^b the lands of Witewde, Maram, and Ledestun, the church of Ledesham with the moiety of the vill, the land at Doddewrthe, a carucate in Altoftes, another in Kyrkeby of the gift of W. Folioth, the west mill at Kyrkeby, a fishery at Witewde extending to Queldale, the churches of Kyrkeby, Kypeis, and Dardinton, the church of Sylkeston of the gift of Suane the son of Ailric with its chapels, and the chapel of St. Clement.^c

In a second charter, the founder describes the boundaries of the land which he had given at Doddewrthe, and confirms Suane's gift of the church of Silkeston, noticing Calthorn as one of its chapels.^d

The third charter printed by Dugdale in the Appendix to the present account, is from Hugh de la Val, who appears to have held the castle and honor of Pontefract in the time of Henry the First, after the expulsion of Robert de Laci and his son Ilbert from the realm.^e This charter, beside confirming the lands and possessions given by the founder to the monastery of La Charité for the use of the monks at Pontefract, adds the church of St. Mary de Foro, six oxgangs of land in Foxoles, the water between the two mills of Castleford, six oxgangs in Silkeston of the gift of Ailfi, the tithe of rents in Kirkeby, a carucate of land, with a manse or house for the sick, the church of Sleteburne, the church of Walley in Cheshire, the chapel and tithes of his demesne of the castle of Clitheroe, the church of St. Mary Magdalen there, and the churches of Calne and Brunley.^f

Henry de Lacy, the younger son of Robert, to whom the honor of Pontefract was restored by the Empress Maud, granted his Charter of confirmation to the monks of Pontefract in 1159, on the day of the dedication of their church; but without any mention in his charter of the monastery of La Charité. The augmentation of former endowments noted in this charter seems to have consisted of sixty shillings yearly from the revenues of Pontefract, and the ferry of Castleford, on the part of Henry de Lacy: and of a toft in Pontefract from Jordan Folioth, and an oxgang in Altoftis from Roger of Poictou, two of the witnesses to Henry's charter.^g

Henry de Lacy, by another charter, granted to this priory his little vill of Kelingley, with the fishery of Bexala, for which the monks are stated to have give him one hundred marks in recognition. In this charter the church is spoken of as dedicated to St. Mary and St. John.^h

Pope Celestin, by a bull which may be considered as another of the greater Instruments of this monastery,ⁱ confirmed the donations to the monks already mentioned; gave them leave to receive such persons into their fraternity as they should think fit; and prohibited any one, who had made his profession there, from departing without leave of the prior, unless it should be to enter into some House of a stricter order. The right of interment, saving the particular privileges of neighbouring churches, was allowed to this monastery; and in the time of any general Interdict, the monks were permitted to perform divine offices under certain restrictions: these were, with closed doors, without the ringing of bells, and in a low voice; excommunicated and interdicted persons being excepted from forming a part of their congregation. By this bull, also, all persons were forbidden to give molestation to the monks of Pontefract.^k

The above are the more important Deeds, relating to the first and general endowment of Pontefract. Sir William Dugdale, however, has preserved a few Instruments in addition; some of them being the originals of grants already mentioned in the greater charters, others detailing subsequent donations.

Adam the son of Suane, the son of Ailric, confirmed the church of Silkeston, which had been given by his father to the monks, together with the chapel of Calthorn, two parts of all the tithes throughout his lands, and his own religious foundation of St. Mary Magdalen of Lunda, subsequently called the Cell of Monk-Bretton, with all its appurtenances; as also the chapel of St. Andrew, near Culcalt, in Cumberland, and sixty acres of land in Calthorne.^l

The grant of the church of Silkeston was again confirmed by Clemencia de Lungvilers in the 22d of Henry the Third:^m and subsequently by Robert de Montbegon.ⁿ

The deed immediately succeeding, copied by Dugdale, is dated in 1289. It confirms the settlement of differences between the monks of Pontefract and those of the cell of Lunda, or Monk Bretton, made in 1269. The substance of this latter deed will be again referred to. It may be sufficient to say here, that the monks of Pontefract, for a valuable consideration, enfranchised their cell of Lunda.^o

The next instrument relates to an exchange between the priory of St. Oswald at Nostel, and that of Pontefract; the former resigning up the tithes of two hundred acres of arable land at Whitwood and Mere; and of fifteen acres of meadow in the former place; the prior and convent of Pontefract, in return, making over other tithes and profits of the priory of Nostel of like value.^p

Alice de Gaunt gave to the monks of Pontefract a carucate of land in Ingolvesmeles for the soul of Ilbert de Lacy, who had first given it to her in dower.^q This grant was afterwards confirmed by Roger de Molbrai, or Mowbray, her husband.^r

Alice de Rumelli gave a carucate in Brocton, with a mansion in that vill where the monks might be entertained. This donation was made for the benefit of the soul of Wil-

^a Itin. vol. i. p. 42. "Robert son to Hilbert Lacie founded instigante THURSTINO the priori of Pontfract." Leland, it is probable, lengthened the T. of the foundation charter to Thurstin, in consequence of that archbishop becoming a monk of Pontefract when he resigned his see in 1139. He died there in 1140.

^b Leland, Itin. vol. i. p. 41, meaning this hospital, says, "There was a college and hospital in Brokenbridg afore the Conquest, wher the Monkes lay until the priorie was erected. It is yet an hospital."

^c Compare the Instrument, Num. I. in the Appendix.

^d See Num. II.

^e Dugdale, in his Baronage, noticing Robert de Laci's gifts to different religious houses, says, "But after all this, both he, and Ilbert his son, were expelled the realm by King Henry the First, and the Honor of Pontefract bestowed on Henry Traverse; who being, shortly after, mortally wounded by one Pain a servant of his own, caused himself to be shorn a monk, and so died within three days. After which, the king gave this Honor of Pontefract to Guy de la Val, who held it to King Stephen's time." Baron. tom. i. p. 99. Hugh de la Val, however, as is evident from the above charter, was lord of Pontefract in the time of Henry the First.

^f See Num. III. It is remarkable that King Henry the First signs as a witness to this charter. Of the church of Walley given by Hugh de la Val, see an ample article in the Appendix, Num. XXVIII.

liam Fitz Duncan, and the souls of others her ancestors.^a It was subsequently confirmed in a separate charter by William de Fory, earl of Albemarle.^b

Peter de Falkeberg gave a moiety of the church of St. Michael at Catthevic. Roger, archbishop of York, and Jordan Folioth, were witnesses to his charter.^c

Jordan Folioth granted three charters to the monks. In one he bestowed upon them the toft in Pontefract, which had been Asger's.^d By the two others he gave them the west mill at Nortun, for which the monks were to pay yearly half a mark to the chapel of that place.^e In the third charter, in addition, he confirmed to the monks a carucate of land at Baghill in Pontefract, which had been given to them by William de Foliot, his father.

Richard, the son of Wlf de Doddewrd, and William, his brother, transferred to the monks their homagers in Doddewrd, together with their services.^f

Geoffrey, earl of Lincoln, gave the passage of South Feribi.^g

Jordan de St. Mary gave all the meadow which belonged to him in the territory of Feria: with other meadow in Friston.^h

Adam Fitz Peter gave the moiety of the mill at Stainburch; ⁱ and, by another charter, half a bovat in Fareburn.^k

John Fitz Adam confirmed thirteen acres of meadow in Smethal, which had been given by his father to the monastery. He also gave two oaks annually to the monks from his wood of Byrkin, with one deer from his park at the feast of St. John Port-Latin, and half the mill of Stainburg.^l

Simon de Mohaut gave two bovates of land of twenty acres, belonging to his demesne in Keswic, together with a toft of an acre in the same vill, the monks receiving him into their fraternity.^m

William Maltravers gave the monks a mark yearly out of his revenues, as long as he should hold the honor of Pontefract.ⁿ

Ralph de Capricaria, and his sister Beatrice, gave the vill of Bernsley, his sons, Jordan and Richard, joining in the grant.^o Jordan's confirmation follows the charter of his father.^p

At the close of these deeds Dugdale has printed an account of the foundation of St. Clement's chapel in the castle of Pontefract, by Ilbert de Lacy;^q which, in early times, appears in some degree to have been slightly connected with the priory.^r

Stevens, in his Continuation of Dugdale, has added to the instruments in the old Monasticon, two Compositions, and a small grant of land, consisting of a toft, and half an acre in Kingburwode.^s

Excerpts from the Chartulary of Pontefract made by Gervase Hollis, "Ex Chartulario olim pertinente Prioratui sancti Johannis Evangelistæ in Pontefracto modo penes Rogerum Doddesworth gen. MS. Lansdown Brit. Mus. 207 A, fol. 537.

In the office of the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer, is a record thus intitled, "Prioratus Pontisfract. Finis solutus pro confirmatione libertatum. Orig. 3 Hen. VIII. rot. 92."

The CONVENTUAL SEAL of Pontefract priory was of an oval form, representing an eagle with wings expanded, looking backwards; and it had this legend. SIGILLVM. SCI. JOHIS. EWANGELISTE. DE. PONTEFRACTO. An impression on white wax of this seal is appendant to a deed to which the prior and convent are parties in the office of the Duchy of Lancaster, dated A. D. 1283.

The ARMS of the priory as emblazoned by Edmondson, were quarterly or and gules, a bend sable, over all a label of five points throughout argent.

There are now scarcely any REMAINS of the priory of Pontefract; the plot of ground called Monk Hill, which continues extra-parochial, indicates the site.

CELESTINUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis Hugoni priori monasterii sancti Johannis de Pontefracto, ejusque fratribus, tam præsentibus quam futuris, regularem vitam professis imperpetuum. Quotiens a nobis petitur quod religioni et honestati convenire dinoscitur, animo nos decet libenti concedere et petentium desideriis congruum suffragium inpartiri. Eapropter dilecti in Domino filii vestris justis postulationibus clementer annuimus, et præfatum monasterium sancti Johannis Evangelistæ de Pontefracto, in quo divino mancipati estis obsequio, sub beati Petri et nostra protectione suscipimus et præsentis scripti privilegio communimus. Inprimis siquidem statuentes ut ordo monasticus qui secundum Deum et beati Benedicti regulam in eodem monasterio institutus esse dinoscitur, perpetuis ibidem temporibus inviolabiliter observetur. Præterea quascumque possessiones quæcunque bona idem monasterium in præsentiarum justè et canonicè possidet, aut in futurum concessione pontificum, largitione regum vel principum, oblatione fidelium, seu aliis justis modis præstante Domino poterit adipisci, firma vobis vestrisque successoribus et illibata permaneant. In quibus hæc propriis duximus exprimenda vocabulis.

Locum ipsum in quo præfatum monasterium situm est cum omnibus pertinentiis suis. Ecclesiam Omnium Sanctorum in Pontefracto cum capellis et omnibus ad eam pertinentibus, et custodiam hospitalis sancti Nicholai intus et foris ad dispositionem vestram in usus pauperum, et Estmolendinum in eadem villa. Ecclesiam de Ledesham, ecclesiam de Kippeis, ecclesiam de Dardintton cum capella de Stapilton, ecclesiam de Sleitteburn, ecclesiam de Silkeston, ecclesiam de Bernesleya, cum capellis et omnibus ad easdem ecclesias pertinentibus. Jus quod habetis in ecclesia de Cathewic, ex concessione Rogeri quondam Eboracensis archiepiscopi, sicut in scripto ejusdem archiepiscopi continetur. Villam de Ledestun et Pecchfeld, et medietatem villæ de Ledesham quam tenetis finaliter ex capitulo Eboraci, et aliam medietatem ex dono Roberti de Lascy, Withewd, Maram, Bernesleiam, Dodewrde, et Kellinglaia^a, cum omnibus earum pertinentiis. Et quicquid in dedicatione ecclesiæ vestræ Henricus de Lacy vobis concessit, scilicet sexaginta solidos per annum de redditu suo in Pontefracto, quos vobis persolvunt receptores hæredis ipsius Henrici, triginta in festo sancti Michaelis, et triginta in Pascha. Et passagium de Castelford ita liberè et quietè sicut Ilbertus frater ipsius Henrici et ipse tenuerunt, et omnibus hominibus vestris qui sunt in feudo de Pontefracto libertatem et quietantiam de omni theloneo et consuetudine seculari in burgo et in foro et extra forum.

Sanè novalium vestrorum quæ propriis manibus aut sumptibus colitis, sive de nutrimentis animalium vestrorum nullus à vobis decimas exigere vel extorquere præsumat. Liceat quoque vobis clericos vel laicos liberos et absolutos è seculo fugientes ad conversionem recipere, et eos absque contradictione aliqua retinere. Prohibemus insuper ut nulli fratrum vestrorum post factam in loco vestro professionem fas sit absque prioris sui licentia nisi arctioris religionis obtentu de eodem loco discedere, discedentem verò absque communium literarum cautione nullus audeat retinere. Cum autem generale interdictum terræ fuerit, liceat vobis clausis januis, exclusis excommunicatis et interdictis, non pulsatis campanis, suppressa voce divina officia celebrare. Sepulturam quoque ipsius loci liberam esse decernimus et eorum devotioni et extremæ voluntati qui se illic sepeliri deliberaverint nisi fortè excommunicati vel interdicti sint nullus obsistat, salva tamen justitia illarum ecclesiarum à quibus mortuorum corpora assumuntur.

Decernimus ergo ut nulli omnino hominum fas sit præfatum monasterium temerè perturbare aut ejus possessiones auferre vel ablatas retinere, minuere, seu quibuslibet vexationibus fatigare, sed omnia integra conserventur eorum pro quorum gubernatione ac sustentatione concessa sunt usibus omnimodis profutura. Salva sedis apostolicæ auctoritate, diocæsani episcopi canonica justitia, et Cluniacensis monasterii debita reverentia. Si qua igitur in futurum ecclesiastica secularisve persona hanc nostræ constitutionis paginam sciens contra eam temere venire temptaverit, secundo tertiove commonita nisi reatum suum congrua satisfactione correxerit, potestatis honorisque sui dignitate careat, reamque se divino judicio existere de perpetrata iniquitate cognoscat, et a sacratissimo corpore ac sanguine Dei et Domini Redemptoris nostri Jesu Christi aliena fiat atque in extremo examine divinæ ultioni subjaceat. Cunctis autem eidem loco sua jura servantibus sit pax Domini nostri Jesu Christi, quatinus et hic fructum bonæ actionis percipiant et apud districtum judicem præmia æternæ pacis inveniant. Amen.

Cum olim inter viros religiosos priorem et conventum monasterii de Pontefracto ex una parte, et suppriorē et conventum monasterii de Brettona ex altera (ipso monasterio de Brettona vacante), discordiae graves ac lites quasi immortales super creatione prioris in dicto monasterio de Brettona, subjectione et obedientia ac aliis libertatibus domus prædictae coram diversis iudicibus per varias literas papales hinc inde impetratas essent subortae, tandem ad instantiam amicorum communium sub hac forma amicabiliter conquieverunt; videlicet quod dictae partes simpliciter et absolute mera et spontanea voluntate ordinationi et provisioni nostrae de consensu patronorum suorum, super hiis et omnibus aliis injuriis hinc inde illatis submiserunt; videlicet Godefridus tunc prior de Pontefracto juravit pro se et successoribus suis ut ratum et gratum haberet et firmum imperpetuum, quicquid pronunciatum, provisum, vel ordinatum fuerit per prædictos ordinatorēs. ‘Cum autem monachi de Brettona priorem in domo sua sibi elegerint seu creaverint, mittent pro priore de Pontefracto apud Pontefractum et non alibi, ut electus seu creatus ipsorum installetur per ipsum. Qui si apud Pontefractum inventus non fuerit, per suppriorem seu quem vocant tertium priorem dicti monasterii de Pontefracto installetur, nec aliquis prædictorum in dicta installatione facienda aliquam ingeret difficultatem, nec aliquid ratione installationis sibi vendicabit, nec ejus installationem protrahent ultra tertium diem quo super installatione facienda fuerit requisitus. Quod si fecerint, tunc per suppriorem vel proprium collegium de Brettona installetur. Nec prior seu conventus de Pontefracto aliquam habeant potestatem impugnandi seu objiciendi aliquod contra formam electi seu creati seu personam, prior verò sic creatus nullatenus amoveatur nisi in casibus in jure contentis.

‘Ordinamus etiam quod illa compositio de qua fit mentio in sententia quæ propter ipsius obscuritatem materiam præbuit et causam dissentionis prædictæ, viribus evacuetur et careat omni robore firmitatis, sola præsentem ordinatione nostra perpetuò valitura. Volumus etiam et ordinamus de expresso prioris et conventus de Pontefracto consensu et voluntate, quod idem prior et conventus de Pontefracto præsentem ordinationem nostram per abbatem et conventum Cluniacensem et priorem et conventum Caritensem faciant et procurent integrè confirmari. Faciant etiam monachis de Brettona degentibus apud Cluniacum liberari et ad monasterium de Brettona reduci. Altera pars residebit penes illos de Pontefracto. Tercia pars penes illos de Brettona. NUM. XXVIII.

[Ibid.]

QUIDAM antecessorum comitis Lincolnia, Hugo de la Val nomine, dedit jus patronatus ecclesiæ de Walley priori et conventui de Pontefracto per cartam suam quam habent, qui præsentaverunt ad eam successive A. B. C. D. qui omnes per diocesanum admissi et instituti fuerunt. Inter quos erat quidam nomine Sparlingo, quo defuncto successit ei quidam Liulphus qui cognominabatur Cuttewlf eo quod sedens quadam vice in foresta de Rossendale ad locum qui vocatur Lednesgrene respiciendo canes suos currentes, lupum quemdam juxta se currentem decaudavit. Defuncto verò prædicto Liulpho, quidam prædecessor dicti comitis vacante dicto prioratu et in sua custodia existente præsentavit nomine custodis quemdam Galfridum ad eandem, qui duxit in uxorem filiam domini Gospatrik de Camelesbury, de qua genuit filios et filias, de quorum progenie multi adhuc nobiles in partibus illis manent. Defuncto prædicto Galfrido successit ei Galfridus filius ejus quasi nomine hereditario, gratia super hoc prius a curia Romana impetrata; quo defuncto, quidam antecessor dicti comitis præsentavit quemdam Rogerum, et post ipsum, Petrum de Cestria, prædictis priore et conventu reclamare non audentibus. Vivente autem prædicto Petro de Cestria, prædictus comes Lincolnia Henricus de Lascy nomine, dedit patronatum prædictæ ecclesiæ de Walley Coventrensis et Lichefeldensis diocesis, abbati et conventui de Stanlawe ordinis Cisterciensis, dictæ diocesis, recepta prius ab eis litera obligatoria, quod quotienscumque vacaret præsentarent ad eam quem ipse aut hæredes sui vellent, et non alium nisi possent eam in proprios usus impetrare, qua impetrata augmentarent numerum solitum monachorum, ita quod ab illo tempore essent lx. ubi prius fuerunt xl. et quod monasterium suum ad territorium dictæ ecclesiæ transferrent. Postea Nicholaus Papa iiij. concessit eis appropriationem ejusdem cedente vel decedente rectore, salvis congruis portionibus pro vicaria. Postea Papa Bonifacius revocavit appropriationes concessas per prædictum prædecessorem suum Nicholaum, de quibus non habebatur ipso die jus in re, licet ad rem. Postea decessit prædictus Petrus de Cestria xvij. kal. Januarii anno Domini mcc. nonagesimo quarto, quondam ad præsentationem avi dicti comitis id est domini Johannis de Lascy institutus, qui in vita sua nunquam cedere voluit. Quo defuncto, prædictus Henricus de Lascy comes, tanquam in priore proposito non existens, ingressus est ad dictam ecclesiam, dictos religiosos multis diebus excludendo, qui pro ingressu habendo remiserunt et quietum clamaverunt dicto comiti et hæredibus suis imperpetuum quandam capellam infra limites dictæ ecclesiæ existentem valentem annuatim c. marcas sterlingorum, et alias multas libertates infra forestas dicti comitis dictæ ecclesiæ ab antiquo spectantes, ut venandi et feras omni tempore anni ad libitum capiendi. Et sic lectis ante fores dictæ ecclesiæ super hiis instrumentis, dic purificationis sanctæ Mariæ post revocationem prædictam adepti sunt ingressum nullum jus ad appropriationem ut prædictum est habentes, præsentis populo non parvo et clamante, "væ vobis simoniaci." Postea composuerunt cum domino Rogero de Meuland tunc episcopo contra hujusmodi ingressum provocante appellante et sequestro interponente de cccl. marcis sterlingorum, de quibus post obitum suum satisfecerunt executoribus dicti episcopi de c. libris sterlingorum, obligantes se et successores suos ad anniversarium dicti episcopi imperpetuum pro residuo faciendum; et sic pacto et precio mediantibus adepti sunt possessionem dictæ ecclesiæ nullum jus habentes ad ejusdem appropriationem, et sic per lapsum temporis xij. annorum devolvitur collatio ejusdem ad dominum papam eo quod de jure vacaret per idem tempus. Ex præmissis patet quod dicti prior et conventus habent cartam et seisynam quod non est aliud nisi præsentatio cum effectu: abbas et conventus prædicti habent solomodo cartam sine seisyna eo quod nunquam præsentaverunt. Ecclesia verò prædicta valet singulis annis ad minus, deductis expensis, quingentas marcas sterlingorum.

Qualiter postea impetraverunt confirmationem prædicti Papæ Bonefacii, nulla facta mentione de conventionibus prædictis, et confirmationem episcopi qui tunc temporis fuit, pro mille marcis sterlingorum, et confirmationem capitulorum Conventrensis et Lichefeldensis et loci archidiaconi pro xv. libris sterlingorum annuæ pensionis imperpetuum solvendis, non est opus exprimere, sed errores prædictos infecte radatis. Hoc autem sciendum quod omnia præmissa notoria sunt, et quod ab ingressu dictorum religiosorum in dictum beneficium, de malo in pejus usque in hodiernum diem ad scandalum cleri et populi dissensio semper pullulavit. Et sciendum quod omnes rectores dictæ ecclesiæ usque ad tempus domini Petri de Cestria cognominabuntur decani, et non rectores. Nuper decessit vicarius dictæ ecclesiæ cujus portiones secundum ordinationem ordinariorum valebant annuatim e. libræ sterlingorum, et præsentatus est ad vicariam nuper ordinatam per dominum papam nunc quidam capellanus, contra cujus ordinationem appellatum est per episcopum et archidiaconum, et causa per impletionem, similiter et collatio eo quod de jure et de facto per annum et dimidium jam vacavit, devolvitur ad papam.

Monk-Bretton, or Lund, Priory, in Yorkshire.

ANNER says, here Adam Fitz Suain, pretty early in the reign of Henry the Second, founded a monastery of the Cluniac Order to the honour of St. Mary Magdalene. In a note, he adds, in the third year of King Henry the Second.^a

The founder made this priory, at first, subordinate to that of St. John Pontefract; to which it paid a mark of silver annually, as an acknowledgement of dependence.

The prior of La Charite sur Loire, however, the superior monastery to both Pontefract and Bretton, in a letter of thanks to the founder for his affection to the Cluniac Order, gave him leave to select such brethren as he might approve, for his foundation at Bretton, from the house of Pontefract and others in England; with liberty to the monks of Bretton to choose their own prior, allowing, at the same time, the prior of Pontefract to sit in the chapter of Bretton at the respective elections if required.^b

A contest, however, respecting the subjection of Bretton to Pontefract soon arose, which was carried on for a very considerable time. Pope Alexander the Fourth, in the first year of his pontificate, A. D. 1255, 39th Hen. III. commissioned the dean and archdeacon of Lincoln to decide between the parties:^c and in 1269 a final agreement was determined upon which settled the question, the substance of which has been already given in the English account of Pontefract, and the Deed itself in the Appendix to that monastery.^d

The payment of a small annual sum to Pontefract continued to the Dissolution.

Burton, who had access to the Register of Monk-Bretton, has given the following list of places wherein the possessions of this priory was situated, with the names of the donors.

Robert Peke, and John Doyne, chaplain, in the 23d Hen. VI. A. D. 1445, gave to Richard the prior and the convent of Monk-Bretton four acres of land in Abboldehag.^e

The monks had lands and tenements in Ackworth, in a place called the Rydding, A. D. 1347, which John son of Godfrid de Stainton restored.^f

Thomas Fitz-Williams gave nine shillings per annum, and one half of a certain measure (windell) of white pease out of lands in Advic in the Street.^g Ralph Haket gave two oxgangs of land here, with tofts, crofts, and a mediety of the mill, together with Ralf the miller, and Hugh brother of Thomas, with all their families and cattle.^h

Roger de Hottun gave one moiety of Akedene.ⁱ

John de Novo Mercato, or Newmarch, held the manor of Alwardethueit, or Ewardthuaith, of the Monks, A. D. 1239, paying them five marks, as free as his uncle Henry enjoyed it.^k

Roger de Rupe, and Letitia his wife, gave one culture of land in Bargh called Roger Rode.^m

Alan de Bretton gave all his land in Barneby.ⁿ

John Thompson, chaplain, and Thomas Robiusion, A. D. 1467, 7 Edw. IV. gave to Richard de Ledes, the then prior, and to the convent, one close called Sighroyde, and some meadow near the bridge of Barnsley.^o John Annotson, of Barnsley, A. D. 1410, gave the monks leave to make a pool or mill-dam in his essart here, called Wylto-kebyl.^a

^a In the first edition of Tanner this foundation was by mistake placed A. D. 1186, when Pope Urban confirmed it.

Dionisia Lasceles, relict of Nicholas Legat, gave all her land, in Becton, or Beghton, in Derbyshire.^b Nicholaa, daughter of Ralph de Novo Mercato, or Newmarch, gave all her land in the park or inclosure here.^c Thomas de Lincoln and Julian his wife gave their part of their park, with their wood here called Westwode.^d Humfrey de Lasceles, with his corpse, gave four acres, with the homage and service of Gamf son of Gamel, who held the same.^e

A. D. 1328, Henry Eynesham gave an annuity of ten shillings out of his lands in the township of Billingley.^f Adam Fitz-Swain gave the tithe of foals (pullonum agrestium) of his demesnes here, wheresoever the mares were.^g Helyas Sorrel gave one toft near the cold well, with one acre and a half thereto adjoining.^h

William de Hepworth and Richard Kydal, chaplains, gave a close in Bolton super Derne, called Esthall-Yard, lying on the east end of the town.ⁱ In 1319, Sir Roger de Novo-Mercato, Knight, gave the advowson of the mediety of the church of St. Andrew de Bolton in Dirnesheth.^k The other mediety, belonging to the Bywaters, or Belews,^l was likewise given to the monks of Bretton; and on the third of January, A. D. 1346, this church was appropriated to that Religious House by William la Zouch, archbishop of York, who, in recompence for the hurt done to his cathedral church thereby, reserved out of the fruits thereof, to himself and successors, the annual pension of one mark sterling, and half a mark to his dean and chapter, payable by the said religious at Pentecost and Martinmas, by equal portions. And, forasmuch as the Church was wont before to be governed by two rectors, he likewise reserved for the portion of that rector, who for his time should have the sole cure of the church, two marks and a half, paid to him, in augmentation thereof, by the said religious at Martinmas and Pentecost; and, as soon as the whole church should fall void, a perpetual vicar was to be appointed therein, who should have the total cure, and the portion of eight marks per annum sterling.^m So, on the 12th of March, 1346, the said archbishop decreed and ordained that there should be in this church a perpetual vicar, to have cure of souls, and to be presentable by the said religious; whose vicarage should consist in these following portions, viz. in one mansion for the vicar's habitation, built at the cost of the said religious; and in eight marks sterling annually paid in the church of Bolton by the said prior and convent, in the octaves of Easter and St. Michael. The said vicar to find in the church bread, wine, and lights, incense for the high altar, and books; and also to repair and wash the vestments, and other ornaments of the church; but to be tied to no other burthens, ordinary nor extraordinary, which the said prior and convent should bear. They also to rebuild the chancel of the church when it stood in need.ⁿ

Peter Blanche and Emma his wife quit-claimed to the priory all their right in one oxgang of land in Bramton.^o Adam Fitz-Swain gave what he had in the same township,^p which was confirmed by Pope Urban the Third.^q

Roger de Montbegon gave common pasture in the township of Brerelay to the monks, for the good of the soul of Adam Fitz-Swain his grandfather.^r

Adam Fitz-Swain gave Monk-Bretton, alias Lund, with all its appurtenances, the whole of which was confirmed by Pope Urban.^s Adam, son of Aky, gave six acres of land in this territory.^t Robert de Beler, of Monk-Bretton, gave to Richard the prior and convent ten selions of land in this territory, in a place called Sholdfeld, abutting upon the meadow of Sholdfeld and Lund, with as much common as belonged thereunto.^u Robert, son of Robert le Pele, gave two oxgangs of land in this territory.^x Benedict Bercarius, or Shepherd, gave half an oxgang of land here.^y John, son of Hugh de Monk-Bretton, gave one messuage with gardens, thirty acres of land and meadow, sixteen acres of wood, pasture in an essart called Calvecroft, and in the pasture in an essart called Westker, as specified by the boundaries.^z Thomas Haron, of Monk-Bretton, A. D. 1443, 21st Hen. VI. gave a close here called Halescroft.^a William Grubber, A. D. 1444, gave one messuage, one acre of land, and one toft and croft here.^b

On the 12th June, 9th of Edw. IV. A. Among the charters given by Lord Frederick Campbell to the British Museum, is one marked vii. 14; a grant of a messuage with certain lands and rents in Boulton, Byllyngley, Munk Bretton, and Wirkesburgh, to Monk Bretton priory, from Henry de Eynesham, for the maintenance of a perpetual chantry in the church of Bolton, for the soul of Henry de Lacy, earl of Lincoln, and the souls of the said Henry de Eynesham, and his father and mother: dated A. D. 1328, on the Wednesday after the feast of the Holy Trinity: and confirmed by the archbishop of York.

Two impressions, on yellowish wax, of the COMMON SEAL of this Priory, both of the reign of Henry the Eighth, are in the Augmentation Office; but they are so obscure and imperfect, that no part of the legends is discernible, nor scarcely any of the subject. There is some ground, however, to conjecture, that it represents Mary Magdalen praying. These impressions appear to have been made from a matrix corroded by time, and nearly worn out. The Seal was of an oval form, and of a size rather larger than usual.

Monk-Bretton Priory was situated in the parish of Royston, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, two miles from Barnsley, on the north side of the river Dearn. The church was gone long previous to Burton's time, but the Gate remained with some part of the Ruins.

OMNIBUS sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit Rogerus de Montebegonis salutem. Noverit universitas, me divinæ pietatis intuitu, dedisse, et concessisse, et hac præsentibus carta confirmasse, Deo, et beatæ Mariæ Magdalenæ de Bretton, et monachis ibidem Deo servantibus, totam forestam de Holecumbe, et pasturam infra divisas subscriptas; videlicet quantum foresta mea se extendit versus Querendonam, in longitudine et latitudine, et ascendendo per divisas forestæ meæ usque ad Langschahchevet, et inde ex transverso, sicut semita dividit, usque in Holecumbehevet; ex transverso usque ad Arkilleshou, et inde per medium Arkilleshou usque ad Pilegrimescrosschahe; et inde descendendo usque ad viam quæ ducit per medium Titleshou, sequendo prædictam viam, usque ad Caldewelle, sequendo Caldewelle sic usque in aquam de Yrewell; ac inde descendendo usque ad Titleshoubroc, et ascendendo per Titleshoubroc usque ad viam quæ ducit per medium Titleshou, et inde versus occidentem, sequendo semitam, quæ dicitur semita latronum, usque ad Salterbrigge; et de Salterbrigge usque ad viam de Oskelleie. Et sciendum est quod prædicti monachi habebunt de bosco inter Holecumbe et Titleshougate sufficientiam ad ædificandum et ardendum pastoribus suis, et ad rationabilem sustentationem averiorum suorum in yeme. Præterea dedi eis tres acras de prato sub Arkillohou, juxta Pilegrimescrosschahe, et singulis annis sepes facere eis licebit circa illud pratum, et circa pratum suum apud Haderleies, prout voluerint. Præterea licebit eis habere ædificia sua, ubi Henricus Lunggeiambe mansit, vel alibi versus Querendonam ubi voluerint. Licebit etiam eisdem illam terram excolere ad victualia pastorum suorum, circa domum in qua idem Henricus mansit, et communicare ubique cum hominibus de Totingtune, salva eis tamen communia quam antiquitus habere solebant. Hanc autem prædictam pasturam, cum prato prædicto (sicut supra scriptum est), dedi et concessi prædictis monachis, in puram et perpetuam elemosinam, pro salute animæ meæ et antecessorum meorum. Ita tamen quod nullus ballivus, seu serviens, seu forestarius meus, vel hæredum meorum, inquietabit vel molestabit homines vel pastores eorum, in aliquibus rebus, nec in cibis, nisi ex mera liberalitate eis conferre voluerint. Salvâ quidem mihi venatione mea, et avibus meis quæ alias capiunt, infra prædictas divisas. Quare volo, firmiterque præcipio, ut prænominati monachi habeant et teneant, et possideant prædictam elemosinam, liberè, et quietè, pacificè, et honorificè, sicut aliqua elemosina melius et liberior poterit teneri. Et ego Rogerus et hæredes me warentizabimus prædictis monachis elemosinam prænominatam, contra omnes homines imperpetuum. Carta Johannis Malherbe.

[Ibid.]

Ego Johannes Malherbe et Matildis sponsa mea unanimiter concedimus ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ de Lunda et monachis ibidem Deo famulantibus, liberè, solutè, et quietè, quicquid Adam filius Suani eis concessit, donavit, et confirmavit: scilicet, in bosco et plano, in molendinis et aquis, omnino sicut ipsemet Adam eis melius et liberior concessit, in universis quæ pertinent ad portionem meam ex hæreditario jure junioris filiæ, quam legitimo mihi desponsavi conjugio. Concedimus etiam prædictis monachis, et præsentibus ibidem carta confirmavimus, pro salute animæ ejusdem Adæ filii Suani, et animæ meæ, et uxoris meæ, et antecessorum nostrorum, partem nostram de Karletun; videlicet, plenariam medietatem ipsius villæ, et quæcunque ad eam pertinent; ecclesiæ quoque de Korestone medietatem, quæ portioni meæ contingit, et ipsius uxoris meæ, in quantum ad nos pertinet, in liberam, et puram, et perpetuam elemosinam. Hujus rei testes sunt, Richardus capellanus, Ranulphus de Morles, Willielmus de Cambervilla, Gaufridus Gerner, Ranulfus Malerb. Willielmus filius Adæ, &c.

Carta Adæ filii Swani de Prioratu de Monkbretton sub-jiciendo.

[Ibid.]

DOMINO Eboracensi archiepiscopo et omnibus fidelibus sanctæ matris ecclesiæ Adam filius Suani salutem. Sciatis quod ego donavi ecclesiæ sancti Johannis de Pontefract ad religionem locum illum S. Mariæ Magdalenæ de Lunda, quem ego fundavi in patrimonio meo ad opus monachorum qui ibidem Deo regulariter servient, pro animabus patris et matris meæ, et pro salute mea et successorum meorum. Propter hoc beneficium concessum est mihi annale pro me fieri in matrice sua ecclesia de Karitate; et in domo sua de Pontefract unum annale, et singulis annis ibidem anniversarium meum, et in omnibus locis suis ubi ordo tenetur, tercennarium, in aliis verò quantum pro uno monacho Cluniacensi. Adam verò prior ejusdem loci adquisitor et primus fundator cum à Pontefract discesserit, in eodem loco de Lunda manebit quamdiu vixerit custos et prior domus. Post cujus decessum prior de Pontefract et monachi ejusdem loci consilio meo et hæredum meorum alios qui idonei sint in loco ejus substituent. Et si fortè aliquis frater de Pontefract pro negotio domus suæ in loco competenti ad me venerit, si honestè fieri poterit, cibis quibus vescor et ipse mecum vescetur. Hujus rei gratia unoquoque anno marcam unam argenti à domo illa de Lunda ecclesiæ sancti Johannis de Pontefract constitui debere persolvi ad recognitionem. Hujus conventionis testes sunt, Osbertus archidiaconus, Radulfus dapifer, Ernaldus et Robertus capellani, Thomas dapifer monachorum. Rogerus archiepiscopus Eboracensis confirmat hanc concessionem.

Priory of Thetford, in Norfolk.

LOMFIELD and Martin have investigated the history of Thetford Priory so closely, that new materials relating to it, in very large abundance, will not be expected from the Editors of the Monasticon.

According to the Annals of Bermondsey, Roger Bigod, the founder, began the building of his monastery here in 1104; though Dugdale, in the former edition of this work, placed the foundation in the year 1103.^a

Geoffery de Rocherio, who was prior of Thetford in the middle of the fourteenth century, has left a detailed account of the foundation.^b Roger Bigod, it appears, a man of great power and reputation in the reign of the two Williams, formed a design of going on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, but commuted his intention by applying the money which he would have expended on his pilgrimage, in the building of a Religious House. By the advice of Elbran, his steward, and William de Walsam, a monk, he determined on making his offer to found a monastery to Hugh, abbat of Cluni; who, though he refused to send monks from his house to colonize the intended foundation, was not displeased to have a new monastery added to the Order, and demanded a mark of silver yearly for the parent Monastery as an acknowledgment of dependence. The church of St. Mary in Thetford, the abandoned cathedral of the East Anglian bishops, was fixed upon as the church for the new Priory, and the cells for the monks being constructed round it of wood, Lanzo, Prior of Lewes, as proctor for the house of Cluni, sent twelve monks to inhabit them, making Malgod, a person of primitive simplicity, their prior. The house and place, however, being found inconvenient, Roger Bigod, began, on the other side of the water, a little without the

His new edifice he ordered to be dedicated to the Virgin Mary; but, dying before its completion,^a Stephen, the second prior of the monastery, carried on the work. He finished it in seven years, and removed his convent into it on the feast of St. Martin, A. D. 1114.

Roger Bigod's deed, declaratory of his foundation, is given in the Appendix to the present account; followed by the endowment deed of William Bigod his son, and the confirmation by King Henry the First.^b

In 1236 the abbat of Cluni complained to the king against Earl Roger, that he would not permit him to visit this monastery, which was a daughter of the church of Cluni, and when he claimed to put in the prior; but, after a suit, the visitation was adjudged to the prior, and the patronage to the earl.

After this, William her son gave them lands and rents in Griston and Wadeton; and William Curzon, and Ralph his son, gave them the tithes of their lands in Watton.

^c A. D. 1248. "Eodem anno, mense Decembri, priori de Thetfordia, natione Sabaudialis, monachus Cluniacensis, qui se consanguineum, vel affinem, vel saltem compatriotam reginæ fecerat, et inde sibi cornua assumpserat, fratres suos Bernardum militem, et Guiscardum clericum monstruosum, ad domum suam de Thetford advocavit. Et ibidem immoderatis commensationibus et potationibus cum eisdem pernox, matutinalium oblitus, usque ad gallicinium de more morabatur indulgens. Rarò missis licet demissis, rarò horis curavit interesse canonicis, manè crapulatus, nocturnos potus ructando exhalavit. Si pauperum esurientium clamor insonuit, hæc fuit illius pectore cura minor, et si quandoque unus fratrum suorum jam dictorum, scilicet Bernardus recessisset, alter, scilicet Guiscardus, cujus venter quasi uter in pruina, cujus quoque cadaver, plastrum oneraret, diutius morabatur, et in charybdi uteri omnia monachorum victualia immersit, et postea ingurgitatus, ipsos sprexit et convitiis lacessivit. Dum igitur prior memoratus, fratres, qui pondera dierum portaverunt et æstus, secus quàm deceret vel expedire tractando, substantiam ecclesiolæ suæ turpiter dilapidaret, et ut dicebatur, metus pudicitiae crapulatus transgrederetur, orta est lis et contentio inter ipsum et quendam monachorum suorum natione Walensem. Nitebatur prior ipsum monachum, quem paulo ante à Cluniaco vocaverat, non charitative sed odiose remittere invitum et renitentem, et rationibus probabilibus sese excusantem. Cumque prior reboando nimis horribiliter juraret, quòd vellet nollet, peregrinaret manticatus, ille Monachus demoniacus ira vehementi vel potius furore succensus, ipsum Priorem cultello extracto evisceravit, nec formidavit illud scelus infra septa ecclesiæ perpetrare. Qui cùm taliter saucius oregmon a gutture emitteret, volens fratres clamando advocare, vel saltem excitare, sed jam præclusis arteriis non valebat, dictus monachus iterum insurgens, et in ipsum irruens, ictus non nugatorios ter vel quater iteravit, cultellum usque ad manubrium in exanimem corpus immergendo, et sic miser miserum non sine ordinis monastici enormi læsione et opprobrio, Deo utrobique irato et ultore, ad tartara destinavit. Hoc idcirco plenius enarravi, ut legentes moniti et castigati, a talibus catigaretur; ne in consimilem confusionem, Deo provocato, præcipitentur. Apprehenditur a supervenientibus auctor sceleris, et ligatus arctissimè custodiæ deputatur. Quod cùm domino regi innotuisset, reginæ pulsatus querelis, jussit ipsum flagitiosum in turri Norwicensis oppidi vinculis mancipatum, profundissimo carcere expertem luminis præcipitari, non obstante causa beati Thomæ Martyris, qui pro quodam sacerdote homicida constanter allegans, et stans usque ad sanguinis et cerebri effusionem ne judicio laicæ curiæ clericus et præcipue sacerdos damnaretur, et ne deordinatus suspenderetur, martyrium toleravit, cùm non puniat Dominus bis idipsum, pœnas laxans peccatorum, et supra merita remunerans, et cum sufficienter una culpa per unicam pœnam prævia debeat dilui ratione. Hæc cùm a quodam Monachorum æmulo in religiosorum obprobrium recitarentur, respondit quidam religiosorum amicus, et religionis amator, et specialis advocatus: In Angelis invenit Dominus prævaricatorem, inter septem Diaconos deviatorem, et inter Apostolos proditorem. Absit ut unius vel paucorum peccatum in numerosam redundet universitatem. Hanc etiam modestiam docet poeta ethnicus, et gentilis dicens:

A. D. 1446, the medieties of the rectory of Brome, in Suffolk, were consolidated, and the prior was to have an alternate presentation; upon which, the following arms and inscriptions were put up in the east chancel window of that church:

JOHN DE FORDHAM occurs A. D. 1372, 1390, and 1395.^m

JOHN IXWORTH succeeded Fordham; and died in 1430.

NICHOLAS occurs A. D. 1431; on whose cession or death the priory was vacant in 1438, when William de Elveden, sub-prior, presented to the rectory of Gatesthorpe.ⁿ

ROBERT WETING occurs A. D. 1483, and again in 1497.

ROGER DE BERNINGHAM, or ROGER BALDRY, of Berningham, occurs prior A. D. 1503, and again in 1511. So Blomfield. But Martin makes them distinct people.

WILLIAM IXWORTH was confirmed in 1518, and continued to the Dissolution; when he and thirteen monks surrendered their Monastery to the King.

The patronage of this priory appears to have been vested first in the Bigods earls of Norfolk; in the 6th of Edward II. in Thomas de Brotherton, who was likewise so created; afterwards in the Mowbrays; and then in the Howards.^o Of the Bigods and Howards, several were buried in the priory church.^p

The deed of exchange between King Henry VIII. and Thomas, Duke of Norfolk, dated 1st April, in the 31st year of his reign, whereby the former granted to the latter the scite, &c. of the Monastery of Thetford, is in the Augmentation Office.^q

The surrender of the monastery having been made on the 16th Feb. 31 Hen. VIII. and the whole possessions passing from the crown in less than two months afterwards, no Minister's Accompts of it are discoverable in the Augmentation Office.

There seems, however, to have been a second grant to the Duke of Norfolk, in the 32d Hen. VIII. dated on the 9th of July. Martin says, it was in consideration of the payment of a thousand pounds: and that by virtue of this grant the duke had all the manors, messuages, lands, woods, rights, court-profits, pensions, obventions, and all other rights, titles, and hereditaments whatsoever, which had belonged to this monastery: all which possessions he held of the king in capite by the service of a knight's fee, and by the rent of 59*l.* 5*s.* 1*d.* yearly, payable to the treasurer of the court of Augmentations.^r

The Duke of Norfolk, says Tanner, once intended to refund herein a college of secular priests: but King Henry Glemham, Offeton, Durmondston, Trofton, Lyvermere, Burnham, Bellings, Breset Parva, Brome, Thurton, Westwyke, Downham, Southwold, Roydon, and Stoven, in the county of Suffolk. In Dullingham, Ixning, Monkwyke, and Ditton, in the county of Cambridge: and in Finchingfield and White Nottley, in the county of Essex; which were late pertaining to the aforesaid monastery of our Blessed Lady of Thetford, and to the priory or cell of Wangford, in Suffolk, or either of them."

^r The following is the abridgment of this grant among the abstracts of the Originalia:

Orig. 32 Hen. VIII. p. 1. Anglia Norff. Rex nono die Julii, in consideratione maneriorum de Hardwyk, Kemote, Bonnesnorton, Widdford, Coggs, et firmæ de Coggs Rodehurst, concessit Thomæ duci Norff. the VIII. it appears, would not allow him to proceed in the design.

The present owner of the site of Thetford is Lord Petre.

The value of the possessions of this priory, as they were returned in the Taxation of 1291, will be found in the note: the total of the spiritualties, including the appropriated churches, amounted at that time to 35*l.* 1*s.*; the temporal revenues to 78*l.* 12*s.* 5½*d.*^a

In the 26th Hen. VIII. this priory was found to be endowed with a gross income of 418*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.* The clear revenue amounted to 312*l.* 14*s.* 4½*d.*^b lands between the king and the duke of Norfolk, and the prior and convent of Thetford."

Among the RELIQUES preserved in this Priory, Blomfield, from a manuscript in the library of Corpus Christi college Cambridge, enumerates the following: Various pieces of the purple robe of our Lord, of the girdle of the Virgin Mary, of the Holy Sepulchre, of the rock Calvary, and of the manger of our Lord; of St. George's body; with other reliques of St. Vincent, St. Leodegar or Leiger, St. Barbara, St. Gregory, St. Leonard, and St. Jerom; with some of St. Agnes's hair, pieces of the coffins of St. Edmund and St. Etheldreda, and of St. Lazarus's clothes. These are said to have been all shown at Thetford till the Dissolution.

In the Abbreviatio Placitorum of the 7th Joh. p. 52, is a Pleading relative to the convent's right of faldage in Thetford: and, p. 106, another between the abbat of Cluni and Roger Bigod of the 24th Hen. III. concerning the patronage of this priory.

In the Abbreviatio Rotulorum Originalium, tom. i. p. 8, we read, "29 Hen. III. Berk. Quia prior de Theford habuit ad firmam manerium de Litelcumb de abbate et conventu Cluniac. mand. est vic. Berk. quod de eodem manerio plenam seis. ei habere fac. Quia idem Prior manucepit coram rege quod eandem firmam fideliter solvet ad scaccarium regis." ro. 6.

The Veredictum Militum Libertatis Sancti Eadmundi in comitatu Suffolch. printed with the Hundred Roll for that county, Rot. Hundred. tom. ii. p. 153, "Dicunt quod monachi de Theford appropriant sibi war. in Dunham et Elveden sine waranto de novo."

In the Inquisition for Suffolk of the 3d Edw. I. other notices of Thetford priory and its possessions occur, ibid. pp. 186, 193, 196.

In the Placita de Quo Waranto of the 14th Edw. I. for Suffolk, p. 729, is a Pleading relating to the privileges of the priory at Dersham in that county; and another, p. 732, as to the manor of Brome, near Eye, in Suffolk.

The ARMS of Thetford priory have been already described as Or and Vert, a lion rampant Gu. This was the coat of Marshall earl of Pembroke, whose arms the Bigods sometimes bore, in right of the marriage of Hugh Bigod with Maud, daughter, and at length co-heir, of William Marshall, earl of Pembroke.^a

Martin has engraved the SEAL of this priory, from the impression appendant to the Surrender still remaining in the Augmentation Office. It is large, of an oval form, the area exhibiting the figure of the Virgin Mary with the infant Jesus in her lap. The inscription round is SIGILLVM . PRIORIS . ET . CONVENTVS . MONACHORVM . THETFORDIE.

Blomfield, who published the first volume of his History of Norfolk in 1739, gave an account of the RUINS of Thetford priory as they then stood. They were large; and the prior's apartment, which was at the west end of the cloister, had stood whole till 1737, when a part of the roof was taken off. The abbey-gate, which was opposite to it, at a good distance, close by the road, was twelve yards square and fourteen high, with two turrets; it was built of freestone and black flint. The priory church was large, and had a tower between the nave and choir. The cloister was on the south side. Even at that time these ruins were almost daily lessening for the sake of the materials. The foundations of a chapel on the north side of the choir showed that building to have been in size not much inferior to the choir itself.

The gateway, with some of the out-buildings, and parts of the church, are still remaining.

Fragmentum Historiæ Cænobii Thetfordensis autore Gaufrido ejusdem Locī Monacho. Ex Codice MS. Coll. Corp. Cantab. I. 329, seculo xv^o. ineunti exarato.

[Martin, Hist. Thetf. Append. p. 29.]

FRATRIBUS commanentibus in Thetfordensi ecclesia, cujus protectrix extat Virgo Maria, vester Gaufridus ejusdem Virginis Filio perseveranti deservire obsequio.

Injunxerunt michi viri illustres Albinus et Ricardus, quorum amore cordis mei totus flagrat affectus, opus licet modernum et modicum, tamen ecclesiam nostram incolentibus non contempnendum; causam scilicet et initium Thetfordensis cænobii litterali noticia propalare, et fundatores, rectores, et edificatores ejusdem evolute intimare, ad singularis Virginis Filii gloriam et nostrorum posteram noticiam; liberalitatem eciam regum, assensum præsulum, largicionem procerum in ipsius augmentacione, et quædam miracula relatu digna præceperunt inserere. Quibus me recolo dedisse responsum, nullum ad hæc in tantum fore ydoneum sicut sanctæ memoriæ patrem nostrum venerabilem priorem Deo dignum Stephanum. Ipse enim singulariter et specialiter super omnes jam dicti cænobii procuratores laborando, edificando, et ecclesiæ res augendo effulsit; utpote qui prima fundamenta elegit, jecit, collocavit; primum lapidem posuit, opusque totum cum claustralibus edificiis, et lapidibus vivis, honestis monachis perornavit, licet laboriosè, tamen felici opere confirmavit. Cujus relacioni ideo auris adhibenda est, quod eum pene omnia visu et auditu didicisse clarum est. Et hoc reverendus pater pro conservanda tenuit humilitate, ne ab imperitis nota infameretur jactantiæ quasi ex propriis operibus laudem vellet acquirere. Et satis juste. Nam opera ejusdem patris a paupertate incepta, jam augmentata, jam dilatata, se intuentibus quodammodo loquuntur; juxta illud, 'licet viri justī lingua taceat vita sua cum operibus clamat.' Quia igitur quæ honestatis et utilitatis sunt videntur jubere, et omnium honestorum sit turpibus non annuere, honestis non contradicere, orationum vestrarum fultus auxilio, ea caritate qua injungit illorum dignacio, eadem quantum sapio hoc modo enarrat mea devocio.

Anno ab Incarnacione millesimo c^o. liii^o. a passione sancti Edmundi regis et martiris cc^o. xxxiiii^o. ab introitu Normannorum in Angliam xxxvii^o. regni autem Henrici gloriosi regis Anglorum tercio, præfuit universæ Angliæ post eundem regem vir quidam strenuus Rogerus, cognomento Bigotus. Hic in fascibus regii examinis constitutus, vir justicialis et providus, malefactoribus ferus et rigidus, benignus, modestus et quietus, pacem omnibus in locis potestate justiciaria præferebat, regisque vices honeste gerebat. Hanc vero potestatem ad exequendam in regno justiciam non recenter tunc exercuit, sed a tempore Willelmi ducis, qui Normannorum primus Angliam bello subegit, et regnum xxii^{bus} annis strenue rexit, et succedentis Willielmi, cujus ferocitatem non solum Gallica sed etiam gens longinqua verebatur et barbarica, qui et ipse Anglorum monarchiam xiii. annis famosissime tenuit, isdem Rogerus longo tempore claruit, utpote tocus regni custos præcipuus, et probatus universæ plebis patricius. Qui tandem divino nutu sibi metuens, et in novissimis intelligens, providens, et præcavens, vidit se potestatem acceptam non posse peragere sine magnis peccatis: potestas enim, si defuerit pietas, ministra est iniquitatis; et revera familiaris potestati adhæret crudelitas quam pietas. Unde scriptum est, 'judicium duricium in hiis qui præsumunt fiet.' Et illud beati Gregorii Anglorum apostoli, 'omnis qui dispensandis terrenis rebus præsidet occulti hostis oculis lacius patet.' Vir igitur prudens, pro excessibus suis valde timens, et memoratæ potestati famulando se ad vitæ regnum accingere non posse verens, hujusmodi proposuit aggredi viam, peregrinando proficisci Jerosolimam, ut adoraret in loco ubi steterunt pedes Domini, utique pro viribus divinæ obsequeretur dignacioni. Habuitque super hoc consilium cum hominibus suis honestissimis scilicet et sapientissimis viris. Qui de absencia sua valde condolentes, verba plurima inter se conferentes, accersito quodam Etbranno, tunc dapifero, viro in seculi legibus erudito, per eundem Etbrannum hujusmodi eum allocuti sunt responso: 'Nosti, honorabilis domine, quod per industriam et probitatem tuam nobis et aliis multis dederit Deus honorem et gloriam. Quod si hujus itineris compos effectus elongeris a nobis, sicut tua præsentia materia fuit diviciarum et exaltacionis sic et tui absentia multis erit causa miseriarum et abjectionis. Ideo quæsumus et consilium nostrum gratanter accipias, et boni voluntatem nequaquam amittas. Pecuniam scilicet, quam in hoc itinere erogare habueras, viris religiosis benigne porrigas, qui in dominio tuo a fundamentis monasterium construant, sub patre spirituali et ordine vivant, oraciones pro te et per se et successores suos, quamdiu mundi cursus durabit, faciant. De terræ vero tuæ fundo et possessionum nostrarum redditibus prædia et decimæ illis dentur pro nobis et nostris orantibus. Hoc si feceris, et nostris favebis votis et Christi præceptum amplecti videberis in evangelio dicentis; 'Date elemosinam et omnia munda sunt vobis, et facite vobis de mammona iniquitatis ut cum defeceritis recipiant vos in æterna tabernacula.” Attende quæso venerabilis Albine. Quisquis prudens hujusmodi consilium attendit, et cui vel a quibus personis datum sit, in Spiritu Sancto percipit, quod exemplo Moysi et Raguelis, Rogerus, unius consilium dantis, alterius consilio adquiescentis, de spinis capserit botrum et de tribulis ficum. Hæc est enim unica via unice perigrinationis, animum scilicet viriliter intendere eleemosinis; ad cuius viæ iter conficiendum elatorum non sufficit tota vita divitum: multarum siquidem dierum est via, et difficilis infirmos gressus ex cupiditate habentibus, et mundanis curis ex superbia coherentibus. Ideo Dominus de hujusmodi in evangelio. Audito igitur tantorum virorum consilio, et hoc saluberrimum perpendens sibi fore et posteris suis coram Deo, assensum humiliter præbuit; et quod devote laudaverat, devocius ipse perficere satagit. Benedictus per omnia Filius gloriosæ Virginis Mariæ, qui potens est suscitare de lapidibus duris filios Abrahæ! Tunc beatissimo Anselmo, clarissimo doctore, præsidente, et sedis apostolicæ legacione fungente, quodam monacho Willelmo de Wals potissimum suggerente, requisivit Rogerus sanctum Hugonem abbatem Cluniacensem per venerabilem Lanzonem priorem Latiscensem, ut ei monachos a Cluniaco dignaretur dirigere, quibus parabat monasterium edificare in sui fundi propria tellure. Quam petitionem vir sanctus et prophetiæ spiritu clarus gratanter amplectens, sed monachos in Burgundia educatos Anglicæque consuetudinis et linguæ ignaros in tam remotam patriam mittere timens, hanc curam eidem Lanzoni injunxit ut de honestis viris mores et consuetudines patriæ cognoscentibus construeret locum, quem daturus erat sæpe-fatus Rogerus. Et quamdiu ipse Lanzo viveret prior et custos ejusdem loci esset; censum eciam karitatis quem Rogerus dabat unoquoque anno marcam argenti de suo dominio memoratus Lanzo redderet Cluniaco; illo vero universæ carnis viam ingresso, mox post mortem ejus locus ille et prior et fratres ibi degentes prope et inconcesse intenderent Cluniaco, nulliusque alterius in posterum subicerentur magistro, sicut monasterium de Monte Acuto, et illud de Latiscensi castro, et sicut locus de Lentona in Notingensi pago. Facta autem concessione hac ab Hugone abbate sanctissimo, impetrata eciam licencia et concessione ab Henrico rege liberalissimo, consilioque et Anselmi beati archipræsulis et Herberti Thetfordensis episcopi accepto, providit Rogerus cum primatibus regalis curiæ talem locum in honore sanctæ Dei genitricis et Virginis Mariæ apud Thetfordiam construere. Est autem Thetfordia villa antiqua et regia, plurimis ecclesiis insignis, et egregia habitatione honestorum virorum cum honestis mulieribus ampla et diffusa, mercibus diversarum rerum habundans, et læta populorum conventu pro exequendis justiciæ legibus celebris et discreta: limes certus sua marca Norfolchiæ et Suffolchiæ, dives et sana pro ascensu et descensu semper currentis aquæ, quam episcopalis sedes et cathedra ab antiquo adornabat tempore, cuius gloria translata est et promota ad Norvicum a prædicto Herberto præsule. In hac itaque villa, seu villa Thetfordensi, cœpit Rogerus officinas monachiles construere circa ecclesiam beatæ Virginis Mariæ. Quam ecclesiam cum terra et omnibus rebus ad eam pertinentibus per commutationem et scambium propriæ terræ suæ adquisierat ipse Rogerus a Ricardo Ervasti filio, qui eam tenebat quasi jure hæreditario, concedente et confirmante hoc ipsum scambium rege Henrico. Peractis tandem officinis ligneis misit venerabilis Lanzo XII. monachos, viros honestos et religiosos, quibus præfecit priorem tredecimum summæ simplicitatis virum nomine Malgodum. Veneruntque illis obviam duo viri sapientes et industrii, a Rogero et barnagio^a suo directi, Rannulfus Walteri filius et Radulfus de Valle Rodomsbry, suscipientes eos apud Anglorum metropolim Londoniam, sicut viri honesti adduxerunt eos cum honore et reverentia Thetfordiam. Eo die erat festivitas transitus beatissimi Martini Turonensis, fuitque ipse Rogerus cum uxore et manu militari, sollemnis et hilaris clericorum procerum multorumque congaudencium populorum conventus, hac de causa ex diversis provinciis congregatus. Eodem die, feria, viz. ii. hora ipsius diei quasi nona, Luna illucescente vicesima, ingressi sunt ecclesiam antiquam beatæ Mariæ et omnium Sanctorum, quæ antea fuerat capud et sedes orientalium Anglorum. Et sicut eandem villam habitantes pro episcopatus translacione quæ nuperime acciderat fuerant tristes, ita nunc in tantorum virorum adventu videbantur gaudentes, de ———^b Domini per oraciones et laudabilem eorundem conversationem præsumentes. Cœperunt itaque monachi ab illo die et deinceps regulariter vivere; et Rogerus cum supradicto Malgodo priore novum monasterium intra burgum construere, ubi fere per tres annos operati sunt cum magna devocione. Post hoc visum est domino Lanzoni ut removeret jam dictum Malgodum de loco Thetfordensi.

Erat eo tempore in Latiscensi monasterio, vir vita et doctrina clarus, cunctis pro suorum honestate morum carus, gemma scientia apprime eruditus, nomine Stephanus. Hic in partibus provinciæ oriundus, utriusque parentis stirpe ingenuus, patrem spiritualement meruit habere Hugonem abbatem sanctissimum, in cuius præsentia et benedictione monachicum apud Burgundiam induerat habitum. Et certe sicut de bona arbore bonus fructus, ita de sancto magistro sanctus enituit discipulus. Qui in præfato monasterio ejusdem abbatis vices cum venerando Lanzone priore mature gerebat; seipsum aliis prædicando exemplum et formam præbens, prudencia et discrecione in confessionem accipiendo et poenitentiam injungendo apparens. In quem fratres ita corde Spiritus Sancti amore converterant, ut si de amissione patris infortunium eo superstite incurrissent, illum in loco ipsius patrem et dominum amplecti vellent; hoc siquidem est quod legitur, ‘humilis homo triumphat in domo.’ Hunc igitur Deo dignum Stephanum, præ omnibus electum, in vitæ honestate et morum probitate tunc nulli secundum, pater Lanzo Thetfordiam direxit, ibique eum priorem præfecit. Quod cum intimaretur fratribus, oritur mox inter eos immoderatus planctus, tristitia, et luctus; super omnes vero sancta recordatione dignus conquestus est Beluacensis Eustachius, qui postea congregationi prioris jure multis annis præfuit pater piissimus. Cui super hoc valde dolenti et præ aliis audacius conquerenti venerabilis Lanzo in fratrum audientia responsum dedit hujusmodi: ‘Domini nostri abbatis urget præceptio, ut vir talis mittatur Thetfordensi monasterio, qui præsit loco, et loci placeat advocato. Oportet igitur fratres ut sanctissimi patris nostri Hugonis præcepto obediamus, et Rogero Bigoto satisfaciamus, qui post regem quasi secundus in omni regno dominatur, et sicut vir sapiens et honestus ubique honoratur. Num qui vestrum aliquis me amplius dominum Stephanum diligit? Sed justum est ut honestorum secularium vota per honestorum fratrum compleantur adjumenta. Et si mihi concedatur optio, secundum id quod disponit de eo vestra dileccio, Dei nutu ad nos redibit in proximo.’ Hac fratres accepta missione, gavisus sunt de tanta patris tanti promissione. Non tamen sine multorum lacrimis recessit; quem Thetfordiam ad multorum commodum venisse nostra parvitas lætatur, gratulatur, et attestatur; et plurimorum utriusque sexus emendacione veraciter comprobatur. Veniens igitur vir sanctus ad Thetfordensem burgum, vidit locum illum, in quo edificare cœperant, valde angustum, et domibus burgensium undique circumseptum, et oportunitate carentem ad construendam habitationem monachorum. Providensque sicut vir disertus in posterum, primo se continuis precibus ad Virginis Filium, dehinc ad Willelmum de Albini contulit, in regno tunc potentissimum, excellentissimi regis Henrici consiliarium, Rogerique Bigoti generum. Per hunc itaque crebro requisivit Rogerum Bigotum, ut monasterium suum removeret extra burgum in ampliorem locum, ut oportunius monachi illo se removerent ad habitandum, et supervenientes cujusque ordinis hospites honestius susciperentur ad hospitandum. Quæ res quamvis displiceret multis, et etiam quibusdam ex monachis; tamen consilio et admonitione jam dicti Wilelmi, Domini voluntate, concessit Rogerus prætaxatæ petitioni. Et providerunt omnes in simul locum amœnum et amplum super fluvium ubi Deo cooperante cœperunt in honorem beatæ et gloriosæ Virginis Mariæ monasterium per Herberti Norwicensis episcopi consideracionem et consilium, qui tribus vicibus propriis manibus incepit fodere fundamentum. In quo vir loco Henricus rex, sciens et sapiens, et monachorum oportunitate providens, prius laudaverat, et admonuerat Rogerum Bigotum, ut ibi construeret monasterium, quod non provide nec decenter inceperat infra burgum. Tandem ab operariis valde perfossa terra utpote sabulosa, in profundo, cunctis in commune deprecantibus ut ipsum initium opere perficeretur secundo, præfatus prior dulci memoria semper recolendus Stephanus, et ipse Bigotus cum multis secum advenientibus proceribus, primos fundamenti lapides imposuerunt. Eadem die promisit Deo Rogerus coram multitudine omne illud opus de suo proprio censu construere: et de nominatis in quodam manerio suo xv. libras pro fundamentis perficiendis; intimavit priori ut post festum beatæ Mariæ duos monachos ei festinaret mittere. Habebat enim providere unum manerium quod donare proposuit beatæ Mariæ ad sustentacionem monachorum. Cœpitque multis exponere idem Bigotus, dudum indomabilis et rigidus, tunc autem humilis et devotus, qua intentione illud opus construere diu flagraverat, quod Dei gratia jam cum illis cœperat. Exposuitque illis monasterii libertatem in posterum, quod unusquisque gratanter accepit audiencium, ut viz. sicut supra taxavimus, nulli unquam alii subjiceretur magisterio nisi abbati Cluniacensi et ipsi Cluniaco. Hæc omnia facta sunt octavo die ante Nativitatem beatæ Mariæ, fundamentum scilicet inceptum, et hæc promissiones et considerationes factæ. Sed quid perfectum in rebus humanis? Non est, ut legitur, mare hic stare, non in seculo est quod jam possis amare. Plena sunt omnia lacrimis, incertis omnia involvuntur periculis. Vita nostra quippe incerta, incerto labori et putredini subjecta, dum ocio hebescit, et opera deficit; ipsa ejus salus, juxta Gregorium, ægritudo est, cui curanda necessitas nunquam deest. Et sicut eloquens vir Ildebertus Turonorum antistes veraci stilo nostras transmisit ad aures, res hominum atque homines levis alea versat in horas. Heu dolor et tristitia! Nam præfatus Rogerus octavo die a fundamento incepto vitam terminavit apud Ercsam, novo nunc castro nominato. Et ipse episcopus Norwycensis manebat in ejusdem villæ confinio, est enim ipsa villa Norwyco contiguo miliaria quasi denario: venerabilis episcopus non caritative faciens, noctu corpus rapuit, et Norwycum ad sepeliendum transportavit, contradicentibus uxore et hominibus ejus ibidem tunc astantibus. Ideo autem dixi episcopum non fecisse caritative, quod constat eundem Rogerum se uxorem et omnes suos in præsentia episcopi ejusdem priori dedisse, viz. ad sepeliendum corpora eorum Thetfordiæ in cimiterio monasterii beatæ Virginis Mariæ. Quod cum patri nostro nunciatum esset, apud Thetfordiam tunc constituto, pluribus novelli operis rebus intento, cum quatuor fratribus Norwycum festinanter perrexit, corpus super feretrum in medio positum invenit; et cum uxore Bigoti et pluribus amicis episcopum precando et supplicando requisivit, ut corpus redderet sepeliendum in cimiterio beatæ Mariæ ubi se et suos reddiderat in vita sua, ipso episcopo hoc audiente et annuente. Quod episcopus valde acriter tenuit; et prius precando et blandiendo, et plurima promittendo priorem et eos qui cum ipso erant, requisivit ut permitteret corpus sepelire in pace et bona voluntate ad Norwycum, remota penitus omni calumpnia in perpetuum. Quam rem pater noster nullo modo concedere voluit. Et tam ipse, quam fratres qui cum ipso erant, et plures alii, sicut est consuetudo religionis monachorum, prostraverunt se ad pedes episcopi, ut prædictam rem concederet eis, corpus viri jam dicti defuncti quod episcopus cum ira magna se facere negavit. Tunc prior ex parte Domini et beatæ Mariæ

Priory of Little Horkesley, in Essex:

A Cell to the Priory of Thetford.

FROM the first charter printed by Dugdale in the Appendix to the present Account, it appears that this Priory was founded in the reign of Henry the First, to the honour of St. Peter, by Robert Fitz Godbold, for Cluniac monks. Robert Fitz Godbold and Beatrice his wife state in this their foundation charter that they had given certain churches to the priory of St. Mary Thetford, upon condition that the prior of Thetford, with the consent of his whole priory in chapter, should send as many Monks to serve God in the church of St. Peter of Horkesley as the place could conveniently maintain; and, for the better subsistence of the monks so appointed, Robert and Beatrice assigned certain other churches; namely, the church of Wiseton, in Suffolk; the church of Assildeham, in Essex, with sixty acres of land belonging to it; a moiety of the church of Boxted, and the tithe of Robert's demesnes in that parish. Beatrice also gave the tithes of her land which she had received in dower, and of that which had been given to her by Turolde her uncle. Robert and Beatrice, moreover, gave the monks here tithes in Foleton and Fordham. By this charter, also, the monks of Horkesley were to be free, and exempt from the jurisdiction of the priory of Thetford, paying to it, however, half a mark of silver annually as a recognition.^a

Gilbert bishop of London, in the second charter printed in the Appendix, confirmed the founder's endowment, together with a donation, chiefly of tithes, from Robert Fitz Robert.^b

Robert Fitz Philip, the great-grandson of the founder, also granted the monks a charter of confirmation, though without date.^c

Hubert archbishop of Canterbury subsequently confirmed to the monks the appropriation which had been made to their use by John bishop of Norwich of the church of Wisetune.^d

Morant says that Henry and Alan de Creffeld were benefactors to this house before the reign of King Edward the Third.^e In the 13th Hen. IV. he adds, Ralph Chamberleyn, Matthew Sayer, Oliver at Hoo, and Thomas Hanssepe had licence to give one messuage, one toft, a hundred and twenty acres of arable land, five acres and a half of meadow, ten acres of pasture, five acres of wood, and 16s. 8d. rent in Little Horkesley and Whythermondeford, to the priory of Little Horkesley.^f

The spiritual possessions of this priory, as well as its temporalities, appear to have been but of small value in 1291.^g

From an Extent of the possessions taken in the 18th Edw. II. the annual revenue of the house appears then to have amounted to 10*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.* exclusive of the church of Boxted, which, being appropriated to the monks, was let to farm at the further annual sum of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*^h

Horkesley was one of the Small Monasteries which Cardinal Wolsey obtained leave from the pope in 1525, and from Henry VIII. in 1526, to make part of the endowment of his College at Oxford. Its spiritualties were then valued at 11*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per annum, its temporalities at 16*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.*; making a total of 27*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.* yearly.ⁱ Tanner says, when Cardinal Wolsey suppressed it, Sir Roger Wentworth claimed to be founder in right of his wife. Upon the Cardinal's premunire it escheated to the crown.

Sir John Huddilston possessed the site of this priory in 1554, when he got licence from Queen Mary to alienate the manor of Little Horkesley, called le Priory, to Roger Parker. In 1555 it passed into the family of Ball; and, long subsequent, into that of Joscelyne.^k

In the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer's Office is, "De Roberto Ball, occasionato ad ostendendum quo titulo tenet manerium sive mesuagium vocatum Le Priory de Parva Horkesleigh in com. Essexiæ." Mich. Rec. 10 Eliz. rot. 54.

The charters of this priory given in the former edition of the Monasticon by Dugdale, and which form the four first articles in the Appendix to the present account, are no doubt the same which Tanner refers to as preserved in Ashmole's Museum.

Tanner adds the following references to public Records:

"Rot. pat. 2 Ric. II. p. 2, m. 14, pro tenemento in Wiston, com. Suff. Escaet. 2. Ric. II. n. 115, Suff.

"Pat. 13 Hen. IV. p. 2, m. 13, pro ten. in Horkeslee Parva et Withermornford."^l This last has been already quoted from Morant.

No SEALS of the priory or its priors have as yet been discovered.

The PRIORY stood on the north side of the church of Horkesley Parva, where Mr. Joscelyne's house was when Morant wrote.

Priory of Wangford, otherwise called Reydon St. Peters, in Suffolk.

wich, to St. Peter and St. Paul.

ANNER says, here was a priory of Cluniac monks, Cell to Thetford, before the year 1160,^b said to have been founded by Doudo Asini,^c steward to the king's household. It was often seized, during the wars with France, as alien; but was made denizen in the 17th Ric. II. It was dedicated, according to Weever, to St. Mary; according to the Registers of the diocese of Nor-

^a Tanner says, often so called, because then probably in Reydon; and Wangford hath grown into a distinct parish from it since that time.

^b In the charter of King Henry II. (attested by Robert bishop of Exeter, who died A.D. 1159, by Nigel bishop of Ely and Hilary bishop of Chichester, who both died A.D. 1169,) mention is made of the monks of Thetford as being settled here.

^c So Leland, Collectanea, vol. i. p. 62; but in the collection of the "Dapiferi Regis" made by Mr. Madox (Hist. of the Exchequer, pp. 34, 35,) there is no such name, nor in any of the historians or records, as far as bishop Tanner could find. He says, quære, therefore, whether Doudo Asini was not the same with Eudo Dapifer, the founder of St. John's Colchester, who subscribed Bishop Herbert's charter to Norwich immediately after Roger Bigot, the founder of Thetford, and out of respect to him might give this place to that monastery temp. Hen. I. Weever ascribes the foundation of this House to one ANSERED of France; and amongst the deeds of Sir John Rous's family is a charter of Sir Geraline de Vernuns, who grants and confirms "Deo et ecclesiæ S. Patri de Wangford et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus quicquid pater meus Anteredus eis dedit et concessit, scilicet ecclesiam de Reinduna cum capella de Rissemere et omnibus ad eam pertinentibus, et molendinum aquaticum de Reinduna cum stagno, et unam acram terræ, quæ jacet juxta molendinum, ad emendationem stagni." Tanner says this deed is without date; but Rogerus filius Osberti being a witness, he supposes him to have been Roger Fitz Osbert, founder of Herlingfleet priory, who flourished in the reign of King John and King Henry

Tanner has the following references concerning this priory to public records:

There are no Ministers’ Accounts of this priory in the Augmentation Office.

Some slight traces of this House are visible on the north side of the church of Wangford.^g

The proceeds, it will be seen, from the different places mentioned, amounted to an annual income of little more than thirteen pounds.

A more full account of the possessions of this house will be found in an Extent in the Appendix, dated in the 44th Edw. III.^b

The name of one prior only has occurred: viz. REGINALD, in the 3d Ed. I.^c

At the time of the Dissolution the yearly revenues of this priory amounted to 30*l.* 9*s.* 5*d.*^d The site was granted, together with the monastery of Thetford, in the 32d Henry VIII. to Thomas duke of Norfolk; whose son sold it to Sir John Rous in the year 1612. In this family it still continues, being the property of the Earl of Stradbroke, who is also lord of the manor of Wangford, and patron of the church, which is a perpetual curacy.

Priory of Montacute, in Somersetshire.

ANNER, from a passage or two in the Histories of Glastonbury, ascribes the foundation of Montacute priory to King William the Conqueror :^a but Leland, and the charter of endowment which will be found in the Appendix,^b make it more probable that it was really founded by William earl of Moreton, who amply endowed it, and granted it to the monks of Cluny in the beginning of the reign of Henry the First.^c It was dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul.

The possessions and privileges of this priory are so fully detailed in the charters of King Henry the First and King Henry the Second, that a recapitulation here is unnecessary.^d A grant of land at Cairleon from Winebald de Baeluna is recorded in a separate charter.^e

In the 13th of Edward the Third, the advowson or patronage of this priory was granted to William de Montacute, earl of Salisbury ;^f and in the following year was confirmed in a more extended form to him and his heirs.^g

The revenues of Montacute in 1291 amounted, in the diocese of Bath and Wells alone, to the sum of 163*l.* 11*s.* 1*d.* and in the dioceses of Exon and Salisbury to 9*l.* 3*s.* 6½*d.* : making a total of 172*l.* 14*s.* 7½*d.*^h According to an Extent of the lands belonging to this priory in Somersetshire in the 18th of Edward the Second, the same were found to amount to the annual revenue of 44*l.* 7*s.* 10*d.*

In the 8th of Henry the Fourth this priory was made denizen. In the 26th of Henry the Eighth its gross revenues were returned at the sum of 524*l.* 11*s.* 8½*d.* The clear income at 456*l.* 13*s.* 3¼*d.*ⁱ

PRIORS of MONTACUTE.

Willis, in his Mitred Abbies, has given us from a Cottonian manuscript which has long since been reduced to a state little better than a crust,^k a long List of the Priors of Montacute ; some of whose names are not mentioned elsewhere. This List is here repeated, but with various additions, and a continuation to the time of the Dissolution. The Priors were :

- 1. WALTER, t. Hen. I.
- 2. PONTIUS.
- 3. GUIGONUS.
- 4. RALPH.
- 5. ALMERUS.
- 6. ARVALDUS.
- 7. DRANDUS.
- 8. WILLIAM.
- 9. JOSSELIN.
- 10. THOMAS. He was afterwards, A.D. 1174, elected abbat of Hyde.
- 11. HUGH.
- 12. VIGO.
- 13. RICHARD.
- 14. PONTIUS.
- 15. PETER.
- 16. SIMON.
- 17. SIMON.
- 18. DANIEL.
- 19. DURAND. This prior was deprived for his irregularities in the 9th of King John, A.D. 1207.^l According to the Annals of Lewes, he was restored in 1217, but was again expelled : “ M.CC.XVII. Eodem anno rediit prior Durannus, qui postea, facto cismate inter illum et conventum expulsus est.”^m
- 20. MARC succeeded him. In the Cottonian manuscript he was named MARCUS FISCUS BONUS, probably from his skill in medicine. He died in or about 1228, if an entry upon the Hundred Rolls may be relied upon.ⁿ But in the remains of the Cottonian MS. Tiber. A. x. under the year 1251, it is said, "eodem anno fuit abbas Willielmus Clun. apud Montem Acutum in octab. apostolorum Petri et Pauli et amovit Marcum priorem et tunc primo interfuerunt escaetores Henrici regis domum Montis Acuti."

^k MS. Cotton. Tib. A. x. burnt in the fire of 1731. The middle part of a large portion of the leaves is legible, and all that could be, has been carefully examined for the present Account.
^l “ Rex, &c. omnibus, &c. Monstraverunt nobis subprior et monachi de Monte Acuto quod Durandus qui prior fuit ejusdem loci male et inutiliter gessit se in regimine prioratus illius, et illum adeo intus et extra destruxit quod inde meruit amoveri. Nos vero tam istas quam alias multas et graves querelas audientes de eo et injurias, cum domus illa de speciali elemosina nostra sit et honori et utilitati nostræ congruat ut utiliter tractetur, mandavimus venerabili patri nostro J. Bathon. episcopo, ut, adducens secum quos viderit expedire, diligentem super hiis faciat inquisitionem ; volentes quod si idem episcopus ita esse invenerit, et per suas literas patentes id testificatus fuerit, prædictus Durandus de prioratu illo in nullo de cætero se intromittat. Quare volumus quod domui illi de alia persona honesta et utili provideatur ; ita quod dignitas nostra quam in illo prioratu et aliis habemus in nullo minuat. Teste meipso apud Odiham vicesimo primo die Decembris anno regni nostri nono.” Pat. 9 Joh. m. 4, n. 23.

21. ROGER NORMANNUS. ROGER, as Prior of Montacute, was preferred by the abbat of Clugny to the priory of Lenton, in Nottinghamshire, in 1259.^a

22. HUGH DE NOERS, or NOYERS, his successor, was collated to Montacute Sept. 17th, 1259.^b

23. GILBERT DE BASSA, or BEXOLIO. His election received the royal assent, and he had the temporalities of the monastery restored to him, Jan. 30th, 1265.^c

24. GUY, called also GUYDO DE MERCHAUNT, or MARCANT, became prior in 1269,^d and again in 1284.^e Ruding, in his Annals of the Coinage of Britain, 8^{vo}. edit. vol. ii. p. 88, A.D. 1279, says, "The clipping of the coins appears at this time not to have been confined to the lower orders of the people, but to have been practised even by ecclesiastics of the higher ranks. Guy, the prior of Montacute, was convicted of that crime, but was pardoned by the king on condition of the payment of a fine of sixty marks in this year. It should seem that he was again convicted not only of the same crime, but of counterfeiting also, in the 13th year of the king; for which he again received a pardon, but paid a fine of two hundred marks.^f

25. PETER GAUDEMER was constituted prior in 1289.^g Upon whose death,

26. JOHN DE BELLO RAMO received the temporalities June 8th, 1290.^h

27. GEOFFREY LE DOSA, or DE LA DOUSE, had the temporalities granted to him July 26th, 1292.ⁱ

28. STEPHEN PAULINUS, otherwise ROWLAN, or RAWLUN, received the temporalities July 4th, 1296.^k

29. JOHN CAPRARIUS, or CAPRARRI, received the temporalities Oct. 12th, 1316.^l Upon whose resignation,

30. GUYCHARD DE IO, or DE JOU, was appointed. He received the temporalities June 6th, 1325.^m He was still prior in 1331.ⁿ

31. JOHN DE PORTA.^o

32. JOHN DE PORTA II.^p

33. GERALDUS ROCHE occurs prior in 1362.^q

34. FRANCISCUS, otherwise FRANCIS DE BANGIACO, occurs in 1399,^r and again in 1403.^s Upon whose death,

35. WILLIAM CRYCHE was appointed prior 18 Jan. 1403.^t He died in 1419.^u

36. JOHN BENNET was the next prior. He occurs, according to Willis's manuscript Notes, in 1449.^x

37. ROBERT MONTAGEWE, or MONTACUTE, was appointed prior Feb. 1st, 1452.^y Willis took his name to have been NEWTON also; but, upon the death of Montagewe,

38. ROBERT NEWTON succeeded; to whom the temporalities of the priory were restored Nov. 11th, 1458.^z He resigned in 1460; when

39. ROBERT CRICHE was elected. He received the temporalities Feb. 23d.^a Upon his death,

40. JOHN DORE, or DOURE, succeeded. He received the temporalities April 11th, 1467.^b He died in 1483: on the 9th of June in which year the temporalities were restored to

41. JOHN WATER,^c who occurs prior in 1498.^d

42. THOMAS CHARD occurs 1515 and 1525.^e

43. ROBERT SHIRBURN had the temporalities granted to him, by that name, August 29th, 1532.^f He appears also to have been called WHITLOCK, alias GYBBES. He, with his convent, consisting of thirteen monks, resigned his house to the king March 29th, 1539, obtaining a pension for himself of eighty pounds per annum.^g

The site of Montacute priory, with many of the adjacent lands and manors, were granted in the 33d of Henry the Eighth to Sir Thomas Wyatt,^h but was afterwards again vested in the Crown. The site and demesnes appear to have been leased from the crown in the 2d and 3d of Philip and Mary, for the term of forty years, to Eliz. Strowde.ⁱ In the 26th Eliz. the site was granted to the Earl of Leicester.^k comes Moritonii, pro salute mei ipsius, in vita et post mortem; et pro animabus patris mei Roberti comitis, et matris meae Mathillidis comitissae, dono et concedo Deo et sanctis apostolis ejus Petro et Paulo, ad locum Cluniacum, ecclesiam S. HIS small Priory, situated in the Deanery of Plymptre, was a Cell, according to Leland, for two monks only,^a and was also dependent on the Monastery of Montacute.

Quo tempore tres illi prioratui Monteguensi donati adimebantur pagi: unde monachi ad tempus mendicare sunt coacti. Tandem Henr. rex primus eorum misertus, terras ipsorum proprias eis iterum obtulit, sed et plures, modò locum illum relinquentes Lamportam se conferrent, ubi tunc insigne coenobium fundare decreverat. Monachi verò illum obsecrarunt, ut veterem retineant domum: unde tres pagos suos eis restituit, suo de abbatiâ Lamportæ fundandâ proposito in Readingam mutato. Tunc quidam venit Reginaldus Cancellarius, ita, ut verisimile est, a munere nominatus, apud Henricum regem primum magni nominis vir, qui vitam suscepit monasticam, et prior evasit Monteguensis, prioratumque ædificiis et possessionibus ampliavit. Prioratu verò hoc modo floescente, integroque pago Monteguensi à monachis obtento, castellum illud insigne partim cecidit, partim verò dirutum est prioratus construendi gratiâ; ita ut per multos annos jam elapsos nulla ædificiorum pars remanserit, præter capellam in Dungeonis [arcis scil. interioris] vertice constitutam, quæ adhuc stat.

The following entries are all that relate to it in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas IV.

Tuhington quod estimatur 2*l.* Non taxatur quia in dioc. Bathon.”^b
Having been seized on account of the wars in Aquitaine, it was restored in the 1st Edw. III.^c

Mr. Oliver says, “ In an interesting letter of Bishop Brantyngham to King Edward the Third, on the subject of alien Priories in the diocese of Exeter, 2 Regist. fol. 7. ad finem, I observe the prior did not reside at Carswell, anno 48 Edward III. ‘ Frater Radulfus Shalsham indigena, prior de Careswell optinet ecclesiam de Holcombe Rogus quæ incumbit Priori et Conventui de Monte Acuto et non residet in eadem cujus fructus et proventus annui se extendunt ad xx. libras.’ ”^d

PRIORS of CARSWELL.

BARTHOLOMEW occurs 25 Edw. I.^e
RALPH SHALSHAM has just been mentioned in the 48th Edw. III.
THOMAS CHARD was prior in 26 Hen. VIII.
The Prior here was appointed and removeable at the pleasure of the Prior of Montacute.

In the 26th of Henry the Eighth the revenues of this Cell were valued at the sum of 28*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*^f

Tanner gives two references only to records relating to this monastery: “ Pat. 15 Edw. III. p. 1, m. 5. Fin. div. com. 3 Ric. II. n. 31.”

In the office of the King’s Remembrancer in the Exchequer are,

1. Certificatio facta Regi de Prioratu de Careswell. Mich. 22 Edw. III.
2. Processus ad ostendendum quare Prioratus de Careswell in manus regis seisiri non debet ut alienig. Mich. 1 Hen. V. rot. 53.

The Scite of this Priory was granted, in the 38th of Henry the Eighth, to John Etherydge, Esq.^g; and the particular for it exists in the Augmentation Office. It was afterwards purchased by William Rowsewell, solicitor to Queen Elizabeth, whose son, Sir Henry, possessed it when Sir William Pole made his collections. It is situated in the parish of Broad Hembury.^h Cell of St. Syriac, or St. Karroc, in Cornwall.

ANNER has given a list of the various names by which this little priory appears to have been called in early times: St. Syriac, St. Cyriac, St. Carriacus, St. Karrocus, St. Cyret, and Julette.^a

It was a small cell of two monks only, dependent on the priory of Montacute;^b and from the mention of it by Gervase of Canterbury, is known to have existed at least as early as the time of

King Richard the First. The church of St. Carriac, or Karrentocus, was given to the monks of Montacute by their founder, as has been already seen.^c

This cell occurs but once in Pope Nicholas's taxation, at p. 154. "Prior de Sancto Karabo" (or more properly as corrected in a note Karoko) "habet de redditu in decanatu de Westweleschire et Major Treageschne 2l."

In the Valor of the 26th Hen. VIII. the clear revenue of this cell is rated at 11l. 1s.^d

The scite was granted in the 37th Hen. VIII. as parcel of the possessions of Montacute to Laurence Courtney;^e and the particular for it remains in the Augmentation Office.

The Messrs. Lysons, in their Magna Britannia for Cornwall, speaking of the parish of St. Veep, call this the "little priory of St. Cyric and St. Juliet."

"St. Syrus the priest is said, by William of Worcester, to have been buried in the church of this cell. Walter de Exon, who wrote a history of Guy earl of Warwick, in the fourteenth century, is said to have been a monk of this house.

"The site," they add, "now generally called St. Cadix, is the property and residence of Mrs. Anne Wymond, widow of Richard Wymond, Esq. lately deceased. Here are some remains of the chapel."^f Malpas, near Caerleon, in Monmouthshire.

ALPAS was another Cell, of two Cluniac monks, to the priory of Montacute, and is supposed by Tanner to have been the Terra de Caerleon granted to that monastery by Winebald de Baeluna in the time of Henry the First.

In the Taxation of Pope Nicholas the possessions of this small house are thus returned :

Prior de Maupas habet apud Maupas de reddit, as-

Et de propriis tenentibus iſm 18*s.* De quodam molendino iſm 8*s.* Item idem habet in eodem manerio triginta acras de mora. prec. cujuslibet acræ 6*d.* De quadam pastura quæ vocatur Warda 2*s.* Item idem habet in Maupas viginti acras terræ, prec. cujuslibet acræ 3*d.* Et apud le Maupas tres acras prati prec. cujuslibet 2*s.* De operationibus custumar. in autumpno 6*s.* De placitis et perquisitis 2*s.*—Summa 4*l.* 18*s.*

Prior de Meupas habet quatuor vaccas, exitus cujuslibet in vitulis et lacte 1*s.* 8*d.*—Summa 6*s.* 8*d.*

It was valued at 15*l.* 2*s.* 4*d.* clear, and granted as parcel of the cell of Montacute in the first of Edw. VI. to Sir William Herbert.

It was situated a mile and a half from Newport.

Coxe, in his Tour in Monmouthshire, gives the following description of the chapel of this cell :

“The chapel of this cell, now the parish-church, is worthy of being visited by the antiquary, as one of the most ancient religious edifices in these parts.

“It is a small building of unhewn stone, of an oblong shape like a barn, with a belfry having two apertures for bells. The arched door which is on the western side, the stone frames of the three principal windows, as well as the arch which separates the chancel from the church, are all rounded, and decorated with friezes of hatched moulding, denticles, and receding columns, peculiar to the Saxon and Norman architecture. The arch of the southern window, which seems to have been a doorway, is more elegantly ornamented and embossed with roses, not unlike the Etruscan style. All the columns, which are mostly of a rude form, have dissimilar capitals and shafts, a striking feature in Saxon structures. Some modern Gothic windows have been introduced into the stone frames of the original apertures.”^a Priory of Holme, or East Holme, in Dorsetshire.

HEN or by whom the little Priory of Holme was founded is not known. It existed as a Cell to Montacute at least as early as 1291.^a According to Leland it was furnished with a prior and two monks only, who took care of the revenues and served the cure: the demesnes and tithes of the whole vill of East Holme belonging to the priory.^b

WILLIAM POPE occurs Prior in 1444.

JOHN WALES was Prior in the 26th Hen. VIII.

After the Dissolution, in the first year of Edward the Sixth, the Site of this Cell, with the demesne lands belonging to it, were granted to Edward, Duke of Somerset. In the 1st and 2d of Philip and Mary, they were again granted out from the Crown to John Hannam, Esq. and his heirs, to be held by the fortieth part of a fee, value 11l. 5s. In this family the site continued till the 8th Will. III., when an act passed for vesting this manor and that of Swanwich, part of the estate of Sir John Hannam, Bart., in trustees for payment of his debts. Soon after which it was sold to Denis Bond, Esq. serjeant at law; who left it to his nephew Tanner refers to Pat. 15 Edw. III. p. 1, m. 5. and Pat. 2 Hen. V. p. 2, m. 17. relating to this priory.

In the office of King's Remembrancer in the Exchequer are proceedings dated in the first year of Henry V. calling upon William Cryche, the then Prior of Montacute, to show why the Priors of Holme and Careswell should not be seized into the hands of the king as alien priories.

At the Suppression this Cell was valued at the annual sum of 16*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* The prior, it appears, was dative and removeable at the pleasure of the Prior of Montacute.

Hutchins says, that some remains of this priory were existing in 1744; with some ruins of the church belonging to the Cell: but in 1746 the whole were removed by Denis Bond, Esq. to Grange, where he built an oratory with them a little north of the house.

Priory of Daventre, in Northamptonshire.

UGH de Leycester,^a sheriff of Northamptonshire, and steward to Maud sister of Earl Simon Seynliz the First, according to Bridges about 1090, but certainly in the latter end of the Conqueror's reign, or beginning of William Rufus, placed in the Church of Preston Capes, or West Preston, in this county, four Cluniac monks;^b who, labouring under want of water, and other inconveniences, were, in a few years, removed to the town of Daventre: where the said Hugh, near the parish-church (wherein were then four secular canons), built a priory to the honour of St. Augustine the monk, subordinate to St. Mary de Caritate in France.^c

Bridges, from the Register which will be quoted in the margin, has condensed the following particulars concerning the endowment of this monastery. He says the first provision made for the maintenance of these monks was the grant of the church of Preston, given them by their founder, with the lands of Edric de Everdon, amounting to upwards of six virgates, and the revenue of a mill called "Molendinum Vicecomitis;"^d to which, upon their removal, he added three virgates of land in Fawesley, in consideration of the loss they might thereby sustain. He further obtained for them the church of Daventre from Maud de St. Liz, to whom he was seneschal, with five carucates of land, containing a wood called Armele Wood, certain meadow grounds, and a mill.

But, upon the death of Hugh de Leycester, these three virgates of Fawesley were claimed by William, his son and heir, who brought an action against the monks, and sought to recover them out of their hands. In this distress they made their application to King Henry the First, who, considering their poverty, confirmed the grant which their founder Hugh had made, gave them besides the church of Fawesley, and exempted them from the payment of certain customary duties.^e

Besides these benefactions, with others very considerable from the descendants of Maud de St. Liz, Hugh Poer, the grandson of Hugh de Leycester, gave them the churches of Haddon, Cold-Ashby, Eltingdon, and Suthorp.^f The churches of Haddon and Cold-Ashby he gave with the consent of the prior and convent of Coventry, to whom he was an under tenant. This grant was made in the 15th year of King Stephen, in the time of prior Laurence, and, according to Dugdale, wrought such love and affection between these two religious houses, that, in a manner, they had henceforward all things in common.^g

Robert, the son of Vitalis Palfrey, or Fitz Violi, lord of the manor of Foxton, gave to this priory the churches of

Foxton, Gutmundeley, Bitlesbrook, Scaldeford, Braybrook, and Lubenho.^h Stephen de Welton, lord of Staverton, gave them the church of Staverton;ⁱ Henry de Noers, lord of Norton, the church of Norton;^k William de Novo Mercato, lord of Welton, restored to them the chapel of Welton, to which Daventre was the mother church;^l and Geoffrey Malesoures, lord of Waldegrave, gave them the church of Waldegrave.^m

The monks here had likewise large temporal revenues and privileges bestowed on them by several benefactors in Daventre, Drayton, Norton, Staverton, Welton, Thorp, Houghton, Northampton, Dodford, Buckton, Watford, Everdon, Fawesley, Thorp Mandeville, Preston, West Haddon, Cold-Ashby, Ravensthorp, Waldegrave, Broughton, Foxton, Lubenho, Middleton, Braybrook, Bitlesbrook, and Scaldeford.ⁿ

PRIORS of DAVENTRE.

OSBERT is the first prior whose name has come down. He was living, as appears by a memorandum in the Register of Daventre, in 1135.^o He was succeeded by

HERBERT, who occurs prior in 1146, 11 Steph.^p

JAYBERT, a Norman, according to Sir William Dugdale, occurs prior about the year 1198.^q

BENEDICT occurs prior in the 6th of John, A. D. 1205.^r

AELM occurs in a fine relating to the church of Suthorp in the 9th of Joh. A. D. 1208.^s

WILLIAM DE BOUAY occurs in 1217.^t In his time the bishop of Lincoln was appointed superintendant of the affairs of the convent by authority of the pope's delegates.^u

WALTER DE SALEBRUGGE was chosen prior in 1225.^x

NICHOLAS DE ELY succeeded in 1231.^y

ROBERT DE HELIDENE, celerar of the monastery, was admitted on the nones of January, 1264.^z

JOHN DE STAVERTON was elected on the death of Helidene, permission, as in the former case for the election, having been first obtained of Robert fitz Walter, knight, the then patron. He was admitted on the 16th kal. June, 1269.^a

WILLIAM DE LEMYNGTON, the next prior, was chosen upon the cession of Staverton in 1281.^b Upon his cession,

PETER DE ESSEBY was made prior 4 non. July, 1289.^c

PETER DE HORPEL was elected prior in 1328.^d Upon his death, licence for an election having been obtained of Henry duke of Lancaster,

JOHN DE FALWESLE was chosen 12 kal. Oct. 1352.^e He died in 1360, when the election fell upon

THOMAS DE STOCKINGFORD, who presided but little more than a year. His election was on the 3d kal. April, 1360.^f

WILLIAM DE GRENDON, upon Stockingford's death, succeeded 20 kal. Sept. 1361.^g

WILLIAM ROTHWELL was elected prior, according to the List already quoted from the Daventry Register, in 1381;

^a Supposed by Tanner to be the same person with Hugh de Fawesley, mentioned by Leland, Collect. vol. i. p. 48.

^b It is reckoned among the Benedictine priories Cart. 22 Edw. I. yet in the Record 18 Hen. VIII. expressly called "Monasterium S. Mariæ de Caritate de Daventre." Reyner, Tract. ii. p. 141, says, the monks of Daventre were Cluniacs at first, and afterwards turned Benedictines. See also Tract. i. p. 210. But there seems to be no doubt but they remained Cluniacs to the last.

^c Compare Tanner, Notit. Mon. Northampt. x. The connexion of the priory of Daventre with the monastery de Caritate is expressly noticed in one or two charters. See the Append. to this account, Numm. III. XIV.

^f Ibid.

^g Ibid. The Registr. of Daventr. fol. 172, in a list of the priors, the first part of which was compiled about 1480, by mistake represents Grendon to have been elected in 1353; omitting priors Falwesle and Stockingford entirely.

but it appears in the Lincoln Registers that Grendon did not die till Aug. 20th, 1396: soon after which Rothwell was confirmed prior.^a

It was not during the priorate of Rothwell, as Bridges states, but in the time of Grendon, in the reign of Richard the Second, that the dissension was terminated between the convent and the inhabitants of Daventre, respecting the unseasonable ringing of bells in the parish-church, and the privilege of way through the church-yard to the monastery.^b

JOHN ASHBI was elected prior in 1408.^c He was succeeded by

JOHN DAVENTRE in 1415.^d

ROBERT MAN was elected in 1425.^e His successor was

THOMAS KNYGHT, who was elected in 1444.^f He was advanced to the see of St. Asaph in 1450,^g and allowed to hold the priory of Daventre in commendam. He resigned, however, in 1460, and was succeeded by

WILLIAM BROMLEY.^h Upon his death, in 1475,

WILLIAM LANE was chosen prior.ⁱ

THOMAS YLSTON, or IBSTON, was chosen prior in 1482.^k His successor was

ALEXANDER COLYNS, who was elected in 1515, upon Ibston's death:^l and who was the last prior.^m

Daventre was one of the monasteries which were dissolved by a bull from Pope Clement VIIth, and with the consent of Henry the Eighth, in the seventeenth year of that king's reign; and which were granted to Cardinal Wolsey toward the erection of his two colleges at Oxford and Ipswich.

Its revenues, and it was one of the largest which were suppressed at this time, amounted to the gross sum of 236*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* per annum: the spiritualities being valued at 115*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* and the temporalities at 120*l.* 10*s.* 2*d.*ⁿ

The site, and greatest part of the lands and churches belonging to this monastery, were granted, after Wolsey's fall, by King Henry the Eighth, to Christ Church College, Oxford, at its refoundation.

A very fine Register of this Priory is extant in the Cottonian manuscript Claudius D. XII.: on a blank leaf, at the beginning of which is the following title, in Sir William Dugdale's handwriting; "Registrum cartarum prioratus de Daventre in agro Northamptoniensi: ex dono Johannis Legard de Ganton in com. Ebor. baronctti."

On the third leaf, preceding the beginning of the Cartulary itself, is "A composicion translated out of Ffrenche for the fredome and liberties for cariage thorowe the church yerde of Daventr. and sealed with the duke of Lancaster's seal;" dated 18th March, 13 Rich. II.

Another register, intitled by Tanner "Liber Monasterii de Davintre," is preserved in the Office of the Duchy of Lancaster.

The Cardinal's bundle among the records in chancery is likewise referred to.

At Oxford, various charters relating to this priory occur in the treasury at Christ Church College; with others among the manuscripts bequeathed to the university by Anthony à Wood.

Various excerpts from the register of Daventre already described, occur in MSS. Dodsworth, in the Bodleian, vol. lv. fol. 2. lxxv. fol. 57. cviii. fol. 52, 57.; and from the Duchy of Lancaster register in vol. cxvii. fol. 1.

The Harleian MS. 2044, fol. 7, contains excerpts from charters of Daventre, formerly belonging to Christopher Lord Hatton.

Among the charters presented to the British Museum by Lord Frederick Campbell, is one marked L. F. C. X. I. Carta Walteri prioris et conventus de Davintr. Stephano de West Haddon filio Herberti concessa de ij. virgatis terræ in West Haddon. Without date.

Tanner gives the following references to records concerning Daventry:

"Rec. in Scacc. 18 Hen. VIII. Trin. rot. 2, vel 3."

In the Office of the Duchy of Lancaster are some pleadings and other proceedings in 16 Hen. VIII. between the tenants of the town of Daventry against the prior of Daventry, for disturbance of common of pasture in Redwell and Donnesdale, and impounding of cattle; as also other proceedings of the same reign, but without date, instituted by Alexander, prior of Daventry, against Richard Samell, claiming rent of a bakehouse and a horse-mill, and as to trespass on lands, and destruction of furze, at a place in or near Branwally.

An impression of the Common Seal of the prior and convent of Daventry upon red wax, is attached to a deed in the Office of the Duchy of Lancaster, dated 12 Hen. IV. It is somewhat mutilated; it represents St. Augustine, the monk, sitting, and holding in his left hand a crosier; no part of the legend remains but these words SIGILLVM . SCI . A .

The Seal used by Nicholas prior of Daventry was very neat: it represented a table (or altar) surmounted by a cup streaming with water. The inscription round it, s. NICOLAI PRIORIS DE DAVINTRE. The matrix is, or lately was, in the possession of the Rev. Dr. Smith, the present dean of Christ church, Oxford.

NUM. VI.

[Ibid. fol. 141 b.]

SIMON filius Roberti, Roberto Dei gratia Lincolnensi episcopo et omnibus sanctæ ecclesiæ filiis salutem. Sciatis me pro salute animæ meæ et uxoris meæ Julianæ et liberorum meorum, patris et matris meæ et omnium meorum tam vivorum quam mortuorum, concessisse Deo et sanctæ Mariæ de Caritate et ecclesiæ sancti Augustini de Daventre et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus donationem ecclesiarum quam fecit eidem ecclesiæ pater meus Robertus in vita sua. Habet etiam illa mansuras suas in villa quæ satis notæ sunt. Et unam aliam dimidiam virgatam terræ penitus liberam, quam ego dedi pro eo quod monachi in eadem ecclesia ante altare sanctæ Mariæ luminare unum singulis noctibus perpetuo invenient, et unam missam in honore sanctæ Mariæ semel in ebdomada ad idem altare dicere facient sive sabato sive in alio quocumque die. Ecclesia de Gutmundelay ij. virgatas terræ habet cum mensura clericici, et ambæ exterius serviunt. Ecclesia de Bitlesbroc cum pertinentiis suis libera est, ea libertate qua pater meus eam donavit. Ecclesia de Scaldeford tres virgatas terræ habet et ij. mansuras Dirnanni scilicet Aswi et Willa Slinge quæ simul virgatæ forinsecus serviunt. Dimidia vero virgata quam ego in elemosinam eidem ecclesiæ dedi in nativitate Ricardi primogeniti mei omnimodis libera est. Ut ergo rata et stabilis sit patris mei donatio et mea concessio sigilli mei testimonio utramque confirmo. Priory of St. Andrew Northampton.

N the north-west part of the town, says Bridges, near the wall, and bordering on the river, was the priory of St. Andrew. When it was first founded we can no where discover; but Ingulphus acquaints us,^a that amongst the monks he found at Croyland in 1076, there were two who had been professed at St. Andrew's in Northampton. In 1084, Simon de St. Liz, the first of that name, earl of Northampton and Huntingdon, repaired and largely endowed it; and replenishing it with Cluniac monks from the abbey of St. Mary de Caritate upon the Loire, made it a Cell to that house. Upon this restoration, from which he is usually called the founder of the convent, he gave to it, in conjunction with Maud his wife, all the churches in Northampton and their appurtenances, with three carucates of land, three doles of meadow, an holm, and twenty shillings payable annually at Michaelmas arising from the farm of the town. With these donations he also gave two hides of land at Stotesbury; his demesnes in Hardyngestorn and Haelynton; two parts of the tithe of Thorpe; the church of Brayfield, with the glebe and tithe belonging to it; the church and tithe of Equeton; the whole tithe of Jerdeley; a moiety of the tithe of corn, and the whole tithe of cattle in Berton, Dodynton, and Todeham; with a third part of his tithes in other places. At the same time Grimbold endowed it with the church and tithe of Moulton, with the tithe of Budon, and one carucate of land; Acard with his tithe of Sprotton; Otger with his tithe of Horton; and Burchard with ten acres of arable land, and the tithe of his estate at Hamton.^b This charter was again renewed in the eighth year of Henry the First, and confirmed by the king himself, enlarged with the additional benefactions of a mill at Hardingestorne, two parts of the tithe of Wollaston and Poton, two virgates of arable land, and twenty acres of heath; and xx*s*. issuing from a mill at Paxton; with a mill and one carucate of land, and the church of Riale, given to the monks of the convent by Payen the lord of the manor of Riale.^c Several of these donations were also ratified by Simon de St. Liz the son of Simon, and Simon his grandson.^d

Besides these benefactions, Earl Simon the first farther gave them common of pasture in Hamton, and a rent-charge of x*s*. to be paid yearly in Lent from the town of Huntingdon.^e Earl Simon the second gave the tenth of his profits from the fair of All Saints in Northampton, the sum of xv*js*. iii*jd*. issuing from a meadow called Estecroftes, and the mill of Thorp.^f Maud de Mandevill conferred on them the manor and church of Sywell; the grant being confirmed by William de Averanches her son, and Simon earl of Northampton.^g Robert de Pinkeny granted them all that fee in Sulgrave which was held by Godfrey and Gozo.^h David king of Scots confirmed to them the grant of the church of Brayfield, with one virgate of land, and the privilege of having two carts in Yardley wood for gathering dead wood.ⁱ

King Henry the First gave them the church of St. Sepulchre in Northampton, with four acres of his demesnes, confirming by his charter an annual rent-charge of xl*s*. in Bedford by the gift of the Countess Maud; one carucate of land and a mill in Scaldeford by Robert Fitz Violi, with ten virgates and a fourth part of one virgate in the same township, which they had purchased of the said Robert; two virgates, and the tithes of a mill called Canchesmilne, in Multon, and thirty acres of land in Ackley, with common of pasture, pannage for a hundred hogs, and five virgates of land in the same lordship bought of Robert the son of Lanceline; with one virgate in Wendlingbury of the gift of Ilbert de Cogenho, and land in Foxley given them by Otbert and Alelulph; the church of Newenton, with four bovates in Tirkingeham, by Ancher de Chanci; and tithes in Isham, Harwadon, Preston, Wotton, Flore, Braybroc, Kislingbury, and Harleston, with certain houses in Northampton, an exemption to their tenants from all custom due to the town, and liberty of holding these several possessions with sac and soc, tol, them, and infangenthef.^k

Besides the above-mentioned benefactions, Robert

To these donations were added a rent-charge of six shillings issuing from one virgate of land in Pillesle by William the son of Robert de Thorpe;^t a mill at Holecote by Robert Grimbaut, and half a mark yearly from a mill at Briclesworth by Simon Fitz Pierre;^u a mill without the walls of Northampton, called Mervin's-mill, by Simon the son of Simon, and grandson of Peter de Briclesworth;^x a rent-charge of xl^s. issuing from ten virgates of land in Briclesworth by Simon Fitz Simon;^y the church of Multon, with seven virgates in the same township, by Robert Grimbaut of Houghton,^z William his son, and Robert the son of William, confirming the grant, with the former grant of the churches of Brafield, Herdwick, and Houghton;^a one virgate of land in Multon, by Alexander de Multon;^b an assart called Gudhingesleye in Horton, by Ernald de Boys;^c a mill at Kyllingbury, by Henry de Armenters;^d and a wood called Brendwode, near Salcey, by Geoffrey de Armenters.^e

Walter Luvell gave them two parts of the tithes of eight virgates of land in Kislingbury, and two parts of the tithes of his demesnes;^f Anselm de Cochis two parts of his tithes of Wollaston;^g Alan de Watford four virgates of land in Suelesworth;^h and Henry de Dive one virgate in Brampton;ⁱ Hugh de Haversham three virgates and three parts of a virgate of land in Oxendon;^k David de Quinton two virgates in Haclinton;^l Ralph the son of Simon de Orlingbere a mill called Gricche at Isham;^m Henry de Isham two parts of the tithes of his demesnes;ⁿ and Henry de Harwedon all the tithes of his fee at Isham;^o Richard the son of Simon de Faxton one bovate of land in Faxton;^p and Gilbert de Croc half a virgate in Caldecote and half a virgate in Greneburg.^q

With these possessions they had also divers lands, tenements, and rents in Pidington, Haclinton, Quinton, Billing Parva, Cotes, Brayfield, Northampton, Wavendune, Holecote, and Wyrmenton.^r

These several churches, revenues, and possessions were confirmed to the convent by Richard Wethershed, archbishop of Canterbury,^s and Hugh Wells,^t and Henry Beaufort bishop of Lincoln.^u

During the subordination of St. Andrew's, Northampton, to the Abbey de Caritate, the revenues of the convent, in time of war with France, were seized into the hands of the crown, and let to farm at the yearly rent of one hundred marks.^x But in the first of Henry the Fourth they obtained the liberty of retaining their temporalities on paying annually xx^s. to the king, in his wars with Francis, being the pension they paid to the convent abroad in time of peace.^y This pension was called Apportus, and was paid yearly by all Houses of the Cluniac Order in England to the foreign monastery on which they depended.^z

In the sixth year of Edward the Fourth this priory was made denizen, and became discharged from all pensions due to the crown.^a

By the survey taken of the revenues of this house in 1535, 26 Hen. VIII. they were rated at 263*l*. 7*s*. 1½*d*. clear of all deductions in quit rents, synodals and procurations, pensions to stipendiary chaplains, charitable distributions, or the anniversaries of several benefactors, and the following fees to the officers of the house; to Sir William Gascoin, high-steward of the priory demesnes, forty-shillings per annum; to Robert Chauntrell steward and keeper of the court at Cotton, Hardington, and Sywell, 4*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; to Thomas Lovett, steward of Stotesbery, Sulgrave, and Woodford, 26*s*. 8*d*.; to Richard Coton, auditor of all the manors, lands, and tenements, 40*s*.; to John Tylcok, bailif of Cotton and Hardington, 51*s*.; to John Hyklynge, bailif of Sywell, 20*s*.; to William Netilham, bailif of Ryall and Newton, 3*s*. 4*d*.; to Thomas Hylton, bailif of Kyngeswarden, 3*s*. 4*d*.; to John Lewes, bailif of Cotton, 10*s*.; and to John Brightwyn, bailif and receiver of the rents in Northampton, 16*s*. 8*d*.^b

The gross revenue of St. Andrew's, Northampton, amounted to 334*l*. 13*s*. 7*d*.^c

Dr. Richard Layton, in a letter to Lord Cromwell, still extant, written in 1538, gives but a poor account of the administration, at that time, of the revenues of this house. "At Saint Androse, in Northampton," he says, "the Howse is in dett gretly, the lands solde and morgagede, the fermes let owte, and the rent recevide before hande for x, xv, xx

The same year the prior and convent acknowledged the king's supremacy, and in the next year gave up the monastery into the hands of the commissioners appointed for that purpose. ^b

There are two instruments of the surrender of this monastery, one in English, bearing date the first of March, and the other in Latin, dated the day following, in the 29th year of Henry VIII. Both signed by the prior and twelve other monks. The English instrument, containing a long recital of the abuse of their possessions to vain and superstitious uses, contrary to their institution and Order. ^c

WILLIAM HAMOND resigned in 1473. ⁱ His successor was

THOMAS SUTBURY. ^k He died in 1490, and was succeeded by

THOMAS ROCHE. ^l To whom in 1503 succeeded

THOMAS YORK. ^m Bridges says, he appears to have presided about twenty years, his successor

WILLIAM REKNER occurring in 1523. ⁿ

JOHN PETIE occurs in 1538 in Dr. Layton's letter to Lord Cromwell. ^o

FRANCIS ABREE, alias LEICESTER, is mentioned by Bridges as the last prior of this convent. Upon the erection of the bishoprick of Peterborough, in the 33d Hen. VIII. he was appointed the first dean of that church. ^p

In the 29th Hen. VIII. a fine was levied between the king himself and Francis, prior of St. Andrew's, of the manors of Cotton, Hardingston, Kislingbury, Sywell, Molton, Hakulton, Stotisbury, and Sulgrave, and of lands and rents in the same townships and other places; and of the rectories and advowsons of All Saints, St. Giles's, and St. Sepulchre's, in Northampton, and of Sulgrave, Multon, Brafild, Houghton, and Hardingston, and of the advowson of the church of Sywell. ^q

In the 4th Edw. VI. the site of this monastery, with the demesne lands belonging to it, were granted to Sir Thomas Smith, in consideration of a certain sum of money, and lands and tenements in other places. ^r Sir Thomas

Smith died seized of them in the 20th Eliz. and was succeeded by Laurence Skott, and Anne his wife, the daughter of John Smith, elder brother of Sir Thomas.^a The premises, however, reverted to the Smiths. For in 1631 Sir William Smith, of Theydon-Mount, in Essex, granted, bargained, and confirmed, by indenture bearing date the 25th November, to Sir Francis Crane, and his heirs, the capital messuage and site of the Priory of St. Andrew, with all the demesne lands and manors thereunto belonging, as they were held by him the said Sir William Smith, or Sir William Smith, Knight, his late father.^b Sir Francis Crane left them at his death to Francis Arundell, the son of John Arundell, Esq. by Sir Francis's eldest sister. His son Francis Arundell, Esq. was the possessor when Bridges's History of Northamptonshire was published.^c

MEMORANDUM quod anno gratiae millesimo sexagesimo septimo Willielmus dictus Bastard filius Ducis Normanniae venit cum maxima et strenuissima militia in Angliam, et Haraldo rege devicto simul et interfecto totum regnum adquisivit. Et in die Natalis Domini apud Westmonasterium coronatus, totum praedictum regnum pacifice possedit. Venerunt etiam cum illo duo fratres strenuissimi milites, videlicet Garnerius dictus le Ryche et Symon de Seynlyz filii Raundoel le Ryche. Mortuo praedicto Randoel, Garnerius primogenitus, reversus est in Franciam, et optinuit haereditatem patris : Simon autem remansit in Anglia cum praedicto rege Willielmo. Aliquanto autem tempore elapso, quidam comes Huntyngdoniae nomine Waldelfus, erga regem praedictum de prodicione accusatus et convictus apud Wintoniam decapitatus est. Habebat autem ipse comes duas filias : Rex verò primogenitam, Maud nomine, dedit Simoni de Seynlyz, cum toto honore Huntyngdon. Dictus vero Simon maritavit Aliciam sororem uxoris suae Randulpho de Tonny ; cum centum libratis terrae de praedicto honore. Iste Simon comes, tempore regis Willielmi praedicti, et anno regni sui octavo decimo, fundavit domum sancti Andreae Northamptoniae, et eam submisit imperpetuum domui beatæ Mariæ de Caritate. Postea tempore regis Henrici primi, iste Symon comes Huntyngdon, adiit terram sanctam, et in redeundo obiit apud Caritatem, et ibidem sepultus est. Henricus rex praedictus desponsaverat Maud sororem Alexandri regis Scotiae et Davidis, et dedit Maud quæ fuit uxor Simonis comitis, Davidi fratri regis Scotiae praedicti, una cum custodia haeredis praedicti comitis Simonis. Nomen ejus haeredis erat Simon de Seynlyz junior, post nomen patris ejus. Et iste Simon junior fundavit abbatiam beatæ Mariæ de Pratis juxta Northampton.

UNIVERSIS sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis, ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit Walterus prior sancti Andreae Northampton, et totus ejusdem loci conventus salutem in Domino. Ad universitatis vestræ notitiam volumus pervenire, nos communi consilio et assensu totius capituli nostri, ad petitionem Petri filii Adæ de Northampton, et Henrici filii ejus, liberaliter concessisse donum quandam, in susceptionem peregrinorum, et pauperum in loco nostro in quo sita est capella sancti David infra limites parochiæ nostræ de Thorp, sub hac forma construi; scilicet quod in loco prænominato, nullum, in posterum, fiet collegium, sive de monachis, sive de canonicis, sive de templariis, sive de hospitalariis, sive de monialibus: ita est quod domus ipsa nullis temporibus in ecclesiam, vel in formam ecclesiæ commutabitur, nec formam xenodochii excedet. Concessimus ut divina in eo loco celebrantur officia, et duo tantum ibidem perpetuo habeantur altaria: unum in capella sanctæ Trinitatis, aliud in capella sancti David: et una tantum campana ad pulsandum, et cimiterium ad sepulturam pauperum, et peregrinorum, et aliorum ibidem commorantium.

Concessimus etiam ut si quis de parochianis nostris, sive sanus, sive æger, dum tamen sanæ mentis fuerit, ibidem sepulturam elegerit, et votum ibi perpetuo manendi, sub testimonio capituli sui, et virorum fidedignorum, expresserit, benignè in Domino recipiatur ibidem, in habitu seculari permansurus quamdiu viverit, salvo jure ecclesiæ in cujus parochia extiterit. Illud autem nobis ex consensu prædictorum Petri filii Adæ et Henrici clerici filii ejus, reservavimus, quod nullius corpus, post obitum ejus, de parochiis nostris ad eundem locum deferetur, nec aliquis parochianorum nostrorum ibidem nisi sub forma prædicta recipietur. In ejusdem verò loci domus principalis corpore conjunctæ capellæ sanctæ Trinitatis, conjuncti erunt imperpetuum tres ordines lectorum contiguorum in longum, in quibus jaceant pauperes et peregrini, et præcipuè valetudinarii quo expeditius missam audire valeant, et devotiùs orationibus intendant. Concessimus etiam ut in eodem loco unus habeatur procurator, capellanus, vel clericus vel laicus bonæ opinionis, qui communi concilio et concensu nostro et prædicti H. dum idem H. vixerit providebitur et constituetur: post obitum autem ipsius H. communi consilio et assensu nostro et abbatis de Sullebi à prædicto H. substituti. Excessus, et procuratoris, et eorum qui per procuratorem corrigi non poterunt, per nos, et prædictum H. in vita sua, et post mortem ejus, per nos, et abbatem prædictum corrigentur. Et si idem procurator, propter transgressionem aliquam, amovendus fuerit, communi consilio et consensu nostro et præfati H. dum idem H. vixerit, absque omni reclamazione et contradictione, amovebitur, et alius loco ejus idoneus constituetur. Ex quo autem idem H. in fata decesserit, communi concilio et consensu nostro, et abbatis prædicti, si amovendus fuerit amovebitur, et alius loco ejus substituetur. Cum autem amotus fuerit, communi consilio, et assensu nostro, et H. præfati, vel post mortem ejus, concilio et concensu abbatis prænominati, de statu ipsius disponetur, ita quod indempnitati ecclesiæ nostræ provideatur, et scripti hujus forma non immutetur. Si autem super procuratore instituendo, vel amovendo, inter nos et prædictum H. vel abbatem de Sullebi, post mortem prædicti H. orta fuerit dissensio, electis ex parte nostra duobus viris discretis, et ex altera parte duobus viris discretis et quinto communi utriusque partis consensu, quod major pars statuerit, firmiter observabitur. Illi vero qui procuratorem eligent, in eodem loco ubi procurator instituendus est, ad eundem eligendum convenient, et ibidem eum constituent, et ita tamen quod ante institutionem suam, ad ecclesiam nostram accedens, in eadem ecclesia, super altare beati Andreae, coram priore, et conventu, et coram memorato H. vel abbate de Sullebi, post mortem ipsius H. juratoriam præstabit cautionem, quod formam hujus scripti, et tenorem, pro posse suo tenebit, et servabit; et quod nec dampnum ecclesiæ, nec occasionem dampni, in aliquo malitiose procurabit, nec ab aliquo sibi subjecto, procurari, pro posse suo, patietur. Nos vero sacramenti hujus occasione nullam in eodem loco, contra scripti hujus tenorem, exigemus subjectionem.

Concessimus etiam ut in loco prænominato duo tantum habeantur capellani præter procuratorem, ita quidem, quod si idem procurator electus fuerit, capellanus ibi licite possit celebrare. Et prædicti capellani, ex quo recepti fuerint, antequam in loco prædicto celebrent, nobis, de indemnitate ecclesiæ nostræ, sicut procurator juratoriam præstabant cautionem. Præterea concedimus ut sex ibi habeantur conversi ad ministerium et susceptionem et provisionem pauperum ibidem commorantium, et supervenientium, ita quod numerus procuratoris et capellanorum et conversorum novenarium non excedat. Procurator vero, et capellani tales habebunt vestes, quales decet honestos capellanos seculares habere, et conversi uniformia habebunt indumenta, scilicet, cappas et pallia, tunicas nigri coloris, absque signo. Siquis autem commorantium, contra hujus scripti tenorem venerit, et super hoc, coram nobis, et prædicto H. vel abbate de Sullebi prædicto, post mortem ipsius H. convictus fuerit, à loco prædicto, omni cessante reclamatione. ejicietur, nisi digne poenitens, ex misericordia nostra, et prædicti H. vel abbatis de Sulleby, post mortem prædicti H. ibidem toleretur.

Prædicta vero omnia sub hac forma concessimus ne præfata domus alicui domui religiose, nec alicui personæ privatæ præter formam scripti hujus subjiçiat, nec aliquid ultra hanc concessionem nostram, in dampnum ecclesiæ nostræ ab aliquo in loco prænominato existente præsumatur. Nos quoque de redditibus vel possessionibus eidem domui collatis, vel in posterum conferendis, aut alio justo titulo adipiscendis, nullis temporibus in usus nostros aliquid convertemus, vel aliquo modo diminuemus, sed totum in utilitatem et incrementum ipsius loci proficiet. Ad augmentationem quoque ipsius domus, concessimus eidem domui, intuitu caritatis, totam terram nostram in Torp, quam Helias tenuit de feodo nostro, ecclesiæ nostræ de Torp, scilicet, duas virgatas terræ cum mesuagio, et crofta, et cum communi pastura et cum omnibus pertinentiis earum, consentiente H. prædicto filio Petri, qui nunc temporis ecclesiam de Torpe de nobis tenuit. Præterea decimam duarum virgatarum terræ, quas eidem loco contulimus et quietam olamavimus, et decimam ortorum in eodem loco construendorum, et pecorum quæ infra parochiam de Torp, ratione prædictarum duarum virgatarum rationabiliter haberi poterunt. Si autem aliam terram, infra parochiam de Torp, vel aliis parochiis nostris, sive ex empto, sive ex conducto, sive ex dono alicujus sive alio modo eundem locum habere contigeret, decimæ tam de omnibus fructibus terræ ejusdem, quam de pecunia, ratione terræ illius habita, ecclesiis nostris plenarie persolventur, non obstante privilegio, si quod de immunitate decimarum fuerit impetratum. Hæc autem concessio ad petitionem Petri filii Adæ post fuit inchoata; eo verò mortuo, ad petitionem et instantiam Henrici clerici filii ejus, postea perfecta, et in scriptum redacta, anno secundo regni regis Johannis, qui fuit annus incarnationis Domini millesimo ducentesimo. Et ne ipsa concessio nostra nobis in posterum fiat captiosa, nec aliquod nobis juris nostri, sive in privilegiis nostris, sive in jure communi faciat præjudicium, nec prædictus H. filius Petri, vel ipsius successores, vel in loco sæpedito existentes, vel aliquis alius aliquid præter hanc concessionem nostram exigere, sive aliquid commutare, vel per surreptionem aliquam in præjudicium nostri aliquid attemptare præsumat formam concessionis nostræ præsentis scripto expressam, ut robur perpetuum obtineat, tam ex parte nostra quam ex parte memorati H. et domus supradictæ haberi necessarium duximus, partem unam sigillo nostro munitam, eidem H. et domui præfata conferentes, et partem alteram tam sigillo ipsius H. quam sigillo domus prænominatæ corroboratam à prædictis H. et Wilhelmo tunc temporis ejusdem procuratore domus recipientes, consentientibus, et instanter petentibus omnibus eo tempore in eadem domo commorantibus. Priory of Barnstaple, in Devonshire.

ARNSTAPLE priory, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, was founded either in the reign of William the Conqueror or that of William Rufus by Joel the son of Alured, also called Joel of Totness, and was at first made dependent on the priory of St. Martin de Campis at Paris. In the deed of foundation Joel grants to the religious here Pilton, with its wood and marsh, and Pilton; the mill of Barnstaple; all the land without that town between North Gate and East Gate, with all the waters, fish, &c.; the church of St. Peter Barnstaple, with its appurtenances, chapels, tithes, and offerings; the chapel of St. Sabinus; two parts of the tithe of Fermigtun, and the whole tithe of fish.^a King William, King Henry the First, and William bishop of Exeter confirmed the founder's donations.^b Henry de Traci and William de Braosa, as descendants of Joel, likewise added their charters:^c the former dated in 1146.

The exact time when Barnstaple was made denizen does not appear. Mr. Oliver conjectures that it was made so in the reign of Henry the Sixth.^d

From a passage in Bishop Bronescombe's Register, fol. 33, it appears that the community here consisted of thirteen members.^e

The following are the entries concerning Barnstaple priory in Pope Nicholas's Taxation :

PRIORS of BARNSTAPLE
from 1265, as supplied by the Registers of the see of Exeter.

SIMON GURNEYE, admitted prior in August, A.D. 1265.

THEOBALD DE CURTIPALATIO followed, 29th June, 1275.

JOHN occurs prior in 1314.

JOHN DE SANCTA GEMMA. He scandalously neglected the duty of residence, and was obliged to tender his resignation to Bishop Grandisson late in the year 1332.

JOHN SOYER succeeded on the 18th of the following March.

IMBERTUS DE GAUMACHIIS, admitted on the death of John Soyer, 10 Dec. 1334.

REGINALDUS PIRDOK succeeded 9th Dec. 1349, and resigned in the summer of 1351.

ROGER HAYM, admitted 7th November, 1351. He died soon after.

RICHARD CARR, or CARY, succeeded, and died late in the year 1376.

RALPH CHELFHAM, who died early in 1392.

HENRY SUTTON succeeded 28th May the same year, and died six years after.

SIMON SELE, admitted in September, 1398, and died 15th June, 1428.^g

HUGO LYTON succeeded 28th July the same year, and died 16th December, 1461.

JOHN PYLTON was confirmed as his successor.

JOHN ILFRACOMBE, who resigned early in 1502.

JOHN PYLTON followed, and, after governing the priory sixteen years, resigned on a pension of 20*l*.

ROBERT THORN succeeded 12th Aug. 1518.

In Risdon's Survey of Devon, p. 327, we read that this prior, for his device, bare a roe-buck leaning to a hawthorn in an escutcheon, with the word BERT interposed, and this underwritten : Caprum cum spinâ protegat divina potestas.

He surrendered his convent to the king's commissioners Feb. 4th, 27th Hen. VIII.^h

The only prior of Barnstaple anterior to this List who has occurred to the editors of the Monasticon is

RICHARD, A.D. 1226, 11th Hen. III. mentioned in Prynne's Records, tom. iii. p. 4.

NORMANNUS occurs, but without date, in the charter of William de Braiosa.ⁱ

In the 26th Hen. VIII. the gross revenue of this house amounted to 129*l*. 13*s*. 3*d*. : the nett income to 123*l*. 6*s*. 7*d*.^k

The site was granted in the 29th Hen. VIII. to William Lord Howard and Margaret his wife.^a From the Howards it passed to Reginald Portree; one of the co-heiresses of whose family brought it to the Sydenhams, of whose descendants, the Northmores, it was purchased by the grandfather of R. N. Incedon, Esq. the present proprietor.^b p. 2. m. 6 vel 7. Pat. 2 Hen. IV. p. 3, m. 17 vel 18," as relating to this priory.

Bishop Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, refers to "Pat. 31 Edw. I. m. . Pat. 13 Edw. III. p. 2, m. 12 vel 13, de excambio cum priore de Pilton. Pat. 14 Edw. III.

Mr. Oliver, in the Appendix to his Historic Collections relating to the Monasteries in Devon, page 1, has printed the grant of Barnstaple to Lord Howard.

There are no Ministers' Accounts of this priory in the Augmentation Office, probably owing to the short time it remained in the crown after its suppression by King Henry the Eighth.

Carta Joelis filii Aluredi.

[Carta 10 E. II. n. 39. per Inspex.]

IN nomine sanctæ et individue Trinitatis incipit carta Joelis filii Aluredi; reverendo patri et domino Willielmo Exoniensi episcopo et universis sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit Joel filius Aluredi salutem in Domino. Cum nos omnes à Christo vocemur Christiani et illius ut salvatoris sequi debeamus vestigia, illos quos Christus ob seculi contemptum et religionis suæ meritum filios specialiter vocat pia devotione venerari convenit, et eorum sancto proposito devotè præstare subsidium. Ea propter ego Johel filius Aluredi universitati vestræ notum fieri volo me pro salute animæ meæ et patris et matris meæ et omnium parentum et amicorum meorum, constituisse quandam obedientiam monachorum Cluniacensium apud Barnestaple, ad honorem Dei et Domini nostri Jesu Christi sanctæque Mariæ et sanctorum apostolorum Petri et Pauli et sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ, et ipsam obedientiam ecclesiæ sancti Petri de Cluniaco, et ecclesiæ sancti Martini de Campis subdidisse, ad quam divina providente clementia devotus confugiam, habitum monasticæ religionis suscepturus; ibidemque onere carnis deposito, et anima ad conditoris sui gloriam suspirante misericordiam ipsius fiducialiter prestolabor. Et quia ex voto teneor ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ extra castellum meum fundatæ tantum beneficii conferre unde sacer monachorum conventus constitui et sustentari poterit, ad sustentationem ipsorum quasdam particulas terræ meæ donavi eis; scilicet Piltonam cum bosco et marisco et Pillandam, utrasque liberas et quietas cum omnibus appendiciis suis, sicut ego unquam eas liberiùs et quietiùs habui et tenui. Donavi etiam eis molendinum de Bardestaple liberum et quietum cum moltura totius villæ et castelli, ita quod burgenses ad aliud molendinum molendino monachorum integro existente molere non poterunt. Et totam terram extra muros quæ est inter portam de North et portam de Yest, simul cum fosso usque ad contiguam viam. Et totam aquam prout terra eorum extenditur. Et totum tractum piscium ipsius aquæ tam in terra ipsorum quam in terra mea proxima: ipsis quoque monachis exclusam piscariæ in terra mea firmare licebit in quantum terra eorum extenditur ex altera parte aquæ. Insuper autem concessi eis omnes terras suas, et homines, possessiones, et elemosinas quas habent vel in posterum jure ac legaliter adquirere poterunt infra fines totius terræ meæ et feudi mei habeant et teneant solutas liberas et quietas ab omnibus exactionibus, hundredis, placitis, querelis, et omni servicio et opere servili, et omnibus consuetudinibus quæ excogitari poterunt. Si quid vero forefacti vel querelæ inter homines meos et homines eorum quacumque occasione inciderit, monachi plenariè de qualibet causa curiam suam et justitiam habeant propriam et emendationem. Et quia hæc prædicta prædictorum fratrum sustentationi minime sufficere estimavi, divini amoris instinctu, totam ecclesiam sancti Petri de Bardestaple cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, capellis, decimis, obventionibus, et omnimodis fructibus, et cum capella sancti Sabini, et oblationibus suis per manus venerabilis Willielmi Exoniensis episcopi, cujus consilio et assensu præfatam obedientiam constitui, in proprios usus suos habendam et in perpetuam elemosinam possidendam donavi. Et duas partes decimæ meæ de Fermigtun, et totam decimam piscium. Hæc autem omnia sepepredictis monachis donavi et jure proprietatis transactavi, ita quod in eos, nec michi, nec alicui ex hæredibus meis aliquid violentæ potestatis exercere licebit, nisi tantummodo contra adversantium molestius defensionis auxilium. Et ne aliquis indevotus contra hanc meæ donationis paginam diabolica inspiratione ire præsumat, vel aliquam inferat molestiam, ipsam sigilli mei impressione corroboraui, coram hiis testibus, Ascelino archidiacono, Osberto capellano episcopi, Herveio capellano episcopi, Ailtrio decano, Godwino sacerdote Exoniensi, Willielmo de Framtton in armata

Carta Willielmi regis Anglorum.

[Ex ipso autogr. apud S. Mart. de Campis Paris.]

Ego Willielmus Dei gratia rex Anglorum concedo S. Petro de Cluniaco in obedientiam S. Martini de Campis quæ est Parisiis, scilicet pro salute animæ meæ et antecessorum meorum et pro anima Juheli, qui hujus dator est elemosinæ et parentum suorum, ecclesiam de Barnastapola, cum omnibus rebus quæ eidem ecclesiæ pertinent; hoc solo excepto quod ejus capellano attinet, et hoc est tantummodo domini suæque propriæ familiæ oblatio. Quod autem superest plurimorum testimonio trium solidorum numerum non excedit per annum. Præterea hoc quod idem habet in Piltona, tam in terra, quam in hominibus. Terra quidem duabus carrucis sufficit, quæ in dominio est, homines vero decem solidos per annum reddunt. Præter hæc etiam quicquid ipse in Pallanda videlicet similiter terram in dominio quæ duabus carrucis sufficit et homines qui per singulos annos quindecim solidos reddunt et unum molendinum quod singulis annis viginti solidos reddit; et in Tavestoc quindecim solidatas redditus. Præter hæc autem omnium dominicarum suarum duas partes tam animalium quam segetum, lanæ et caseorum seu cæterorum. Et nominatim decimam molendini de Boni, et decimam piscinæ Framinctorinæ et illius piscinæ quæ est apud Tavestoc. Et decimam viginti solidorum quos ipse habet in Barnastapola, videlicet, duos solidos et unum Burgensem apud Essecestram qui per annum reddit duos solidos. De hac itaque elemosina prædicta ego Willielmus rex Anglorum concedo ut ecclesia præfata S. Martini de Campis quadraginta solidos singulis annis propriis usibus habeat. Quod autem super fuerit fratres qui loco prædicto, id est ecclesiæ de Barnastapala deservient, in suis necessariis habeant. Et ut hæc largitio firma inconcussa que omni tempore permaneat, sigillo sanctæ Crucis manu propria ego ipse confirmo. ✠ Huicque confirmationi fideles meos subscriptos testes adhibeo. Carta Henrici de Tracy.

[Ex vetust. exemplari in bibl. Cottoniana.]

IN nomine Domini nostri Jesu Christi, Amen. Ego Henricus de Traci divina providente gratia, video et intelligo omnia quæ hujus mundi sunt vana esse, et caduca; audio enim apostolum dicentem: Quicumque diligit mundum, vel ea quæ in mundo sunt, non est charitas Dei in eo. Scio enim impossibile esse sine charitate Deo placere. Ergo perfecta charitas, quæ foras mittit timorem, huc adduxit dominum Odonem sancti Martini de Campis, secundum priorem, qui me admonuit, ut ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ de Barnastaple omnes donationes quas Johel ecclesiæ sancti Martini de Campis dedit, etiam ex parte mea quantum ad me pertinet pro salute animæ meæ concederem. Tandem divina inspiratione admonitus, consilio baronum meorum, ejus voluntati assensum dedi; et ego cupiens hæreditatem habere cum sanctis, et particeps fieri orationum sanctorum, et omnium monachorum Cluniacensium, pro salute animæ meæ, et patris mei, et matris meæ, filiique mei Oliverii, et antecessorum et successorum meorum, hanc donationem, una cum filio meo Olivero, super altare sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ, coram baronibus meis optuli, et carta mea confirmavi. Insuper coram Deo, et sanctis ejus promisi ut ecclesiam sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ diligerem, et omnes res, et possessiones ejus ubique, secundum posse meum, manutenerem, ut proprius fundator, quia de rebus hæreditatis antecessorum meorum eadem ecclesia facta est et fundata. Igitur quicquid Johel et Alueredus prædictæ ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Magdalenæ concesserunt, et dederunt, in villis, in pratis, in prædiis, in aquis, in silvis, in campis, in omnibus possessionibus, et quicquid in tempore eorum, prædicta ecclesia tenuit, insuper et ecclesias de Barnstapla et ecclesias de Taustochia, et decimas quas prædicta ecclesia, in tempore eorum tenuit, et possedit, quantum ad me pertinet, ad honorem Domini nostri Jesu Christi, et sanctæ Mariæ virginis, sanctæque Mariæ Magdalenæ concedo, et confirmo. Hujus rei testes sunt, Jordanus de Campo-Ernulfi, Philippus de Cartrei, et Humfridus frater ejus, Stephanus Flandrensis, et Archembaldus filius ejus, Hugo de Ralegia, et Willielmus le Desvet, et Robertus de Pleiston, et Thomas filius ejus, Robertus de Tapeleia, et Alex. et Robertus fratres ejus. Hæc carta facta est, anno ab incarnatione Domini m. cxlvj. Datum per manum Ricardi capellani.

Carta Willielmi Exoniensis episcopi qua Priori S. M. Magdalenæ concedit Ecclesiam S. Petri de Barnestapoli.

[Ibid.]

UNIVERSIS fidelibus ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit Willielmus miseratione divina Exoniensis ecclesiæ minister humilis æternam in Domino salutem. Noverit universitas vestra nos divinæ charitatis intuitu, inspectis cartis Johelis de Toton et Henrici de Trasci dedisse et hac præsentis carta nostra confirmasse de voluntate et consensu dilectorum filiorum nostrorum decani et capituli Exoniensis ecclesiam matricem beati Petri de Barnestapolia cum capellis decimis et obventionibus ad eam pertinentibus priori S. Mariæ Magdalenæ de Barnestapl. quem pro tempore perpetuum esse decrevimus, et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus habendam et tenendam inperpetuum ad usus proprios integre et plenarie, salva honesta sustentatione capellani ad præsentationem dictorum prioris et monachorum à nobis et successoribus nostris instituendi. Qui quamdiu fideliter et honeste se habuerit amoveri non poterit ab eisdem. Hanc autem donationem et concessionem fecimus salva jurisdictione nostra et successorum nostrorum, et archidiaconorum loci in eadem ecclesia, salvo etiam jure et possessione omnium qui vel in eadem ecclesia, vel ad eandem aliquid juris obtinere noscuntur. Habebit autem capellanus qui pro tempore fuerit honestam domum juxta portam prioratus et victualia; panis et calciamentis exceptis, sicut unus de fratribus, et una cum illis. Duas etiam marcas ad quatuor anni terminos pro æquis portionibus percipiet, per manum prioris de oblationibus ejusdem ecclesiæ, et equum et servientem habebit de ipso prioratu ad omnes necessarias ecclesiæ profectiones. Et his tantum contentus, nihil extra vel intra percipiet, sed de omnibus integre dicto priori respondebit. Et sustinebit idem prior omnia onera ecclesiæ episcopalia et archidiaconalia debita et consueta. Ut autem hæc concessio et donatio nostra futuris temporibus stabilis perseveret, eam scripti præsentis munimine et sigilli nostri fecimus impressione roborari. Actum anno Domini mcccxxxij. in die inventionis S. Stephani prothomartyris, consecrationis nostræ anno x. His testibus, magistris Philippo præcentore et Ricardo cancellario, magistro Will. de Arundell canonicis Exoniens. Martino Prudue rectore ecclesiæ de Peinton, magistro W. de Molend. Rogero, Eurardo, et multis aliis.

NUM. VII.

Confirmatio Concessionum eidem Loco factarum, per eundem Willielmum Exoniensem episcopum.

[Ibid.]

OMNIBUS ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit Willielmus Dei gratia Exoniensis episcopus salutem in Domino. Noverit universitas vestra quod nobilis vir Joel filius Aluredi pro salute animæ suæ, et patris sui et matris suæ, et omnium parentum et amicorum suorum constituit quandam obedientiam monachorum Cluniacensium apud Barnastaple ad honorem Dei et Domini nostri Jesu Christi sanctæque Mariæ et sanctorum apostolorum Petri et Pauli et sanctæ Mariæ Magdalænæ, et ipsam obedientiam ecclesiæ sancti Petri de Cluniaco et ecclesiæ sancti Martini de Campis subdidit ad quam divina providente clementia devotus confugere et in ea habitum monasticæ religionis suscipere disposuit. Et quia ex voto tenetur ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Magdalænæ extra castellum suum de Barnastapla fundatæ tantum beneficii conferre, ut sacer monachorum conventus constitui et sustentari possit, ad sustentationem ipsorum quasdam particulas terræ suæ donavit eis, scilicet Piltonam cum bosco et marisco et Pillandam, utrasque liberas et qui-etas cum omnibus appenditiis suis, sicut ipse unquam eas liberius et quietius habuit et tenuit. Donavit etiam eis molendinum de Barnastapla liberum et quietum cum multura totius villæ et castelli; ita quod burgenses ad aliud molendinum (molendino monachorum integro existente) molere non poterunt. Et totam terram extra muros, quæ est juxta portam de North et portam de Yest simul cum fosso usque ad contiguam viam, et totam aquam prout terra eorum extenditur. Et totum tractum piscium ipsius aquæ, tam in terra monachorum, quam in terra sua proxima. Ipsius quoque monachis concessit exclusam piscariæ in terra sua firmare in quantum terra eorum extenditur ex altera parte aquæ. Insuper autem concessit ipsis monachis ut omnes terras suas et homines et possessiones et eleemosinas quas habent vel in posterum jure ac legaliter acquirere poterunt, infra fines totius terræ ipsius et feudi sui habeant et teneant solutas, liberas et quietas ab omnibus exactionibus placitis querelis et omni servitio et opere servili et omnibus consuetudinibus quæ excogitari poterunt. Si quid vero forefacti vel querelæ inter homines præfati Joelis et homines monachorum inciderit, monachi plenarie de qualibet causa curiam suam et justitiam habeant propriam et emendationem. Et quia memoratus Joel hæc prædicta præfatorum monachorum sustentationi minime sufficere estimavit, divini amoris instinctu totam ecclesiam sancti Petri Barnastapla cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, capellis, decimis, obventionibus, et omnimodis fructibus et cum capella S. Salvii et oblationibus suis per manum nostram et per assensum nostrum in proprios usus monachorum habendam et in perpetuam eleemosinam possidendam donavit et jure proprietatis transactavit, et duas partes decimæ suæ de Freminton, et totam decimam piscium. Quæ omnia supradictis monachis donavit et sigillo suo confirmavit; ita quod in eos nec sibi nec alicui ex hæredibus suis aliquid violentæ potestatis exercere licebit, nisi tantummodo contra adversantium molestias defensionis auxilium. Quod ne tractu temporis vel malignantium versutiis in dubium revocetur, ego sicut diocesanus episcopus ad petitionem jam dicti Joelis præsentis scripto et sigilli mei appositione ipsis monachis concessi et confirmavi. His testibus, Ascelino archidiacono, Osberto capellano episcopi, et aliis.

* Here, in the former edition of the Monasticon, Sir William Dugdale has inserted three Instruments, which, although they relate to St. Martin de Campis, on which church Barnestaple was at first dependent, do not really belong to Barnestaple itself. The first of these concerns the priory of St. James at Exeter: the other two relate to lands in London belonging to St. Martin. For compression's sake they are here inserted in the Notes.

IN nomine sanctæ et individuæ Trinitatis, incipit carta comitis Baldewini de Riveriis. Quilibet Christiani a Christi ecclesiæ rectoribus ammonentur religiosorum desideriis consentire, justisque ipsorum postulationibus clementer annuere. Quapropter ego Baldewinus Exonien. comes universis ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit, notum fieri volo quod venerabilis monachi Ricardi de Tottonia cognati mei ammonitionis frequentia divinitus inspiratus, filio meo Ricardo concedente et plenarium assensum præbente pro remedio animæ meæ et præcipue pro anima uxoris meæ Adelizæ et patris mei Ricardi et matris meæ Adelizæ, necnon et nobilissimi Henrici regis qui terram patri meo dedit, et filiorum filiarumque mearum et pro omnium parentum meorum animabus totam terram cum capella S. Jacobi et decima et omnibus pertinentiis suis quas Walterus filius Wlwardi de me libere tenuit, ipso Waltero rogante et concedente quicquid juris et domini in eis habebat, et hærede sua Edit assentiente, Deo et monasterio S. Petri Cluniaco et S. Martini de Campis, ad sustentationem monachorum Cluniacensium, ibidem Deo et S. Jacobo servientium, per manum domini Roberti Exoniensis episcopi donavi et irrevocabiliter confirmavi cum eadem libertate et liberis consuetudinibus quibus terram de Toppesham tenui et habui. Insuper etiam concessi eis ut omnes terras suas et homines, possessiones, et eleemosinas quas habent vel in posterum jure ac legaliter acquirere poterunt infra fines totius terræ meæ et feudi mei habeant et teneant solutas liberas et quietas ab omnibus exactionibus, hundredis placitis querelis et omni servitio et opere servili, et teloneo et omnibus consuetudinibus quæ excogitari poterunt. Præterea piâ devotione concessi ut monachi præfati et homines eorum habeant in terra sua quamlibet mensuram et libertatem vendendi et emendi et res suas omnibus modis juste multiplicandi. In terra etiam mea concessi ut habeant absque omni impeditioe, liberum itum et reditum, cum rebus suis, et communes pascuas animalibus suis, et juncos in marisco absque emptione et omnem communitatem refugium et profectum in omni loco qui ad me spectare dignoscitur. Si quid vero forefacti vel querelæ inter homines meos, et homines eorum quacunque occasione inciderit monachi plenarie de qualibet causa curiam suam et justitiam habeant propriam et emendationem. Hæc omnia supradictis monachis donavi et jure proprietatis transactavi, ita quod in eos nec mihi nec alicui ex hæredibus meis aliquid potestatis violenter exercere licebit, nisi tantummodo contra adversantium molestias defensionis auxilium. Et quia hæc prædicta prædictorum fratrum sustentationi minime sufficere aestimavi, divini amoris instinctu totam ecclesiam de Twivertona, cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, per manum prædicti domini Roberti Exon, episcopi donavi et præsentis scripto confirmavi. Volens ut ipsi ab omni vexatione liberi et immunes orationi vacent, et Deum pro nobis indesinenter exorent. Præterea ex voto teneor prædictæ ecclesiæ S. Jacobi extra muros civitatis Exon. fundatæ tantum beneficii conferre, unde sacer monachorum conventus constitui et sustentari poterit. Et ne aliquis indevotus contra hanc meæ donationis paginam diabolica inspiratione ire presumat, vel aliquam inferat molestiam, ipsam sigilli mei impressione corroboravi, coram his testibus, Stephano de Mandevill, Huberto de Vaus, Radulpho Patrich, Roberto de Scocis, Rogero abbate, Willielmo filio Radulphi et fratre suo Roberto, Hugone clerico de Coleford, Roberto de Guerin. Tykeford, or Tickford Priory, near Newport Paine.

IN BUCKINGHAMSHIRE.

ANNER calls this a Cell of Cluniac monks, dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary, subordinate to the abbey of St. Martin Majoris Monasterii, commonly called Marmonstier at Tours in France, to which the manor of Tykeford was given by Fulc or Fulcodius Paine in the reign of King William Rufus.
It was seized into the king's hands, at different times, as an alien priory.

The following were its possessions, as returned in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas, A. D. 1291.

Upon the last restoration of this priory as an alien in the 1st of Henry the Fourth, it was subjected to the priory of the Holy Trinity at York, by the Priors of which house those of Tickford were presented in 1465, 1475, 1499, and 1501.

In addition to the charters already printed in the former edition of the Monasticon, the reader will find in the Appendix to the present Account an Inventory of the goods and chattels of this priory, with an Extent of the manor of Tykeford, taken in the 22d of Edw. I.; an Extent of the whole possessions of the priory, taken in the 18th of Edw. II.; and a Survey of the priory house, precinct, and other possessions, held by the priory in demesne in the time of Henry the Eighth.

The following is Willis's List of the PRIORS of TYKEFORD

in his manuscript History of the Hundred of Newport; a copy of which is preserved among Cole's manuscripts in the British Museum, voll. xxxviii. xxxix.

- ROBERT DE BOHUN. He occurs anno 1187, about a hundred years after the foundation of the cell.
- WALTER occurs 1 Jan. 1199.
- ROBERT, A. D. 1205.
- BERNARD, A. D. 1210.
- HUGH resigned in 1220. His successor was
- WILLIAM. He was banished by the convent of Marmonstier in 1228; but was restored upon submission.
- JOHN DE HOLNA, or COLNA, a monk of Spalding, was made prior in 1232.
- OLIVER occurs prior in 1259.
- GILBERT occurs about 1262. He resigned in 1267, and was succeeded by
- BARTHOLOMEW, who died in 1270.
- REGINALD DE COSSAM was elected 11 kal. Nov. 1270.

In his time, about A. D. 1270, died Giles Erdington, a great benefactor to Tykeford, for whose soul a monk was appointed to sing perpetually.
REGINALD DE BERNEWELL, if he is not the same person with Reginald de Cossam, occurs in 1275.
SIMON also occurs prior in 1275.
GEOFFREY occurs A. D. 1293: upon whose resignation, WILLIAM DE MENEVERE was elected 4 non. July, 1302.
FULK DE CHAMPAIGNESE was admitted 18 kal. July, 1332, upon Menevere's resignation. He was still prior in 1337.
WILLIAM LANGETOURE was admitted on the ides of August, 1349.
JOHN GARRY occurs in 1352.
JOHN DE FRESNAY, 1362.
FRANCIS QUARTERSUL was admitted 13 kal. Apr. 1364.
WILLIAM DE ALNETO, or ALVETO, was admitted prior Feb. 1st, 1365.
JOHN DRIEN occurs in 1400, and again in 1416.
THOMAS CHACE, 1419.
JOHN KARLYSLE, or CARLIEL, occurs 1431. Upon whose death, ROBERT BLYTHE, a monk of St. Andrew Northampton, was elected Feb. 10th, 1433.
THOMAS DERNETON was elected June 18th, 1465, on the resignation of Blythe, at the presentation of John Parke, prior of the Holy Trinity at York.
WILLIAM KIRKBY, or KIRBY, was elected in 1468, on the resignation of Derneton. He resigned in 1475, and was succeeded by WILLIAM PYMBERTON, who was admitted Jan. 4th, 1475, on the presentation of the convent of the Holy Trinity in York.
WILLIAM EYNESHAM was presented by the same convent May 27th, 1499, on the death of Pymberton. In 1501, he was made abbat of Whitby; and was succeeded here by THOMAS YORK, who was presented by the convent abovementioned Nov. 9th, 1501. In 1503 he was made prior of St. Andrew Northampton.
THOMAS BROOKE was elected, on the resignation of York, July 31st, and instituted August 22d, 1503. In 1497, he had been delegated to take care of this priorship, on Pymberton's superannuation, and had been prior of Snelshal.
This priory was dissolved in the 17th of Henry the Eighth, upon its being granted with other houses, to Cardinal Wolsey, in order to be settled on one of his two intended colleges at Oxford and Ipswich. The spiritualities of the priory at this time were valued at 59l. 3s. 4d. per annum, and the temporalities at 67l. 13s. 8d.: in the whole at 126l. 17s. per annum.
Tanner says, after the cardinal's fall, this among other lands of religious houses was granted to the bishop of Lincoln, and other trustees, for the use of the King's college in Oxford; yet was afterwards resumed by the crown, and by King James the First sold to Henry Atkins, M. D. his physician. The Messrs. Lysons say, that it is more probable that it was given to Dr. Atkins as a remuneration for his attendance in Scotland on his son Prince Charles, when he recovered of a dangerous fever; for which we are told he was amply rewarded, and offered a baronet's patent, which he refused. The priory was one of the seats of his posterity, who were afterwards baronets by a patent bearing date 1660; their chief residence was at Clapham in Surrey. Tickford Abbey, as it is called, is now the property of — Hooton, Esq.

From the charter of King Edward the Second, printed in the Appendix, it will be found that the muniments of Tykeford Priory, about the fifth year of that king's reign, received much injury from fire.

In Browne Willis's time, five or six pillars which supported the nave of the priory church, with the arches turned over them, were remaining; together with a gateway, consisting of a greater and a lesser arch. The latter had fallen down before 1767. There are no remains of the smallest consequence at present.

FOR CLUNIAN NUNS.

HIS Religious House was founded in the reign of King Stephen for Cluniac Nuns^a by Simon de St. Liz, the younger, Earl of Northampton. He endowed it with the churches of Barton, Dodington, and Fotheringay; with large possessions in Hardingstone, and certain other smaller benefactions in Extune, Welcumbestowe, Walebec, and Northampton.^b

To these donations Richard, the son of Richard de Beseville, and Ralph, the son of Richard de Beseville, added an acre of arable land in Hardingstone, with a fish-pool named Lachemere, sixty perches in length, each perch containing sixteen feet. And William de Beseville gave a tenement in Cotes. Peter, surnamed Flectarius of Yardley, gave all the lands which he had in Hardingstone by grant from William de Vieux-pont; and John, the son of John Fitz-Dor, and Thomas le Serjaunt gave other lands and rents in Hardingstone and Cotes. Henry de Cotes, William Briton, Walter at le Ground, William Cooke, Walter Bake-cake, and Thomas, the son of J. Kipping, were benefactors to this convent in Cotes. And by the benefactions of several other persons, they were possessed of divers rents and tenements in Northampton.^c

Malcolm and William, kings of Scotland, confirmed the grant of the church of Fotheringay. David, Earl of Huntingdon, brother to the king of Scots, Simon, the son of Richard de Fotheringay, Robert, the son of Reginald de Fotheringay, William Fitz-Lefwin, John de Baliol, and Endo Petich, bestowed upon them lands and revenues in Fotheringay. Robert de Chokes gave them the church of Wollaston; and his grant was confirmed by William de Newburgh. Roger Fitz-Syer, of Wollaston, gave them rents and tenements in Barton; and Matthew de Bykesthorpe, Robert de Newburg, Sampson Fitz-Samson, Ralph Clerk, William Fauconberge of Strixton, William de Bray, Robert, the chaplain, son of Robert Above-towne, John de Yrecestre, William Fitz-Simon, and Roger Fitz-Baldewin, were benefactors to them in Wollaston.

The churches of Filgrave, in Buckinghamshire, were given them by Hugh de Filgrave, and the grant confirmed by William, the son of Alexander de Syrinton, and John, the son of John Clerk, of Terynham; and Giffard de Terynham gave them half a virgate of land in Filgrave.^d

William Fitz-Hamon confirmed to them the church of Fifhide, which was given them by Hamon his father. Roger de Clare, Earl of Hertford, conferred on them the church of Broughton; Stephen de Eketon the church of Drayton; and Robert de Bethune, advocate of Arras, a pension out of the church of Gayton.^e

To these were added divers other donations and privileges in Yardeley, Drayton, Brixworth, Harley, la Gare,^f Abingdon, Hertwell, Conington, Bramfield, Rishton, Scalde- well, Waude, Lodington, Brandeston, Faleclive, Shirington, Braybroke, Evenle, Rothwell, Stapleford, Wykyngeston, Daston, Ashby-Folville, Leyke, and Barton.^g

^a According to Leland, Itin. vol. i. p. 5, the nuns were translated hither from Fotheringay.

^b See the Charter, Num. I. ^c Ibid. ^d Ibid. ^e Ibid.

La Gare, says Bridges, whose abridgement from Dugdale has been principally followed in the above Account, is the place now called Gore Fields, in the parish of Hanslap, in Buckinghamshire. Here was formerly a chapel, where a priest officiated once a week, and received, by agreement with the convent, 13s. 4d. yearly: and this is the same with GARE, mentioned by Bishop Tanner in his Notitia Monastica, Buck. xi. where was said to be a Benedictine Nunnery, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, which the bishop, in his second edition, imagined to have been GORING, anciently called GARING, in Oxfordshire. See Bridges, Hist. Northampt. vol. i. p. 364.

ABBESSES of DE LA PRE.

Upon the foundation of the convent AZELINA was appointed abbess.^h

CECILIA DE DAVENTRE received the royal assent to her election as abbess, Nov. 7th, 1220.ⁱ

AGATHA died in 1274, when

EMMA MALORE was chosen.^k She died in 1282, when

MARGERY DE WOLASTON, sub-prioress of the convent, was chosen to succeed her.^l But the election not meeting the approbation of the whole house, the Bishop of Lincoln first pronounced it void, and then declared her abbess in consideration of her merits. She died in 1296, and was succeeded by

MARGERY DE BROKE,^m upon whose resignation, in 1319,

AGNES DE PAVELY was chosen by scrutiny. But the Bishop of Lincoln, upon inquiry, disapproving of the election, pronounced it void, and then, as his predecessor had done in the case of Abbess Wolaston, declared her abbess in consideration of her merits.ⁿ

MARGARET GRAY, or DE GREY, occurs abbess in the Abbrev. Rot. Orig. vol. ii. p. 23. in the 2d Edw. III. 1329: and again in a charter relating to a messuage in Walda.^o Upon her decease in 1333, the convent was divided in choice, between Catherine Knyvet and Isabel de Cotesbrook; and proceeding to an irregular election, the Bishop of Lincoln set it aside, and nominated

CATHERINE KNYVET.^p This lady died in 1349, and was succeeded by

ISABEL DE THORP, whom the bishop nominated by reason of some defect in the election made by the convent.^q In 1366 she resigned her office, when

JOANE MALLORE was chosen to succeed her.^r

JOANE DOUGHTY was elected in 1481: and occurs again July 7th, 1487.^s

JOANE CHESE occurs A. D. 1492.^t

CLEMENTIA or CLEMENTISSA STOKE, or STOKES, received the temporalities Jan. 24th, 20 Hen. VII.^u She was the last abbess. Dr. London, in a letter to Lord Cromwell, still preserved in the Cottonian Manuscript, Cleop. E. IV. fol. 308. gives the following account of her surrender of her house. "At Delapray, besyde Northampton, I have taken th' abbesse surrendre. The Convent, at the time of the Suppression, consisted of ten nuns.^c The surrender, which is printed by Bridges,^d was dated in the chapter-house of the abbey, Dec. 16th, 30 Hen. VIII.

The Surrender is extant in the Augmentation Office. It is not signed by the abbess and nuns, but is sealed with their COMMON SEAL. The impression, on red wax, is mutilated and much flattened; the subject cannot therefore be determined with certainty. It represents, however, two figures, one apparently in the act of crowning the other. Such part of the inscription as remains may be thus read,

In the 34th of Henry the Eighth the scite of this monastery, with the demesne lands belonging to it in Hardingston and the two Cottons were granted to John Mershe.^e

In the 43d Eliz. Bartholomew Tate, Esq. died seized of them, and was succeeded by William Tate, Esq., his son, with whose posterity they have continued ever since.^f

The modern House of De la Pre, now the seat of Edward Bouverie, Esq. stands on the site of the abbey; of which, when Bridges's History was published, there remained only some battlements at the west end, and what was supposed to have been a part of the chapel.

In the 24th of Henry the Sixth the Priory of Sewar-desley, in Northamptonshire, is said to have been appropriated to De la Pre; though we find it still continuing as a distinct house.

Cistercian Monk.

CISTERCIAN ORDER.

ANOTHER branch of the Benedictines was called CISTERCIANS, from Cistertium or Cisteaux in the bishoprick of Chalons in Burgundy, where this order was begun, A. D. 1098, by Robert, abbat of Molesme in that province; but brought into repute by Stephen Harding, an Englishman, third abbat of Cisteaux, who is therefore reckoned the principal founder.

They were also called BERNARDINES, from St. Bernard, who was abbat of Clairvaux or Clareval, in the diocese of Langres, about A. D. 1116, and a great promoter of this Order; and WHITE MONKS, from the colour of their habit, which was a white cassock, with a narrow scapulary, and over that a black gown when they went abroad, but a white one when they went to church.

Fuller in his Worthies, book iii. p. 164, makes the Bernardines to be a stricter Order of Cistercians.

The monasteries of the Cistercians, which became very numerous in a short time, were generally founded in solitary and uncultivated places, and all dedicated to the blessed Virgin. It was a rule with the Cistercians not to allow another house, even of their own Order, to be built within a certain distance.

These monks came into England about A. D. 1128, and had their first house at Waverley in Surrey.

In the twenty-sixth of Henry the Eighth, the number of Cistercian abbies, of which thirty-six were amongst the Greater Monasteries, amounted to seventy-five; beside twenty-six Cistercian Nunneries. Of the latter, one only was endowed with more than two hundred pounds per annum.

The total of the revenues of the Cistercian houses amounted to 1869*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*^a

Besides these, various Cells occur, some of which must be made distinct articles in the present work; though many were connected so closely with the parent monasteries as to have been little more than Granges.

Stevens, in his Continuation of the Monasticon, has translated a long History "of the Original and Progress of the Order of the Cistercians," from the French.^b It is omitted here, as throwing but little light on the history of the English Houses.

The rules and regulations of the Order, as printed by Dugdale, with the various bulls of confirmation and privilege assembled by Stevens, will be found at the end of the present account.

Stevens has likewise given a Catalogue of the learned men of the order of the Cistercians in England: thirty-six in number.

Epistola Hugonis legati.

HUGO Lugdunensis archiepiscopus et apostolicæ sedis legatus Roberto Molismensi abbati et fratribus cum eo secundum regulam sancti Benedicti Deo servire cupientibus. Notum sit omnibus de sanctæ matris ecclesiæ profectu gaudentibus, vos et quosdam filios vestros Molismensis cœnobii fratres Lugduni in nostra præsentia astitisse, ac regulæ beatissimi Benedicti quam illuc tepidè ac negligenter in eodem monasterio tenuerant, arctiùs deinceps atque perfectiùs inhærere velle professos fuisse. Quodque in loco prædicto pluribus impediens causis constat adimplere non posse. Nos utriusque partis salutis; videlicet inde recedentium, atque illuc remeantium providentes, in locum alium quem vobis divina largitas designaverit, vos declinare, ibique salubriùs atque quietiùs domino famulari utile duximus fore. Vobis ergo tunc præsentibus Roberto abbati, fratribus quoque Alberico, Otoni, et Johanni, Stephano, Letaldo et Petro, sed et omnibus quos regulariter et communi consilio vobis sociare decreveritis hoc factum propositum servare et tunc consuluimus, et ut in hoc perseveretis præcipimus, et auctoritate apostolica per sigilli nostri impressionem imperpetuum confirmamus.

POST hæc talia ac tanta antedictus abbas et sui auctoritate freti Molismum redierunt, et de illo religioso fratrum collegio socios votum in regula habentes elegerunt, ita ut inter eos qui legato Lugduni fuerant locuti et illos qui de cœnobio vocati xx. et unus monachi essent, talique stipati comitatu ad hæremum quæ Cistercium dicebatur, alacriter tetenderunt. Qui locus in episcopatu Cabilonensi situs, et pro nemorum et spinarum tunc temporis opacitate accessui hominum insolitus a solis feris inhabitabatur. Ad quem viri Dei venientes, locumque illum tanto religioni quam animo jamque conceperant et propter quam illuc advenerant habiliorem quanto secularibus despicabiliorem et inaccessibilem intelligentes, nemoris et spinarum densitate prescisa ac remota, monasterium ibidem voluntate Cabilonensis episcopi et consensu illius cujus ipse locus erat construere cœperunt. Nam viri isti apud Molismum sæpiùs inter se Dei gratia de transgressione regulæ beati Benedicti patris monachorum loquebantur, conquerebantur, contristabantur videntes se cæterosque monachos hanc regulam sollempni professione servaturos promisisse, eamque minimè custodisse, et ob hoc, perjurii crimen scienter incurrisse, et propter hoc apostolicæ sedis legati auctoritate uti prælibavimus, ad hanc solitudinem ut professionem suam observantia sanctæ regulæ adimplerent veniebant. Tunc dominus Oto dux Burgundiæ sancto fervore eorum delectatus, sanctæque Romanæ ecclesiæ præscripti legati literis rogatus, monasterium ligneum quod inceperunt de suis totum consummavit, illosque inibi in omnibus necessariis diu procuravit, et terris ac pecoribus abundè sublevavit.

Quomodo locus ille in Abbatiam surrexit.

Quare Molismenses aures Domini Papæ pro reditu Roberti Abbatis inquietaverint.

IGITUR haud multo elapso temporis spacio Molismenses monachi voluntate domini Godefridi abbatis sui qui Roberto successerat dominum Urbanum Papam Romæ adeuntes postulare cœperunt ut sæpe dictus Robertus in locum pristinum restitueretur. Quorum importunitate motus papa mandavit legato suo venerabili scilicet Hugoni, ut si fieri posset idem abbas reverteretur et monachi hæremum diligentes in pace consisterent.

Epistola Domini Papæ pro reditu Roberti Abbatis.

URBANUS episcopus servus servorum Dei venerabili fratri et coepiscopo Hugoni apostolicæ sedis vicario salutem et benedictionem. Molismensium fratrum magnum in consilio clamorem accepimus abbatis sui reditum vehementer postulantium. Dicebant enim religionem in suo loco eversam seque pro abbatis illius absentia odio apud principes et cæteros vicinos haberi. Coacti tandem à fratribus vestris dilectioni tuæ per præsentia scripta mandamus significantes gratum nobis existere ut si fieri posset abbas ille ab heremo ab monasterium reducatur. Quod si implere nequiveritis, curæ tibi sit ut et qui heremum diligunt conquiescant, et qui in cœnobio sunt regularibus disciplinis inserviant. §. Hiis apostolicis literis lectis legatus viros autenticos et religiosos convocavit, et de præsentī negotio quæ subtus sunt exarata diffinivit.

HUGO Lugdunensis ecclesiæ servus carissimo fratri Roberto Lingonensium episcopo salutem. Quid de negotio Molismensis ecclesiæ in colloquio apud Pontum Ansille nuper habito diffiniverimus fraternitati vestræ notificare necessarium duximus. Venerunt ante nos illuc cum literis vestris Molismenses monachi loci sui desolationem atque destructionem quam per remotionem Roberti Abbatis incurrerant ostendentes, ipsumque sibi reddi in patrem magnopere postulantes; nullo modo enim aliter sperabant pacem et quietem Molismensi ecclesiæ posse restitui, vel monastici ordinis vigorem in pristinum statum illic revocari et prosperitatem, nisi in præsentia nostra frater Gaufredus, quem eidem ecclesiæ in abbatem ordinavistis, dicens se libenter ipso Roberto velut patri suo locum daturum si nobis placeret ut eum Molismensi ecclesiæ remitteremus, remitteretur. Audita et ipsorum Molismensium petitione, relictis domini papæ literis super hoc negotio nobis directis totum dispositioni et arbitrio nostro committentibus, tandem multorum virorum religiosorum conventorum quam aliorum qui nobiscum aderant consilio precibus vestris et eorum adquiescentes Molismensi ecclesiæ ipsum restituere decrevimus, ita videlicet ut priusquam illuc redeat Cabilonem veniens, in manu fratris vestri Cabilonensis episcopi, cui secundum consuetudinem cæterorum abbatum professionem fecit, virgam et curam abbatiae reddat, atque monachos Novi monasterii qui ei sicut abbati suo professionem fecerunt et obedientiam promiserunt, ab ipsa professione et obedientia liberos et absolutos dimittat, ac sic ab ipso episcopo professionis quam ei et Cabilonensi ecclesiæ fecit absolutionem accipiat. Dedimus etiam licentiam cum eo redeundi Molismum omnibus illis de fratribus Novi monasterii qui eum secuti fuerant quando à novo monasterio recesserit; tali conditione, ut de cætero neutri neutros sollicitare vel recipere præsumant, nisi secundum quod beatus Benedictus monachos Novi monasterii percepit recipiendos. Postquam autem hæc supradicta fecerit, remittimus eum dilectioni vestræ ut Molismensi ecclesiæ illum in abbatem restituatis. Ita tamen ut si deinceps eandem ecclesiam solita levitate deseruerit, nullus ei substituatur vivente præfato G. abbate absque nostro et vestro ejusdemque Galfridi assensu. Quæ omnia apostolica auctoritate rata esse præcipimus. De capella eciam prædicti abbatis Roberti et de cæteris rebus quas à Molismensi ecclesia recedens secum tulit et cum eis Cabilonensi episcopo atque Novo monasterio se reddidit id statuimus, ut omnia fratribus Novi monasterii salva permaneant præter breviarium quoddam quod usque ad festivitatem sancti Johannis Baptistæ retinebunt ut transcribant, assensu Molismensium. Huic autem diffinitioni interfuerunt episcopi Norgundus Eduensis, Galterus Cabilonensis, Berardus Manticensis, Poncius Bilbensis; et abbates Petrus Trevorciensis, Jarento Dimonensis, Gancerennus Acanocensis, Petrusque Domini Papæ camerarius, multique alii viri honesti et boni testimonii. Hæc omnia abbas ille laudavit et fecit absolvendo Cistercienses ab obedientia quam ei in illo vel in Molismensi loco promiserant. Et dominus Galterius Cabilonensis episcopus abbatem à cura illius ecclesiæ liberum dimisit. Sicque reversus et quidam monachi cum eo qui heremum non diligebant. Hac ergo ratione apostolicaque dispensatione istæ duæ abbatiae in pace et libertate summa remanserunt.

Commendatio Abbatis Roberti.

DILECTISSIMO fratri et coepiscopo Roberto Lingonensi episcopo Galterus Cabilonensis ecclesiæ servus salutem. Notum sit vobis fratrem Robertum cui abbatiam illam in vestro episcopatu sitam quæ Novum monasterium dicitur commiseramus, à professione quam Cabilonensi ecclesiæ fecit, ab obedientia quam nobis promisit, secundum Domini archiepiscopi Hugonis diffinitionem à nobis esse absolutum. Ipse autem monachos illos qui in præfato Novo monasterio remanere decreverunt ab obedientia quam sibi promiserant et professione absolvit et liberos dimisit. Illum igitur amodo suscipere et honorificè tractare ne vereamini.

De Electione primi Abbatis Cisterciensis Ecclesiæ.

VIDUATA igitur suo pastore Cisterciensis ecclesia convenit, ac regulari electione quendam fratrem Albericum nomine in abbatem sibi promovit, virum scilicet literatum, in divinis et humanis satis gnarum, amatorem regulæ et fratrum, quique prioris officium et in Molismensi et in illa diucius gerebat ecclesia, multumque diu nitendo laboraverat sic ad illum de Molismo transmigrarent fratres locum, et pro hoc negotio multa opprobria, carcerem, et verbera, perpessus fuerat.

De Privilegio Romanorum.

PRÆFATUS Albericus cura pastorali licet multum renitens suscepta, cogitare cœpit veluti vir mirabilis providentiæ quæ tribulationum procellæ domum sibi traditam aliquando concutientes vexare possent, et præcavens in futurum cum consilio fratrum transmisit monachos duos, Johannem et Ilboldum Romam, dominum papam Paschalem per eos exorans ut ecclesia sua sub apostolicæ protectionis alis quæta et tuta ab omni ecclesiasticarum seculariumve pressura personarum perpetuò sederet. Qui fratres prædicti Hugonis archiepiscopi, Johannisque et Benedicti Romanæ ecclesiæ cardinalium, Walteri quoque Cabilonensis episcopi literis sigillatis freti Romam prosperè ierunt et redierunt antequam ipse papa Paschalis in captione positus imperatoris pacaret, reportantes ejusdem apostolici privilegium juxta abbatis sanctorumque ejus per omnia exaratum. Has epistolas privilegium etiam Romanum congruum duximus in hoc opusculo relinquere, ut posteri nostri intelligant quam magno consilio et auctoritate ecclesia eorum sit fundata.

Epistola Johannis et Benedicti Cardinalium.

DOMINO patri papæ Paschali et ubique laude eximia prædicando Johannes et Benedictus seipsos per omnia. Quia vestri moderaminis est omnibus ecclesiis providere et justa poscentium votis manum porrigere, vestræque justitiæ adjumento religio Christiana fulta debet incrementum sumere, vestram sanctitatem obnixiùs deprecamur quatinus harum literarum bajulo nostro consilio à quibusdam religiosis fratribus paternitati misso aures pietatis vestræ flectere dignemini. Petunt enim ut præceptum quod de quiete et suæ religionis stabilitate à prædecessore vestro domino nostro beatæ memoriæ papa Urbano acceperunt ut quod secundum ejusdem præcepti tenorem archiepiscopus Lugdonensis tunc legatus et alii coepiscopi et abbates inter eos et Molismensem abbatiam a qua religionis causa decesserant diffinierunt, vestræ auctoritatis privilegio imperpetuum maneat inviolatum. Ipsi enim vidimus eorumque veræ religioni testimonium perhibemus.

Epistola Hugonis Lugdunensis Ecclesiæ Archiepiscopi.

REVERENTISSIMO patri et domino suo Paschali papæ Hugo Lugdunensis ecclesiæ servus per omnia seipsum. Fratres isti præsentium geruli ad paternitatis vestræ celsitudinem tendentes, per nos transitum fecerunt. Et quia infra provinciam nostram, videlicet in episcopatu Cabilonensi mansionem habent, humilitatis nostræ literis apud celsitudinem vestram se commendari pctierunt. Sciatis autem eos de quodam loco qui Novum Monasterium vocatur ad quem de Molismensi ecclesia cum abbate suo exeuntes propter artiores et secretiores vitam secundum regulam beati Benedicti quam proposuerunt tenendam habitandum venerunt, depositis quorum monasteriorum consuetudinibus imbecillitatem suam ad tantum pondus sustinendum imparem judicantes, unde Molismensis ecclesiæ fratres et quidam alii adjacentes monachi inter eos habitare videantur. Quapropter desideratissimam nobis paternitatem vestram humiliter et cum fiducia deprecamur, ut fratres istos totam spem suam in vobis post Dominum ponentes, et idcirco ad apostolatus vestri auctoritatem confugientes benignè pro more vestro respiciatis, et eos et locum ipsorum ad hac infestationem et inquietudinem liberando auctoritatis vestræ privilegio muniatis, utpote pauperes Christi nullam contra suos æmulos divitiis vel potentia defensionem præparantes, sed in sola Dei et vestra clementia spem habentes.

Epistola Episcopi Cabilonensis.

VENERABILI papæ Paschali Walterus Cabilonensis episcopus salutem et debitam subjectionem.

Sicut sanctitas vestra, ut fideles in vera religione proficiant ardentem desiderat, sic eidem vestræ protectionis umbram vestræ consolationis fomentum deesse non expedit; simpliciter ergo petimus quatinus quod factum est de fratribus illis qui artioris vitæ desiderio à Molismensi ecclesia sanctorum virorum consilio recesserunt quos in nostro episcopatu divina pietas collocavit, à quibus transmissus præsentium literarum bajulus vobis præsens adest, secundum prædecessoris vestri præceptum et Lugdunensis archiepiscopi apostolicæ sedis tunc legati, et episcoporum et abbatum diffinitionem et scriptum cui rei nos præsentem extitimus, vos approbare, et ut locus ille abbatia libera imperpetuum permaneat, salva tamen personæ nostræ successorumque nostrorum canonica reverentia, auctoritatis vestræ privilegio corroborare dignemini; sed et abbas quem in eodem loco ordinavimus, et cæteri fratres totis viribus hanc confirmationem in suæ quietis tutelam à vestra flagitat pietate.

Privilegium Romanorum.

PASCHALIS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, venerabili Alberico Novi Monasterii abbati quod in Cabilonensi parochia situm est ejusdemque successoribus regulariter substituendis imperpetuum. Desiderium quod ad religiosum propositum et animarum salutem pertinere monstratur auctore Deo sine aliqua dilatione complendum, unde nos ô filii in Domino dilectissimi citra difficultatem omnium vestrarum precum petitionem advertimus quia religioni vestræ paterno congratulamur affectu locum ergo illum quem inhabitandum pro quiete monastica elegistis ab omnium mortalium molestiis tutum ac liberum esse sancimus, et abbatiam illic perpetuò haberi, ac sub apostolicæ sedis tutela specialiter protegi, salva Cabilonensis ecclesiæ canonica reverentia. Præsentis itaque decreti pagina interdiciamus ne cuiquam omnino personæ liceat statum vestræ conversationis immutare, neque vestri quod novum dicitur cœnobii monachos sine regulari commendatione suscipere in congregationem vestram astutiis quibuslibet aut violentiis perturbare. Eam sanè controversiæ decisionem quam inter vos et Molismensis claustrum monachos frater noster Lugdunensis episcopus tunc apostolicæ sedis vicarius, cum provinciæ suæ episcopis, aliisque religiosis viris, ex præcepto prædecessoris nostri apostolicæ memoriæ Urbani secundi perpetravit, nos tanquam rationabilem ac laudabilem confirmamus. Vos igitur in Christo filii dilectissimi meminisse debetis, quod pars vestri seculares latitudines, pars etiam ipsas monasterii laxioris minùs austeras angustias reliquistis. Ut ergo hac semper gratia digniores censeamini, Dei semper timorem et amorem in vestris cordibus habere satagite, ut quanto à secularibus tumultibus et deliciis liberiores estis, tanto ampliùs placere Deo totis mentis et animæ virtutibus anheletis. Sanè si quis imposterum archiepiscopus aut episcopus, imperator aut rex, princeps aut dux, comes aut vicecomes, judex aut ecclesiastica quælibet secularisve persona hanc nostræ constitutionis paginam sciens contra eam venire temptaverit, secundo terciòve commonita si non satisfactione congrua emendaverit, potestatis honorisque sui dignitate careat, reamque se divino judicio existere de perpetrata iniquitate, cognoscat, et à sacratissimo corpore ac sanguine Dei aliena fiat atque in extremo examine districtæ ultioni subjaceat. Cunctis autem eidem loco justa servantibus sit pax Domini nostri Jesu Christi quatenus et hîc fructum bonæ actionis percipiant et apud districtum Judicem præmia æternæ pacis inveniant.

Instituta Monachorum Cisterciensium de Molismo venientium.

DEHINC abbas ille et fratres ejus non immemores sponsionis suæ, regulam beati Benedicti in loco illo ordinare et unanimiter studuerunt tenere, rejicientes à se quicquid regulæ refragabatur, froccos videlicet et pelliceas ac stamina, capucia quoque et femoralia, pectina et coopertoria, stramina lectorum ac diversa ciborum refectorio fercula, sagimen et cætera omnia quæ puritati regulæ adversabantur, sicque rectitudinem regulæ supra cunctum vitæ suæ tenorem ducentes, tam in ecclesiasticis quam in cæteris observationibus regulæ vestigiis sunt adæuati seu conformati. Exuti ergo veterem hominem novum se induisse gaudebant. Et quia nec in regula nec in vita sancti Benedicti eundem doctorem legebant possedisse ecclesias vel altaria, seu oblationes, aut sepulturas, vel decimas aliorum hominum, seu furnos vel molendinos, aut villas, aut rusticos, nec etiam fœminas monasterium ejus intrasse, nec mortuos ibidem excepta sorore sua sepelisse, ideo hæc omnia abdicaverunt, dicentes, ubi beatus Benedictus docet ut monachus à secularibus actibus se faciat alienum, ibi liquido testatur hoc non debere versari in actibus et cordibus monachorum qui nominis sui ethimologiam hæc fugiendo sectari debent. Decimas quoque aiebant à sanctis patribus qui organa erant Spiritus Sancti quorum statuta transgredi sacrilegium est committere, in quatuor partitiones distributas; unam scilicet episcopo, alteram presbitero, tertiam hospitibus ad illam ecclesiam venientibus seu viduis, et orphanis sive pauperibus, aliunde victum non habentibus, quartam restorationi ecclesiæ. Et quia in hoc compoto personam monachi qui terras suas possidere unde et per se et per pecora sua laborando vivat non reperiebant, idcirco hæc veluti aliorum jus injustè sibi usurpare detrectabant. Ecce hujus seculi divitiis spretis cœperunt novi milites Christi cum paupere Christo pauperes inter se tractare quo ingenio, quo artificio, quo se exercitio in hac vita, se hospitesque, divites et pauperes, supervenientes quos ut Christum suscipere præcipit regula sustentarent. Tunc itaque diffinierunt se conversos laicos barbaros licentia sui episcopi suscepturos, eosque in vita et morte excepto monachatu ut seipsos tractaturos, et homines etiam mercenarios, quia sine adminiculo istorum non intelligebant se plenariè die sive nocte præcepta regulæ posse servare, suscepturos, quoque terras ab habitatione hominum remotas, et vineas, et prata, et silvas, aquas quoque ad faciendos molendinos, ad proprios usus, et ad piscationem, et equos pecoraque diversa necessitati hominum utilia. Et cum alicubi curtes aut agriculturas exercendas instituissent, decreverunt ut prædicti conversi domos illas regerent non monachi, quia habitatio monachorum secundum regulam debet esse in claustro ipsorum. Quia etiam beatum Benedictum non in civitatibus, nec in castellis aut in villis, sed in locis à frequentia hominum et populi semotis cœnobيا construisse sancti viri illi sciebant, idem se æmulari promittebant. Et sicut ille monasteria constructa per duodenos monachos adjuncto patre disponebat, sic se acturos confirmabant.

De Tristitia eorum.

ILLUD virum Dei prædictum et suos aliquantulum mœstitiæ subdidit, quod rarò quis illis diebus illuc ad eos invisendos veniret; viri enim sancti thesaurum virtutum cœlitus inventum successoribus ad multorum salutem profuturum committere gestiebant; sed fere omnes videntes et audientes vitæ eorum asperitatem insolitam, et quasi inauditam, plus corde et corpore elongare quam approximari se eis festinabant, et de perseverantia eorum titubare non cessabant. Sed Dei misericordia qui hanc militiam spiritalem suis inspiravit ad multorum profectum, egregiè eam amplificare et consummare non cessavit, sicuti sequentia declarabunt.

De Morte primi Abbatis et Promotione Stephani, et de Institutis et Lætitia eorum.

VIR autem domini Albericus in scola Christi per septem annos et dimidium regulari disciplina fœliciter exercitatus migravit ad Dominum fide et virtutibus gloriosus, et ideo in vita æterna à Deo merito beandus. Huic successit quidam frater Stephanus nomine, Anglicus natione, qui et ipse cum aliis de Molismo illuc advenerat, quique amator regulæ sanctæ et fratrum. Hujus temporibus interdixerunt fratres una cum eodem abbate ne dux illius terræ suam aliquo tempore in illa ecclesia tenerent sicuti antea in solempnitatibus agere solebant ne quid hiis qui in domo Dei die ac nocte Deo servire devotè cupiebant remaneret, quod superbiam aut superfluitatem redoleret, aut paupertatem custodem virtutum sponte quam elegerant aliquando corrumperet. Confirmaverunt ne retinerent cruces aureas aut argenteas nisi tantummodo ligneas coloribus depictas, neque candelabra nisi unum ferreum, neque thuribula nisi cuprea vel ferrea, neque casulas nisi de fustaneo vel lino sine pallio aureo vel argenteo, neque albas vel amictus nisi de lino similiter sine pallio aureo vel argenteo. Pallia verò omnia et cappas atque dalmaticas tunicasque ex toto dimiserunt, sed calices argenteos non aureos, sed si poterit fieri deauratos et fistulam argenteam, et si possibile fuerit deauratam, stolas quoque atque manipulos de pallio tantum sine auro et argento retinuerunt. Pallæ autem altarium ut de lino fierent et sine pictura planæ præcipiebant, et ut ampullæ vinariæ sine auro et argento essent. Illis diebus in terris et vineis et pratis curtibusque eadem ecclesia crevit, nec decrevit religione. Ergo istis temporibus visitavit Deus locum illum viscera misericordiæ suæ effundens super se petentes ad se clamantes coram se lacrymantes die noctuque longaque et profunda suspiria trahentes et ferè hostio desperationis appropinquantes pro eorum successoribus ne panecarerent. Nam tot clericos literatos et nobiles laicos et in seculo potentes et æque nobiles uno tempore ad illam Dei gratia remisit ecclesiam ut xxx. insimul in cellam novitiorum alacriter intrarent, ac bene contra propria vitia et irritamenta spirituum malignorum fortiter cursum suum consummarent, quorum exemplo senes et juvenes diversæque ætatis homines in diversis mundi partibus animati, videntes scilicet possibile in istis fore quod antea impossibile in custodienda regula formidabant, illuc concurrere, superba colla jugo Christi suavi subdere, dura et aspera præcepta regulæ ardenter amare, ecclesiamque mirabiliter ædificare et corroborare cœperunt.

VENERABILIBUS et in Christo dilectis de Furnes et de Bellalanda, ac universis generationis Savigniacensis coabbatibus suis per Angliam et Walliam constitutis, ac eorum conventibus, frater Johannes dictus abbas Savigniacensis cum salute quam sibi in Domino compassionis visceribus abundare et rei cognoscere veritatem. Inter procellosas voragines et tempestuosos turbines hujus mundi nostri ordinis navicula constituta, sicut stellæ maris radioso lumine, gratia videlicet Virginis indiget ad conductum, ita nautarum solertia, prælatorum scilicet diligentia eidem est necessaria ad Scillense periculum cautiùs evitandum. Inde est quod vobis tanquam zelatoribus religionis pariter et fervoris, ipsius ordinis statum cujus estis filii et alumpni qualiter ad præsens se habeat in partibus Gallicanis breviantes duximus intimum. Noverit ergo universitas vestra quod anno præterito in capitulo generali cum dominus Cisterciensis diffinitores vellet eligere et nominatos à quatuor primis reprobare pro suæ libito voluntatis, unum de filiis Clarevallis virum utique experientia fama et industria ac fervore religionis insignem inter alios specialiter refutavit. Obsecratus itaque à reverendo patre domino abbate Clarevallensi, et cæteris senioribus et majoribus abbatibus de linea Clarevallensium, Cisterciensis abbas, etiam petitis veniis ut propter novitatem dicti Clarevallensis quem dominus diebus istis ordini vestro creditur reservasse, antiqua libertas et consueta licentia quatuor primis super nominatione diffinitorum saltem in illo anno in suo robore perduraret, nullatenus nec supplicationibus nec precibus idem Cisterciensis voluit consentire. Et habito cum filiis suis consilio salutari, idem Clarevallensis de consensu omnium filiorum suorum jus suum et antiquam libertatem matris nostræ Clarevallis in ipso capitulo protestatus dixit, propter illius abbatis ammonitionem nullum sibi debere præjudicium generari. Vidimus enim quia Cisterciensis abbas quos vellet posset ponere diffinitores et quos nollet reprobare, posset diffinitores facere quales vellet, et ita pro libitu subventiones imposterum exigeret, exactiones imposeret, jurisdictionem sibi per totum ordinem vendicaret, et sic antiqua ordinis simplicitas malignorum ambitione multiplici penitus deperiret, et limitati termini quos posuerunt patres nostri transgressione dampnabili minimè curarentur. Quibus de causis et etiam pluribus aliis quæ inferiùs describuntur, consulimus universi abbates de linea Clarevallis ut tantæ pestilentiae congruum antidotum quæreretur. Ecce autem interim dominus Clarevallensis mandato summi pontificis compellitur ad pontificii dignitatem; quod mira et occulta Dei dispositione factum esse creditur, et ut honestiorem et manifestiorem occasionem haberet ad curiam accedendi. Quam quidem dignitatem idem Clarevallensis tanquam homo humillimus et religiosissimus recipere minimè adquevit. Sed audiens quod Cisterciensis abbas mandati esset apostolici executor, festinato viam eundi ad curiam Romanam aggressus jam sex dietas itineris confecerat, cum ecce duo abbates missi ex parte abbatis Cisterciensis ad pedes montium invenerunt, exhibentes ei duo paria literarum, in quibus Cisterciensis excommunicabat in scriptis nulla monitione præmissa prætermisso juris ordine eundem Clarevallensem nisi tertia die pro quibusdam negotiis, ut scribebat, apud Cistercium compareret. Clarevallensis vero nil motus talibus utpote homo constantissimus et ordinatus se literatoriè humiliter excusavit, dicens quod cum ad curiam accedere disponeret pro absolutione sibi impositi oneris optinenda et pro filiabus suis quæ sunt in Italia visitandis, et jam magnam partem itineris confecisset, non poterat sine magno detrimento et scandalo dimittere iter cœptum, et ideo supplicabat omni humilitate qua poterat, quatinus suam excusationem legitimam acceptaret, et ita infecto negotio ad quod illi duo venerant abbates ad propria redierunt. Dompnus autem Clarevallensis vocaverat nos ut essemus participes itineris illius et laboris. Venientes igitur ad curiam Romanam insimul post multas fatigationes et difficultates permaximas, tandem absolutio- nem optinuit ab episcopatus regimine quam petebat. Innotuit post hæc summo pontifici quod ordo noster quoad plures articulos reformatione indigeret propter tyrannicas oppressiones et graves insolentias ali- quorum patrum abbatum qui ad cedendum turpiter et injustè suos filios compellebant, parentes suos et alios sibi favorabiles vitiosos ignominiosè depositos et malæ famæ homines loco utilium personarum contra voluntatem conventuum intrudentes. Innotuit etiam eidem summo pontifici conventus ordinis in pluribus locis suis liberis electionibus defraudatos per patres abbates, et personas honestas religiosas et utiles indebitè refutari; tempore etiam visitationis, honesti et utiles domibus monachi contra voluntatem proprii abbatis et consilii sanioris cum suis sarcinulis sæpius emittuntur nulla causa rationabili existente. Gravationem etiam domorum intellexit idem summus pontifex occasione plurium equiturarum in ordine suboriri, scan- dala non curari, dissensiones augeri, novitates obrepere, fervorem minui, augmentari dissolutiones, remitti rigorem monasticæ disciplinæ. In capitulo etiam generali animadvertit statuta edi et inutilia et grave inferentia ordini nocumentum, sicut est illud ut de aliis taceatur de inquisitionibus committendis, licet de novo inceperunt plura tum scandala generarunt tum per tales commissiones inquisitionum aliquibus malivolis injunctas auctoritate capituli generalis multorum jam fuerit innocentia supplantata. Percepit insuper idem summus pontifex quod visitatio Cist. superficialis tantum esset cum quatuor primi ibi ad vi- sitationem convenientes nichil possent aut auderent corrigere nisi de domini Cisterciensis beneplacito et assensu, cum idem Cisterciensis tempore visitationis sedem primam teneat et usurpativè correctiones faciat pœnitentias injungendo, et si aliquid contra voluntatem Cisterciensis fuerit attemptatum comminationes visitoribus inferuntur, et ex defectu debitæ correctionis domus illa Cisterciensis in abisso debitorum mul- tociens corrui, de quibus onerari sæpe oportuit ordinem universum. Hiis et pluribus aliis rationibus immo enormitatibus quoniam nimis longum esset præsentibus inserere licet multiplices sint et graves, ex- citatus summus pontifex, post longos tractatus, de conscientia religiosorum et majorum fratrum suorum cardinalium, et honestos, et discretos fama religionis, experientia, et ætate grandævos reverencia præcipuos, dominum episcopum Treten. abbatem Majoris-Monasterii et confessorem domini regis Franciæ reforma- tores nostri ordinis et inquisitores instituit, ut per tractatus pacificos et viam concordiae si posset fieri, nostrum ordinem appellatione postposita reducerent ad cursum solitum et antiquum. Dominus autem Morimundus cum tenorem rescripti apostolici inquisitoribus destinati plenius intellexisset, nichilque ficti- tium nichil adinventicium vel mendosum in eo perspexisset, pro se et pro tota generatione sua literas adhe- rentiæ nobis dedit reformationi ordinis consentientes totaliter et precisè. Ita quod sumus modo tres partes totius ordinis in hoc negotio concordantes absque illis qui sunt de alia quarta parte qui nobis occultè favent, et quidam etiam manifestè. Unde non credimus quod sit conventus in toto ordine nisi unus, scilicet conven- tus Cisterciensis, nec aliquis abbas nisi fortè xx. vel circiter qui non adhæreant toto corde. Cæterum cum assignata die et partibus convocatis ad preces et instantiam domini regis Franciæ tractaretur de pace in aliquibus articulis, fuit ex utraque parte concordatum, in aliquibus contradictum, et præsentibus xv. abbatibus et ampliùs et electo Mailamensi, et archiepiscopo Baiocensi ex parte regis ad tractandum de pace specialiter destinatis, abbas Cisterciensis coram omnibus petit jurisdictionem et correctionem culparum et curam animarum per ordinem universum, et fuit ista petitio sigillata de mandato Cisterciensis abbatis et ab abbate Clarevallensi omnino contradicta. Sic enim Cisterciensis celare non potuit virus pestiferum quod latebat in corde, sed crepuit in audientia talium et tantorum, et sic errore acceptus contra se omnes patres abbates totius ordinis provocavit. Cum verò die assignata coram reformatibus et inquisitoribus cum aliquantibus abbatibus Cist. abbas et xvj. advocatis secularibus comparuisset, et mandatum apostolicum audivisset, et ei facta fuisset copia rescripti apostolici, postquam Clarevallensis et Morimundensis qui secum habebant circiter xij. abbates et nullum penitus advocatum obnixè supplicaverant, petitis veniis ut juxta mandatum apostolicum in commisso sibi negotio procedere non differrent, Cisterciensis abbas et qui præ cæteris reformationem et bonum statum ordinis quærere debuisset consilio advocatorum deceptus frivolum quandam appellationem et nugatoriam cum legisset coram executoribus mandati apostolici, de nocte effugit et exinde ad curiam est profectus. Executores verò nostri frivoli appellationi et tergiver- sationi minimè deferentes in negotio totaliter juxta formam sibi traditam processerunt, et relationem super hiis quæ à majoribus et sanioribus ordinis per sacramentum invenerint diversis in locis et diversis personis miserunt ad curiam per nuncios speciales; post quos ivit jam dominus Clarevallensis et nos post ipsum, audituri et recepturi, Deo propicio, quod ad decus ordinis et decorem antiquum et pacem cedere debeat animorum. Hæc autem vobis scripsimus ut vobis aliud referentibus non credatis, quia vobis licet breviter, rei intimavimus veritatem. De cætero quia res vestra et totius ordinis agitur vel ad confusionem perpetuam vel ad exaltationem perpetuam duraturam, devotissimis orationibus negotium quod habemus præ manibus muniatis, orantes pro nobis et orari devotiùs facientes, Bene valete. Legatur ista epistola in omnibus capitulis generationis vestræ, ubi fieri potuit opportunè. Dat. apud Clarevallem anno Domini m.cclxiiij. in crastino Natalis Domini.

IN nomine Domini, Amen. Nos frater Guydo titulo sancti Laurentii presbyter cardinalis, sedis apostolicæ legatus, facto et recepto in nos compromisso super discordia quæ vertebatur in ordine circa electionem sive institutionem diffinitorum, et data nobis plenariè potestate ab abbate et conventu Cistercii, et à quatuor primis abbatibus, et à toto capitulo generali ordinandi et statuendi in prædicto negotio quod paci et utilitati ordinis videbimus expedire: pro bono pacis et caritatis in ordine conservandæ ordinamus atque constituimus, quod quilibet de quatuor primis abbatibus veniens ad capitulum generale quinque abbates dompno Cisterciensi volenti diffinitores eligere nominabit, ita tamen quod duo ex ipsis quos pater abbas nominans præeligere voluerit, per abbatem Cisterciensem illa vice amoveri non poterint vel dimitti. De tribus verò residuis quemcumque voluerit abbas Cisterciensis relinquet, et alios duos diffinitores instituet cum prædictis. Si verò aliquem de primis quatuor abbatibus ad capitulum generale venire non contigerit, prædictam nominationem et præelectionem per literas suas petere poterit, vel aliquem de filiis suis abbatibus vicarium ibi constituet ad hoc ipsum. Si verò aliquem de quatuor primis filiabus vacare contigerit vel abbatem ejus in tali statu esse ut ad facienda prædicta sit impotens et ineptus, tempore capituli generalis primus abbas de filiis generationis illius qui in capitulo fuerit prædicta omnia supplere poterit vice patris. Si verò aliquem de primis quatuor abbatibus per negligentiam vel quamcumque occasionem aliam nec venire ad capitulum nec literas mittere nec vicarium ad prædicta substituere contigerit, abbas Cisterciensis vice ipsius quatuor diffinitores assumet de generatione ipsius absentis si tot præsentis ibi fuerint, alioquin de aliis abbatibus quod defuerit suppleatur ut diffinitorum numerus integretur. In nullo tamen volumus per ordinationem istam derogari statutis cartæ Caritatis quæ de generali capitulo faciunt mentionem. Cætera verò quæ in ordinatione dompni papæ continentur, in suo robore perseverent. Act. Cistercii xvij. kal. Octobr. tempore capituli generalis, anno Domini m.cclxv.

PONTIFICIBUS CONCESSA.

Privilegium Innocentii Quarti Papæ, Quod ratione Delicti non debeant Monachi Cistercienses conveniri coram Locorum Ordinariis.

INNOCENCIUS episcopus, &c. Dilectis filiis abbati Cisterciensi, ejusdem coabbatibus et eorum conventibus Cisterciensis ordinis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum nuper duxerimus statuendum ut exempti quantacumque gaudeant libertate, nichilominus cum ratione delicti seu contractus aut rei de qua contra ipsos agitur rite possint coram locorum ordinariis conveniri et illi quoad hoc suam in ipsos jurisdictionem prout jus exigit exercere; vos dubitantes ne per constitutionem hujusmodi libertatibus et immunitatibus vobis et ordini vestro per privilegia et indulgentias ab apostolica sede concessas præjudicari valeat, nobis humiliter supplicastis ut provide super hoc immunitati vestræ paterna sollicitudine curaremus.

Quia vero ejusdem ordinis sacra religio sic vos apud nos dignos favore constituit ut nobis votivum existat vos ab omnibus per quæ possent vobis provenire dispendia immunes libenti animo preservare volentes auctoritate præsentium vobis indulgemus ut occasione constitutionis hujus nullum eisdem libertatibus et immunitatibus in posterum præjudicium generetur: nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ concessionis infringere vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem, &c. Dat. Lugduni, IV nonas Marcii, pontificatus nostri anno quarto.

II.

Privilegium ejusdem Innocentii Papæ, ne quis Prælati excommunicare vel interdicere præsumat Familiares, Servientes, et Benefactores Cisterciensium.

[Ibid.]

INNOCENCIUS episcopus, &c. dilectis filiis abbatibus et eorum conventibus Cisterciensis ordinis per Eboracensem constitutis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum a nobis petitur quod justum est et honestum tam vigor equitatis quam ordo exigit rationis ut id per sollicitudinem officii nostri ad debitum perducatur effectum; ex parte siquidem vestra fuit propositum coram nobis quod nonnulli ecclesiarum prælati vestris libertatibus invidentes cum eis non liceat ex apostolicæ sedis indulto in vos excommunicationis vel interdicti sententias promulgare, infamiliares, servientes et benefactores, ac illos qui molunt in molendinis vel coquunt in furnis vestris quique vendendo vel emendo vel alias vobis communicant sententias proferunt memoratas, sicque non vim et potestatem privilegiorum vestrorum sed sola verba servantes vos quodammodo exco-riant, dum vobis alios communicare non sinunt et ex hoc judicari videmini judicio Judæorum, et qui vobis communicant in prædictis, illud evenit inconveniens quod majorem excommunicationem incurrant, quam excommunicatis communicando fuerant incursuri. Quare nobis humiliter supplicastis ut proinde quieti vestræ super hoc paterna sollicitudine curaremus. Nos ergo vestris supplicationibus inclinati ne quis prædictorum has sententias in fraudem privilegiorum apostolicæ sedis de cetero promulgare præsumat auctoritate præsentium inhibemus, decernentes eas si per præsumptionem cujuspiam illicite promulgari contigerit, irritas et inanes. Nulli ergo, &c. Si quis, &c.

III.

Privilegium Alexandri Papæ, ne visitentur Monachi Cistercienses nisi a propriis Abbatibus.

[Ibid.]

ALEXANDER episcopus, servus, &c. dilectis filiis abbati Cisterciensi, ejusque coabbatibus universis Cisterciensis ordinis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Sedes apostolica duxit vobis provide concedendum, ut a nullo alio nisi a prioribus seu vestri ordinis monachis a dictis abbatibus super hoc deputatis visitari vel corrigi valeatis. Quia vero sic sunt procuraciones visitacioni annexæ, ut prælatis non sint nisi visitent exhibendæ, auctoritate præsentium ne quis diœcesanus vel prælatus alius a vobis procuraciones exigere vel extorquere præsumat; et ne vos eas exhibeatis districtius inhibemus. Decernentes eadem auctoritate irritum et inane si quid contra inhibitionem hujusmodi a quoquam fuerit temeritate propria præsumptum, ac sententias si quæ in vos hujusmodi occasione prolatae similiter non tenere. teria vestra declinant caritative secundum facultatum vestrarum exigenciam necessaria ministrantes, nonnulli prælatorum vestrorum hæc convertere molientes in debitum et quod sic sponte impenditis sibi deberi ex antiqua consuetudine asserentes vos et monasteria vestra multipliciter gravant et molestant. Nos igitur vestris supplicationibus inclinati et volentes in hac parte quieti vestræ paterna diligencia providere, ne quisquam prælatus id quod sic generose expenditis a vobis ex debito seu præscripta consuetudine exigere præsumat auctoritate præsentium distinctius inhibemus. Nulli ergo, &c.

[Ibid.]

ALEXANDER episcopus, &c. Persignis ordinis vestri religio, fœcunditate referta virtutum, et meritorum conspicua sanctitate, necnon et devocionis sinceritas quam reverenter et sedulo erga nos et Romanam ecclesiam exhibetis promerentur ut nos apostolici favoris plenitudine prosequentes vobis assidue nos reddamus ad gratiam liberales. Sane cum sicut lecta nobis ex parte vestra peticio continebat sæpe contingit quod vos de vestris animalibus societatem cum aliis contrahentes ea ipsis ad terciam partem custodienda traditis, seu eciam nutrienda, vestris itaque supplicationibus inclinati, ut de contingente vos pecorum, animalium seu fœtum eorundem porcione non teneamini solvere cuique decimas nec ad eas solvendas compelli possitis auctoritate præsentium vobis indulgemus. Nulli ergo, &c.

[Ibid. fol. 150.]

ALEXANDER episcopus, &c. Præclaræ religionis vestræ favor exposcit quod devocionis sinceræ quam erga nos ac Romanam ecclesiam geritis merita nos inducunt ut vos speciali prærogativa prosequentes vestris precibus quantum cum Domino possumus favorabiliter annuamus. Cum igitur felicis recordacionis J. papa prædecessor noster ut in ordine vestro sublata materia scandali religionis conformitas et vitæ unitas in caritatis integritate servetur vobis suis literis concessisse dicatur, ut juxta ejusdem ordinis instituta nulli fratrum ipsius ordinis seu alii ejusdem ordinis personæ absque abbatis sui licencia, liceat cuiquam alterius religionis vel seculari presbitero confiteri nec ei confessiones eorum audire vel eis absolucionis beneficium impertiri, vestris devotis supplicationibus inclinati quod super hoc vobis est a prædicto prædecessore nostro concessum gratum habemus et ratum, id auctoritate apostolica confirmamus et præsentis scripti patrocinio communimus. Nulli ergo, &c. Siquis autem. Dat. &c.

[Ibid.]

ALEXANDER episcopus, &c. Abbati Cisterciensi cæterisque coabbatibus, &c. Circa sanctum et famosum ordinem vestrum illius sinceritatis affectum gerimus, quod semper ipsius justa desideria libentissime procuramus et sumus ad ea solliciti per quæ virtutum Domino possitis devotius et quietius famulari. Sane lecta coram nobis vestra peticio continebat, quod licet legati et nuncii sedis apostolicæ et etiam archiepiscopi et episcopi diœcesani locorum, necnon et alii ecclesiarum prælati, quotiens ad monasteria et domos ordinis vestri divertunt honeste admittantur in eis et caritative tractentur, quandoque tamen iidem diœcesani et prælati auctoritate papali, interdum vero dicti legati et nuncii prætextu literarum præfatæ sedis in quibus aliquando continetur quod ab exemptis et non exemptis, non obstante aliqua indulgentia Cisterciensibus vel aliis quibuscumque concessa in procuracione pecuniaria provideatur eisdem procuracioni hujusmodi et alia plura contra indulta quæ prædicta sedes concessit vobis communiter vel divisim, a vobis vel prædictis monasteriis ac domibus exigere vel extorquere, ac alias vos et monasteria ipsa seu domos multipliciter molestare præsumunt, interdicti et in personas suspensionis et excommunicationis sententias proferenda in vestrum præjudicium et ipsius ordinis detrimentum. Cum itaque dilectus filius noster J. tituli Sancti Laurencii in Lucina presbiter cardinalis, qui semper ad hoc intentus esse dinoscitur ut ordo prosperitatis affluentiam consequatur, a nobis affectuose petierit ut super præmissis paterna sollicitudine curaremus, nos ejusdem cardinalis et vestris precibus annuentes, quod eisdem legatis et nunciis per supradictas et quascumque alias apostolicæ sedis literas, ac eciam prædictis archiepiscopis, episcopis, seu prælatis in procuracione pecuniaria non teneamini providere vobis auctoritate præsentium indulgemus, decernentes quod hujusmodi sententiæ, si quas in vos vel aliquem vestrum taliter contigerit de cætero promulgari, sint irritæ penitus et inanes. Nulli ergo, &c. Dat. Lat. xv. kal. Marcii, pontificatus nostri anno vii.

[Ibid. fol. 151.]

INNOCENCIUS episcopus servus servorum Dei dilectis filiis abbati Cisterciensi ejusque coabbatibus et conventibus universis Cisterciensis ordinis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum nuper duxerimus statuendum ut exempti quantacumque gaudeant libertate, nihilominus tamen ratione delicti seu contractus aut rei de qua contra ipsos agitur, rite possint coram locorum ordinariis conveniri, et illi quoad hæc suam in ipsos jurisdictionem prout jus exigit exercere, vos dubitantes ne per constitutionem hujusmodi libertatibus et immunitatibus vobis et ordini vestro per privilegia et indulgentias ab apostolica sede concessis præjudicari valeat nobis humiliter supplicastis, ut provide super hoc indemnitati vestræ paterna sollicitudine curaremus. Quia vero ejusdem ordinis sancta religio sic vos apud nos dignos favore constituit ut nobis votivum existat vos ab omnibus per quæ vobis possent provenire dispendia immunes libenti animo preservare, auctoritate vobis præsentium indulgemus, ut occasione constitutionis hujusmodi nullum eisdem libertatibus et immunitatibus in posterum præjudicium generetur. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ concessionis infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit, indignacionem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursurum. Dat. Mediolani, vii. idus Julii, anno ix°. pontificatus nostri.

Privilegium Alexandri Quarti Papæ superius Privilegium Innocentii Quarti confirmans.

[Ibid.]

ALEXANDER episcopus servus servorum Dei dilectis filiis abbati Cistercii, ejusque coabbatibus et conventibus universis Cisterciensis ordinis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Meritis sacræ vestræ religionis inducimur ut vos favore benivolo jugiter prosequamur, et super hiis quæ digne deposcitis habeamus providentiæ studium efficacis. Sane cum felicis recordacionis Innocencius papa prædecessor noster hactenus statuisset ut exempti quantacumque gaudeant libertate, nihilominus cum ratione delicti, aut contractus seu rei de qua agitur contra ipsos, rite coram locorum ordinariis conveniri et inde ordinarii quoad hoc jurisdictionem ordinariam in eosdem exemptos valeant exercere. Idem prædecessor postmodum, ac nos eciam per literas apostolicas duximus injungendum, ut occasione constitutionis hujusmodi libertatibus et immunitatibus ordini vestro ab apostolica sede concessis nullum præjudicium generetur. Processu vero temporis nos circa hoc aliud statutum in quo de templariis et hospitalariis ac aliis religiosis exemptis habetur mentio specialis edidimus, inter alia continens ut exempti, oratoria vel capellas in locis non exemptis sine licencia diœcesanorum locorum construere non præsumant, nec in taliter constitutis aut in locis non exemptis cum ab ordinariis interdicta fuerint, divina celebrent vel faciant celebrari; et si forte talia præsumpserint ab hiis per locorum ipsorum ordinarios compescantur; ita quod in locis eciam exemptis hoc præfati exempti non audeant attemptare; hujus autem nostri occasione statuti nonnulli locorum ordinarii qui prædictis libertatibus et immunitatibus vestris incessanter invident et frequenter obsistunt ad sua judicia contra libertates et immunitates easdem vos pertrahunt et multiplici vexacione fatigant in vestrum præjudicium et ipsius ordinis non modicum detrimentum, quare humiliter petebatis a nobis super hiis de circumspectione apostolica provideri. Cum itaque intencionis nostræ non fuerit nec existat ut per idem nostrum statutum, in quo de ordine vestro aliqua mentio non habetur, libertatibus et immunitatibus vobis et eidem ordini a præfata sede concessis, in aliquo derogetur, nos vestræ in hac parte quieti consulere cupientes, ut occasione prædicti statuti nostri nullum vobis super eisdem libertatibus et immunitatibus præjudicium generetur, nec dicti ordinarii vos aut aliquem vestrum contra libertates et immunitates easdem propter statutum ipsum coram se possint ad judicium evocare vobis auctoritate præsentium indulgemus. Nulli ergo hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ concessionis infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit, indignacionem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursurum. Dat. Anginæ, 11 kal. Maii, pontificatus nostri anno vº.

HONORIUS episcopus servus servorum Dei dilectis filiis abbati Cistercii, et universis coabbatibus ejus et fratribus sub eodem ordine Deo servientibus salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Contingit interdum quod nonnulli propriis incumbentes affectibus dum sanctionum sensum legitimum ad sua vota non habent accommodum, superinducunt adulterum intellectum in temporali compendio æternum dispendium non timentes. Sane quia sicut audivimus quidam suo nimis inhærentes ingenio, nimiumque voluntarii concilii generalis interpretes de novalibus post idem concilium acquisitis a vobis intendunt decimas extorquere, ne super hiis vos contingat indebita molestacione vexari, nos interpretacionem illorum intellectui constitucionis prædicti concilii super Cisterciensium decimis editæ asserimus peregrinam. In ipsa quidem expresse cavetur ut de alienis terris et amodo acquirendis, si eas propriis manibus et sumptibus colueritis decimas persolvatis, ecclesiis quibus ratione prædiorum antea solvebantur, unde si ad propositum aciem discretionis extenderent, advertentes nichilominus de quibus novalibus apostolica sedes intelligat indulgenciam super talibus piis locis concessam, non sic circa novalia novæ interpretacionis ludibrio ingenia fatigarent. Inhibemus igitur auctoritate præsentium, ut nullus a vobis de novalibus a tempore concilii excultis vel imposterum propriis manibus aut sumptibus excolendis decimas exigere vel extorquere præsumat. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ inhibicionis infringere vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit indignacionem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursurum. Dat. Lateran. xvi. kal. Jan. pontificatus nostri anno vº.

ALEXANDER episcopus servus servorum Dei venerabilibus fratribus universis archiepiscopis et episcopis, et dilectis filiis abbatibus, prioribus, decanis, archidiaconis et aliis ecclesiarum prælatis præsentibus literas inspecturis, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Felicis recordacionis Lucii papæ prædecessoris nostri literarum tenorem in literis venerabilis fratris nostri Johannis episcopi Cicestrensis contentum perspeximus in hæc verba: 'Lucius episcopus servus servorum Dei venerabilibus fratribus, archiepiscopis, episcopis, dilectis filiis abbatibus, prioribus, archidiaconis, decanis, presbiteris et universis ecclesiarum prælatis ad quos literæ istæ pervenerint salu-tem, et apostolicam benedictionem. Audivimus et audientes mirati sumus quod cum dilectis filiis nostris fratribus ordinis Cisterciensis a pontificibus et prædecessoribus nostris concessum sit et a nobis postmodum confirmatum, ut de laboribus quos propriis manibus aut sumptibus excolunt nemini decimas solvere teneantur, quidam ab eis nichilominus contra apostolicæ sedis indulgentiam decimas exigere et extorquere præsumunt et prava et sinistra interpretacione apostolicorum privilegiorum capitulum pervertentes, asserunt de novalibus debere intelligi ubi de laboribus est inscriptum. Quia igitur manifestum est omnibus qui recte sapiunt interpretacionem hujusmodi perversam esse et intellectui sano contrariam, universitati vestræ per apostolica scripta percipiendo mandamus, quatinus omnibus parochianis vestris auctoritate apostolica prohibere curetis ne ullatenus contra prædictos fratres materiam accipiant malignandi, nec de aliquibus terris quas propriis manibus aut sumptibus excolunt, non tantum de novalibus sed etiam de terris antiquitus cultis quomodocumque teneantur ab illis, sive de nutrimentis animalium suorum quisquam ab eis vel ab aliis pro eo quod animalia ipsorum in pastura sua vel custodia sua habeant decimas exigere vel quomodolibet extorquere præsumat. Nam si de novalibus tantum vellemus intelligi, ubi ponitur de laboribus, de novalibus poneretur, sicut in privilegio quorundam aliorum apponitur. Quia vero non est conveniens ut contra sedis apostolicæ indulgentias temere veniatur, quæ obtinere debent inviolabilem firmitatem, vobis per apostolica scripta præcipiendo mandamus, ut si qui monachi, canonici, clerici vel laici, contra privilegia sua memoratos fratres super decimarum vel aliarum libertatum exactione gravaverint, appellacione remota clericos ab officio suspendatis, laicos autem excommunicationis sententia percellatis, et tam suspensionis quam excommunicationis faciatis usque ad satisfactionem condignam observari sententias. Quod si a sede apostolica literæ impetratæ fuerint quarum occasione quis ab aliis decimas exigere vel aliud contra privilegia vel indulgentias eorum ab ipsis extorquere notatur, respondere illis minime teneantur. In quibus etiam si inhibita fuerit appellacio, nichilominus appellandi habeant facultatem, nisi pro bono pacis spontanea cum aliquibus composuerit voluntate. Quod si aliquæ compositiones inter eos et aliquos pacis intuitu et utriusque partis consensu factæ fuerint illas perpetuis temporibus ratas et incassas permanere faciatis; si tamen de constancia et approbacione abbatis et fratrum constiterit processisse. Ad hæc præsentium auctoritate præcipiendo mandamus quatinus si quis eorundem parochianorum vestrorum in sæpeditos fratres violentas manus injecerit, eum candelis accensis excommunicatum publice denunciatis et tanquam excommunicatum faciatis ab omnibus devitari donec eisdem fratribus congrue satisfaciat, et cum litteris diœcesani episcopi rei veritatem continentibus apostolico se conspectui representet. Dat. Veronæ, xii. kal. Aprilis.' Nos igitur ad ejusdem prædecessoris exemplar universitati vestræ per apostolica scripta firmiter præcipiendo mandamus, quatinus omnia et singula supradicta diligenter et efficaciter exequi procuretis. Nulli ergo hominum liceat hanc paginam nostri præcepti infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit indignacionem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursurum. Dat. Anagninæ, viii. kal. Augusti, pontificatus nostri anno primo.

BONIFACIUS episcopus servus servorum Dei dilectis filiis universis abbatibus, abbatissis, et conventibus ordinis Cisterciensis tam præsentibus quam futuris salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. In ecclesiæ firmamento vester ordo nitore claro coruscans universalem gregis Dominici aulam illuminat, et currentibus in stadio rectum iter insinuat quo ad salutis bravium facilius perveniant. Nos quidem ob hoc et propter magnæ devocionis affectum quem ad nos et apostolicam sedem habetis ordinem ipsum ac vos et alios ejusdem ordinis professores intima caritate prosequimur ac sinceris affectibus excitamur ad vestra et illorum commoda in quibus possumus honeste promovenda. Ideoque præmissorum intuitu et obtentu dilecti filii nostri Roberti titulo Sanctæ Prudencianæ presbiteri cardinalis, qui tanquam præfati ordinis, quem professus existit, promotor assiduus, necessitates vestras et dicti ordinis nobis reverenter exposuit et super illis jure provisionis auxilium imploravit, vobis auctoritate præsentium indulgemus, ut de terris vestris cultis et incultis ad ordinem vestrum spectantibus, quas aliis concessistis vel concedetis imposterum exco-lendas de quibus tamen aliquis decimas seu primicias non percepit, nullus a vobis seu cultoribus terrarum ipsarum, aut quibuscumque aliis decimas seu primicias exigere vel extorquere præsumat. Nos tamen nichilominus irritum decernimus et inane, si quid contra tenorem hujusmodi indulgentiæ fuerit attemptatum. Nulli ergo hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ concessionis et constitutionis infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit indignationem Omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum se noverit incursurum. Dat. Lateran. xv. kal. Jan. pontificatus nostri anno octavo.

[Cartularium Abbatiae de Holmcoltram, penes Joh. Warburton, arm.]

INNOCENTIUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis abbatibus eorumque conventibus monasteriorum Cisterciensis ordinis per regnum Angliæ constitutis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum a nobis petitur quod justum est et honestum tam vigor equitatis quam ordo exigit rationis ut id pro sollicitudine officii nostri ad debitum perducatur effectum. Ex parte siquidem vestra fuit propositum coram nobis, quod licet ordini vestro per privilegia sedis apostolicæ sit indultum, ut nullus episcopus seu alia persona ad sinodos vel conventus forenses, nisi pro fide vos ire compellat, aut in vos, vel monasteria vestra seu etiam personas ordinis vestri excommunicationis, suspensionis, aut interdicti sententias promulgare præsumat, quæ si promulgatæ fuerint tanquam contra apostolicæ sedis indulta prolatae determinantur per eadem privilegia irritæ et inanes, nichilominus tamen plures prælati et iudices ordinarii, aut alii ecclesiarum rectores, eadem privilegia quibus muniti estis evacuare supersticiosos adinventionibus molientes asserunt vos pro quavis offensa ratione delicti existere fori sui, sicque vocantes vos ad placita, capitula, et penitentialia forum sicut alios clericos seculares vos super hoc multiplici vexacione fatigant, quamquam excessus vestri tam per generale quam etiam cotidiana capitula quæ fiunt in singulis monasteriis vestri ordinis congrua penitencia puniantur. Quare nobis humiliter supplicastis ut præsumptionem talem cohibere paterna sollicitudine curaremus. Nos igitur attendentes quod si ex suscepti cura regiminis de universis sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis cum et sollicitudinem gerere teneamur, de illis tamen specialius cogitare nos convenit qui postpositis vanitatibus seculi jugem impendunt Domino famulatum, ac volentes quieti vestræ super præmissis paterna in posterum sollicitudine providere, ut nullus vos seu monasteriorum vestrorum personas ad sinodos, vel conventus forenses nisi pro fide duntaxat, vel hujusmodi placita, seu capitula, vel forum provinciale absque mandato sedis apostolicæ speciali evocare etiam delicti ratione præsumat, maxime cum quilibet vestrum, filii abbates, punire excessus quoslibet secundum statuta vestri ordinis sit paratus, auctoritate præsencium distinctius inhibemus, decernentes eadem auctoritate sententias si quas hac occasione per præsumptionem cujuscumque promulgari contigerit irritas et inanes, salvo in omnibus apostolicæ sedis mandato. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ inhibitionis infringere vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit indignationem Omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursurum. Dat. Lateran. xij. kal. Marci, pontificatus nostri anno primo.

Privilegium Honorii Papæ Tertii, quod Legati Apostolici non possint Monachos Cistercienses excommunicare, suspendere, vel interdicere.

HONORIUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis abbati Cisterc. et universis coabbatibus ejus et fratribus sub eodem ordine Deo servientibus, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum ordinis vestri generosa plantatio multæ religionis et honestatis flores et fructus protulerit, effuso longe lateque laudabilis conversationis odore apostolicæ sedis auctoritas considerans per Marthæ sollicitudinem providendum esse Mariæ quieti, ut orantis Mariæ suffragiis satagentis Marthæ sollicitudo ministerii uniretur, ne alicujus temeritatis incursus sanctæ conversationis ortum perturbaret, ordinem vestrum et privilegiis et nonnullis indulgentiis specialis gratiæ prærogativa munivit. Nos autem qui salutifera commoda vestra benigno favore prosequimur, tranquillitati vestræ libenter prout possumus providemus, auctoritate præsentium inhihentes ne legati sedis apostolicæ sine speciali mandato nostro in vos excommunicationis vel suspensionis, nec in monasteria vestra interdicti sentencias contra ea quæ vobis sunt ab apostolica sede concessa promulgent. Nulli ergo, &c. Si quis autem hoc, &c. Dat. &c.

[Ibid.]

HONORIUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis abbati Cisterciensi et universis co-abbatibus ejus et fratribus sub eodem ordine Deo servientibus salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Constituti juxta Verbum Prophetæ, licet insufficientibus meritis super gentes et regna, officii nostri debitum decenter exequimur cum evellimus evellenda et plantanda plantamus, recta regimus, et dirigimus indirecta. Significastis siquidem nobis quod in quibusdam partibus consuetudo detestabilis inolevit, videlicet quod cum aliqui æmulantes carismata meliora monasteria ordinis vestri volunt causa religionis intrare ut ibi Domino famulentur capellani eorum donec ab ipsis pecuniam quæ mortuarium nuncupatur extorqueant prout a parochianis suis decedentibus consueverunt accipere, illis temere se opponunt, qua re super nostræ providenciæ remedium flagitastis. Volentes igitur abusum corruptelæ hujusmodi aboleri, auctoritate vobis præsentium indulgemus, ut capellanorum contradiccione hujusmodi non obstante, liberas personas ad vos e seculo fugientes libere recipere valeatis. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam, &c. Si quis autem contra hoc, &c. Dat. &c.

INNOCENTIUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis abbatibus eorumque conventibus monasteriorum Cisterciensis ordinis in Cantuariensi et Eboracensi constitutorum provinciis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Significastis nobis quod cum vobis a sede apostolica sit indultum, ut de ortis, virgultis, pratis, pasturis, nemoribus, salinis, molendinis, piscationibus ante et post concilium acquisitis ac de vestrorum animalium incrementis nullus a vobis decimas exigere vel extorquere præsumat. Injuncto nichilominus ab eadem sede venerabilibus fratribus, archiepiscopis, episcopis, et aliis ecclesiarum prælati per regnum Angliæ constitutis ut vos et alios præfati ordinis regni ejusdem immunes a præstatione decimarum hujusmodi conservarent, nonnulli tamen ecclesiarum prælati ipsarum provinciarum, dicentes dictam indulgentiam ad acquisita post concessionem ipsius aliquatenus non extendi, vos super hoc multiplici molestacione fatigant. Nos igitur credentes præfatam indulgentiam ad acquisita postmodum extendendam ut nullus vos super hoc hujusmodi occasione fatiget auctoritate præsentium inhihemus. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ inhihicionis infringere vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem, &c. Dat. &c.

[Ibid. fol. 146.]

HONORIUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis universis abbatibus et prioribus Cisterciensis ordinis per regnum Angliæ constitutis salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum contemplacioni vacantibus ut videant quam suavis est Dominus eo sit periculosior evagacio quo a suo proposito alieni paciuntur facilius insidias inimici, nos quieti vestræ paterna sollicitudine providere volentes, ne auctoritate literarum nostrarum de causis compellamini cognoscere liti-Littera a generali Abbatum Cisterciensium Capitulo, quâ de prædicatoribus et minoribus apud Regem querelas effundunt, A. D. 1285, an. 13 Edw. I.

[Ex. Litt. et Autogr. Edw. I. in Turr. Lond.]

EXCELLENTISSIMO domino, Edwardo, divinâ munificentîâ, illustri regi Anglorum, frater Johannes, dictus abbas Cistercii, totusque conventus abbatum, capituli generalis, potentiam invincibilem, et quicquid potest apud Deum humilis et assidua deprecatio peccatorum.

Sicut regalis elementîæ celsitudinem generosam in nullo diminuit sed commendat, cum se ad ima pauperum per priorum beneficiorum inclinât affluentiam liberalem; sic et ipsi pauperes præsumptuosi vel temerarii jure censi non possunt, si sublimioribus scribendo principibus, quos inter suos benefactores præcipuos recognoscunt, ad debitas et devotas gratiarum actiones assurgunt; ut, juxta sapientiam Salamonis, ad loca, unde exeunt beneficiorum flumina, dignis regrationibus revertantur.

Cum igitur ex proventibus ecclesiæ de Scardeburgh, quam de advocatione vestrâ, et ex dono progenitorum vestrorum, in proprios usus canonicè possidemus, nostrum generale capitulum, quolibet anno, consueverit sustentari per triduum, nunc sustentetur in parte, et ferè omninò sustentaretur, si proventus dictæ ecclesiæ liberè et integrè possemus percipere, sicut in retroactis temporibus solebamus; ingrati possemus meritò judicari, si nostrum generale capitulum, sine vestri memoriâ, (quod nunquam factum extitit) pertransiret; undè nos, ingratitude vitium præcaventes, super hiis et aliis gratiis et beneficiis, à magnificentîâ vestrâ nostro ordini collatis, ad gratiarum actiones excellentiæ vestræ dignum duximus assurgendum, exorantes suppliciter Regem Regum, in cujus manu sunt omnium Regum corda, ut personam vestram, et amicos vestros, et regnum vestrum, in honore, et bonâ pace stabiliat et confirmet, et actus vestros dirigat in suæ beneplacito voluntatis.

Et quia, super perceptione proventuum præfatæ ecclesiæ, per ingressus prædicatorum et minorum in villâ de Scardeburgh, contra tenorem chartarum prædecessorum vestrorum et apostolicas inhibitiones, quamplurimum perturbamur; in tantum quod, ubi solebamus percipere triduanam procuracionem nostri capituli generalis, vix processu temporis, sicut experimento cotidiano discimus, per unum diem dictum generale capitulum poterit sustentari, ad vos tanquam ad patronum habemus recurrere; excellentiam vestram humiliter exorantes, ut factum prædecessorum vestrorum, sicut vestrâ interest, prosequentes, quod contra chartas et prohibitiones regias factum est, faciatis per potestatem regiam adnullari, et donationem præfatæ ecclesiæ, à vestris progenitoribus nobis factæ, dignemini per chartas regias confirmare.

Abbey of Waverley, in Surrey.

THE history of Waverley abbey has been so thoroughly investigated by Messrs. Manning and Bray, that little, comparatively speaking, can be added to it by the editors of the Monasticon.

The foundation of this abbey was laid on the 24th of November, A.D. 1128, the 29th Hen. I. by William Giffard, bishop of Winchester,^a for the reception of twelve monks of the Cistercian order, who were transplanted hither from the abbey of Aumone, in Normandy.^b This monastery was the first house of the Cistercian Order established in England, although precedence was, for a while, claimed by the abbey of Furness, in Lancashire.^c

William Giffard's foundation charter, which will be found in the Appendix, besides the land of Waverley, endows the monks here with two acres of meadow at Elsted, and pannage for their hogs; with liberty to cut wood for fuel and other necessary purposes in his coppices at Farnham.^d

Henry de Blois, brother of King Stephen, and successor to Giffard in the see of Winchester, confirmed the grant of his predecessor, and added, of his own free gift, one virgate of land with its appurtenances, lying at or near Waneford; also right of pasture for swine and other cattle at Farnham, in all such places as the free tenants and others of the hundred were wont to enjoy the same; with licence to cut and dig heath, stone, sand, and all other earth whatsoever for their necessary uses, without let or hindrance. The bounds of the possessions of the monks, as they then stood, are thus described by Henry de Blois in his charter: viz. From the oak at Tileford called King's Oak, along the king's high-way to Farnham as far as Wynterbourn; and from thence along the bank which runs from Farnham to the hill called Richarde's Hulle; and across the said hill and the bridge of Waneford, to the meadow of Tyleford called Ilvethammes-mede; and so to the oak from whence this perambulation sets out.^e

Other benefactors to this House were,

1. Adeliza, the second queen of Henry I. who died in 1151, having bestowed upon the monks here the grange or farm of Northolt, with the woods and other appurtenances adjoining to the same.^f She had married to her second husband William d'Albini, earl of Arundel, who died here in the month of October, A. D. 1176.

2. King Stephen, who gave the monks Netham near Alton, and the church of Farnham.^g

3. Alan, son of Pagan de Villers, who gave them Bochild.^h

4. Pharamus of Bologne, nephew of King Stephen's queen, of whom they had the grange or farm of Warenberge, Weneberge, or Wandenberg:ⁱ but for this they paid him one hundred and twenty marks of silver, as appears by the charter of Geffrey de Magnaville, earl of Essex, who was the lord of the fee, and confirmed the grant.^k

5. Richer de Aquila, lord of Witley, of whose gift they had Oxeneford, in that parish.^l This Richer died in 1176.

6. Radulphus, or Ralph, the sheriff, who gave the monks Riehull, in the parish of Peperharrow.^m

7. Sewall de who gave them Cuserugia.

8. Richard de Sifrewast, who gave half a hide of land at Polementon, supposed to be Polehampton near Overton in Hampshire.

Beside these, Messrs. Manning and Bray have recorded some other benefactions from charters formerly in the possession of Richard Gough, Esq. but at present belonging to Dr. Prattenton, of Bewdley, in Worcestershire. The chief of these are, a yardland in Stiventon given by Galfrid de Luvieres and Adeliza; the latter and Michael de Luvieres confirming the grant in separate charters: a virgate of land from Hugh Peregrinus, or the Palmer, situated between Hurtespunde and Cobbelie: and a virgate of land, with right of pasture, in the manor of Stiventon, from Ingelram de Louvieres.ⁿ

All these grants were confirmed to the convent by a bull of Pope Eugenius the Third, dated at Paris May 27th, 1147, whereby also the monks of this house were exempted from all payment of tithes for their cattle, and for such lands as were occupied by themselves.^o

By charter from King Richard the First, dated at Westminster Sept. 5th, 1189, the monks of Waverley obtained a further confirmation of their lands and privileges;^p by which it appears, that, in addition to the lands already mentioned, they were possessed of Dodingdon, of the gift of Robert de Venuz; of certain lands lying between Buttele and the wood of Netham, called the Hoo; of other lands, between Gavelthers and Losthela, given by William, son of Robert de Venuz; of the land called Riehell; of the grange or farm of Dacheriefeld, with one hide of land in Wishangle;^q of the grange or farm of Bomata; of the grange of Serveton; the grange of Dumnore; the grange of Laga;

^a Annal. Waverl. Gale, Script. tom. ii. p. 150. See the App. Num. I. Tanner says that the foundation being so late in the year as viij. kal. Dec. the Chronicle of South Park might, without great mistake, place this foundation in an. Dom. 1129; but Bishop Giffard, the founder, was dead before 1132, in which year it is placed in Leland's Collect. tom. i. p. 86, tom. iii. p. 73.

^b Manning and Bray's Hist. Surr. vol. iii. p. 145.

^c The Annals of Waverley printed by Gale give a minute account of this dispute. Furness abbey is stated to have been founded a short time before Waverley, which gave the abbat of Furness a colour for claiming precedence; but Furness was originally of the Benedictine Order, being a daughter of Savigni, in France. The fourth abbat of Savigni, in a general chapter, surrendered his house, with all its dependencies, into the hands of Bernard abbat of Clarevall, for the purpose of becoming Cistercians. Peter, the fourth abbat of Furness, with his convent, appealed to the pope, Eugenius the Third, against this surrender, and Peter went to Rome on the occasion, and obtained from the pope a confirmation that the abbey should remain of its original Order; but, on his return, he was seized by the monks of Savigni, obliged to resign his abbey, and became a monk there, bearing the Cistercian Order. His successor at Furness reconciled his house to the mother church of Savigni, and it became from thence Cistercian. It was at length determined that the abbat of Furness should have precedence through the whole generation of the houses of Elemosyna in England and the daughter of Savigni in England only; but the abbat of Waverley was to have precedence as well in the chapters of the abbats through England, as a superiority over the whole Order. Compare the Annal. Waverl. Manning, Hist. Surr. vol. iii. p. 144.

^k Compare the Charter, Num. V. This, says Mr. Manning, I take to have been the present Wanborough. It came into the hands of the convent as early as the time of Gilbert who was second abbat, and elected in the second year after the foundation. Hist. Surr. vol. iii. p. 145.

^m Ibid. This Ralph Mr. Manning takes to have been Ralph Picot, who was sheriff of the county in 1157, 1158, and 1159. The convent, he adds, were in possession of Riehull, indeed, some years before; but Ralph might also have been sheriff earlier.

ⁿ See Manning, vol. iii. p. 146.

^o App. Num. VII. before referred to.

^p App. Num. VI.

^q The former of these, says Manning, is Dockenfield, a manor lying on the border of the county of Surrey but in Hampshire, within the bounds of Wolmore forest. The abbey had a licence, 8th Edw. II. to assart and enclose forty acres of wood on this estate, which was renewed or confirmed to them by another patent in 6 Edw. III. (Pat. 8 Edw. II. m. 21; and 6 Edw. III. p. 1, m. 6.)

At Dokkenfeld the abbat of Waverley was obliged to find entertainment for the foresters and reguards of the king, when they came to take views, for one night; and hay and oats for their horses, to the value of 20s. (Pl. Forest. t. Edw. III.) The latter is certainly what was given to the convent under the name of Wishangle by Richard de Toelive, and the grange of Tuangham;^a with one hide of land in Ebbesburn.

In the time of King John, Gilbert de Basseville, lord of the manor of Werplesdon, and son of Gilbert who died 17th May, 1212, gave a plat of ground in that lordship, which was afterwards called la Newe Rude.^b

In the time of Richard the First, or John, Engelger de Bohun gave the monks one mark per annum out of his mill at Midhurst, which was confirmed in the time of Henry the Third by Savaric de Bohun, to be paid at Midhurst at Midsummer and Christmas, for the maintenance of one monk in augmentation of the convent.^c

A. D. 1237, 21st Henry III. the king, having recovered, by a writ of inquiry, certain lands in Netham which had been fraudulently separated from his demesne, gave the same, with their appurtenances, consisting of a hundred and five acres, to this house; but they had not seisin thereof until the 19th June, 1239.^d

A. D. 1245, 29th Henry III. Eleanor, the king's sister, with Simon de Montefort, earl of Leicester, her husband, and Henry and Simon, her sons, made a visit to the convent: and, at the same time, or shortly after, made them a present of fifty marks, and also of eighteen more for the use of the fabric. By her assistance, says the writer of the Annals of Waverley, we were enabled to make a purchase of a hundred and fifty acres more of land at Netham.^e

About the same time, also, William de Raley, bishop of Winchester, who died in France about the year 1250, in consideration of the yearly sum of half a mark to be paid to him and his successors, gave a piece of ground on the heath situated within his warren of Farnham, to make a vivary or fish-pond.^f

In 1260, Hugh de Polsted granted to the monks in frank almoigne his wood called Inwood, in Compton, in the county of Surrey, with liberty to enclose it.^g

In the 38th Hen. III. they received a hundred shillings a year of the manor of Ham, in Kingston.^h

A. D. 1263, 47th Hen. III. one Maud died here on the 8th February, and was buried on the 12th in the chapel of the infirmary, who was so considerable a benefactress to this convent, that the annalist of the place calls her "a kind mother to it; having given to it, in her life-time, and at her decease, the greatest part of her substance." Amongst other bequests, she gave by her will a hundred marks sterling to be laid out in lands, directing that out of the issues thereof two pittances should be yearly distributed to the monks on the anniversary of her death, and of Lebert de Pisce, her husband, December 13th; and also a taper provided for the said chapel, to be lighted on certain solemnities by her prescribed. Accordingly the said money was laid out on a tenement in Serweton, which they purchased of Richard de Totteford, clerk; and a yearly portion of 29s. 6d. reserved thereout for the purposes afore-mentioned.ⁱ

A. D. 1279, 7 Edw. I. William de Abbecroft gave by his deed in writing to the monks of this place all his land of

In the 3d Edw. II. A. D. 1310, on a writ of Ad quod damnum, Hugh Tripacy, parson of the church of Martre-worthy, near Winchester, and executor of Nicholas de Ely, late bishop of Winchester, had licence to give to the abbat and convent the manor of Cuserugge, one messuage, fifty-nine acres of land, five of pasture, and four of wood in Chivele, for the maintenance of a chaplain in the conventual church of Waverley to pray for the soul of the said Nicholas;^k who, by his will, left two hundred marks to the convent, being their share of five hundred marks bequeathed by him "Cisterciensibus in capitulo generali congregatis."^l

The monks were, also, owners of Ogshate, in Surrey; that is, of land in Ockshot in Stoke Dabernon, and of a piece of land there in the soil of John Dabernon, which had been seized by the king, and restored to them.^m

Their liberties in Wanborough and Bramley were confirmed by King Edward the Third in the twentieth year of his reign.

A. D. 1331, 5th Edward III. By a charter of this date, the convent appears to have had a patent for receiving a pipe of red wine annually out of the port of Southampton; which patent was renewed also in the 2d Edw. IVth. where it is expressly said to have been given "pro consecratione Corporis ac Sanguinis J. Christi."ⁿ

In the 36th of Edw. III. A. D. 1363, John de Netherhauene had licence to alienate to the abbey one messuage, eighty acres of arable land, two of meadow, sixteen of moor, three of heath, rents of 30s. 4d., and one pound of pepper in Farnham, to celebrate an anniversary for his soul; the same being held of the Bishop of Winchester as of his castle of Farnham by a rent of 21s. a year, suit of court to the manor of Farnham, and keeping in repair thirty feet of the enclosure of the park there: in value, beyond the reserved rent, 4l. 0s. 6d. per annum.^o

ABBATS of WAVERLEY.

JOHN, one of the twelve religious who were first settled here from the convent of Aumone, was the first abbat. He died within the year.^p

GILBERT, his successor,^q was present at the translation of St. Erkenwald's body in the church of St. Paul, at London, Nov. 14th, 1148. Mr. Manning says he was succeeded by

GEFFREY, according to some; though no mention of this abbat is found in the Annals of Waverley. On the contrary,

HENRY, who according to this account was the fourth, is expressly called there the third abbat.^r He died A. D. 1182; and was succeeded by another abbat of the same name,

HENRY OF CHICHESTER, a monk of this house, who resigned this dignity in 1187 to

CHRISTOPHER, who had previously been abbat of bishop of Winchester, who died Dec. 22, 1188, in the charter appended to the present account, Num. IV.

These lands of Duckenfield and Wishangle, now Wishanger, says Manning, lie in the parishes of Frensham and Hedley, and partly in the county of Hants, between the small stream which runs through the great pond of Frensham (which is the water of Wishanger) and the larger which comes down from Liphook. ^f This ground extended from the little bridge beyond Tilleford, along the course of the stream called Erikeledesburn, towards Cherte. Herein Manning supposes the monks dug the pond which is still known by the name of the Abbat's Pond.

ⁱ Annal. Waverl. p. 215. Manning observes, that "this Maud is called in the Index to the Annals publ. by Gale 'Queen of England;'" but this is plainly a mistake, no queen of that name having been living near this time.

^k On July 25th in the same year they entered into a covenant, 1. To celebrate one mass annually in the chapel of St. Mary at the gate of their convent, or in the great church of the same, for the soul of Nicholas de Ely, late bishop of Winton, who dedicated the church of Waverley, and was there interred; one mass weekly by one of the brethren of the house, and one other daily by the precentor, or succentor. 2. To celebrate his anniversary every year on 12th February, on which day he died, A. D. 1279-80. 3. To distribute annually among the monks on the same day, as a consideration for their trouble, spicery, or, as it is afterwards said, ad species emendas, to the value of five marks, in equal portions. 4. At the same time to expend 13s. 4d. in a pittance, i. e. a small addition of viands to the monks' table. 5. Also to distribute on the same day at their gate, by the hands of their porter, 20s. worth of new shoes to poor widows, and to pay the same yearly on the feast of St. John Baptist, to the prior, cellarer, &c. and to charge the same on the manor of Cuserugge, given to the convent by Hugh Tripacy, the bishop's executor. 6. Also to provide one wax taper in a brazen candlestick, to be set up at the head of the said bishop, to burn on his anniversary, and on other solemn days at great mass. 7. To maintain and keep up a cross of marble set up by the bishop's executors at Froyle, and in case it be broken or thrown down by lightning, thunder, or other storm, to erect another in its place. 8. To remember the said Master Hugh Tripacy in all their masses, as well during his life, as after his decease. Manning ut supr. p. 148, e Regist. Woodl. fol. 138 a.

Bruern in Oxfordshire.^a At this time, says the Annalist of Waverley, here were a hundred and twenty converts, or lay brethren in the house, seventy monks, and about thirty plough-teams constantly at work.^b In 1196, abbat Christopher was removed from his office, when

JOHN, the hospitaller of the convent, succeeded.^c During his time, in 1201, the possessions of the abbey suffered much from inundation.^d He died at Merton on Sept. 16th, in the same year.^e

JOHN III. cellarer, or purveyor of the convent, was the next abbat; the first act of whose government was to get the chapel of the Infirmary consecrated, which was accordingly done by Albinus, bishop of Fernes, in Ireland, and a Cistercian monk, Nov. 6th, 1201.^f

On the 19th of March, 1203, William de Bradewatre laid the foundation of the new church of the convent, dedicated to the Virgin Mary. In which year, also, there was so great a scarcity of corn, occasioned chiefly by the flood of 1201, that the monks were obliged to disperse into other convents for sustenance.^g

In 1210 the monks of the Cistercian Order having been generally remiss in their payments towards the king's aids, under pretence of restrictions laid upon them by their founder, were severely harassed; and, amongst others, the estates of this house seized.^h Abbat John died August 5th, 1216. He was succeeded in his office and dignity by the sub-prior of the monastery, of the name of

ADAM,ⁱ who resigned the abbacy the year following,^k though he did not die till 1229.^l He was the first institutor of a ceremony which was long afterwards observed in the convent; that of celebrating a private mass for all strangers dying in the scholar's infirmary here, on the day or morrow of their funeral.^m His successor in the abbey was

ADAM II. who, at the time of his election, was abbat of Gerondon, in Leicestershire, a cell to Waverley.ⁿ

In 1222 William de Bradewatre, who had laid the foundation of the conventual church of Waverley nineteen years before, died. He was interred on the outside of the church near the south wall.^o

On Dec. 16th, 1225, King Henry the Third made a visit to Waverley, where he was received with great solemnity, and, the day following, was admitted, at his own request, in the chapter-house, a member of the fraternity.^p

In 1231, on the festival of St. Thomas the Apostle, the conventual church, the foundation of which was laid in 1203, was opened with great solemnity.^q

On the 11th of July, 1233, a flood arose which did considerable mischief in many places, but more particularly at Waverley; where it ran through the cloister and offices with great violence, and caused material injury. The Annals of Waverley, in giving an account of this flood,^r mention the new monastery which stood on higher ground. Manning observes that there is no other mention of the original house having been removed to higher ground. The buildings, he observes, which yet remain are on the low ground. Abbat Adam resigned in 1236, when

WALTER GIFFARD, who had been abbat of Bittlesden, in Buckinghamshire, succeeded.^s

This abbat appointed a private mass to be celebrated on the anniversary of all good christians who should bequeath an annual sum for the refreshment of the brethren of the house. He also provided certain tapers to be lighted up at every altar in the church during the time of divine service, on the two festivals of All Saints and the Nativity of our Saviour.^t

The heart of Peter de Rupibus, Bishop of Winchester, was buried at Waverley in 1238.^u

Abbat Giffard died in 1251: when he was succeeded in his office by

RALPH, abbat of Dunkewell in the county of Devon, who had previously been abbat of Tintern, in Monmouthshire.^x In his time, A. D. 1262, William, abbat of Ford, died in the convent of Waverley, and was buried in the chapter-house.^y Abbat Ralph resigned in 1266, through infirmity of health.^z His successor was

WILLIAM DE LONDON, a monk of this house, who was his notary.^a He is mentioned by Willis, in his Mitred Abbies, as distinct from

WILLIAM DE HUNGERFORD: though nothing more is known of either than that the latter resigned the abbacy in 1276, after an attack of palsy; being succeeded by

HUGH DE REUBENORUM,^b or LEWKNORE, who was also a monk of the house, and elected abbat, Nov. 20th, 1276.^c

In his time, Sept. 21, 1278, the conventual church here was dedicated in due form to the Virgin Mary, by Nicholas de Ely, Bishop of Winchester, who dying February the 12th, 1281, was interred in the same on the 16th, his heart only excepted, which, three days after, was deposited with great solemnity in his cathedral church of Winchester.^d

In 1283, Peter de St. Maur, archdeacon of Surrey, commenced a suit against the abbat and convent for the recovery of small tithes; and a commission was granted by the Pope to the prior of Southwark, the dean, chancellor, and treasurer of St. Paul's, to hear and determine the same. But, by various appeals from one set of judges to another, it was protracted for no less than fifteen years, when it was referred to the Bishop of Winchester, who finally decided it, obliging each party to pay their own costs.^e inclined to gratify him; but the lords and great men of the council interfering, all he could obtain was a promise to be heard upon his petition, on condition of taking off the interdict under which he had laid his convent. Accordingly, at the time appointed, the charters, muniments, and privileges of the Order were laid before the king and council, who commented upon them as they thought fit, and not much to the advantage or satisfaction of the complainants. At length, however, the friends of holy church prevailed; and it appearing upon the face of their charters, &c. 'That the precincts of abbies and their estates were by apostolical, i. e. papal authority, exempted from the encroachments of all wicked and profane persons, i. e. from all lay-visitation whatsoever, and inviolable as the altars of churches; and that all manner of persons committing violence thereupon, stood, ipso facto, excommunicate;' the king granted the abbat's petition in its full extent, and the shoemaker was immediately sent back, to the great joy and edification of all the good people of England. Mean time, the serjeant and his party, who had done no other than their duty, in executing the lawful orders of the government, came off but poorly; being condemned to ask pardon of God and the monks at the gate of the convent, and afterwards to be publicly whipped. Which sentence having been fully executed upon them by the dean of the house, and the vicar of Farnham, they were absolved in form, and having a sufficient penance enjoined them besides, were dismissed." ^o Manning says, "In the year 1240, an accident happened in the convent, which made a considerable noise at the time, and furnishes us with a striking picture of the times, as well as of the resolution and authority of an abbat. A young man, it seems, about Easter, was received into the house in the capacity of shoemaker to the convent, where he exercised his craft without molestation till the beginning of August; when a party was sent, by the king's orders, to secure him on a charge of murder. They accordingly came, and like good men and true, notwithstanding the remonstrances and menaces of this holybody, executed the commission they were sent upon, and carried the young man away with them to prison. Astonished at this impious outrage on their privileges, and foreseeing, as their annalist very justly observes, that, if things should go on at this rate, there would soon be an end of all distinction between religious and seculars, the monks having at first agreed to suspend divine services in the house till satisfaction should be made, dismissed their abbat to the legate Cardinal Otho or Ottobon, at that time in England, with a proper representation of their case. The legate heard what they had to say, but stirred not in the matter. The abbat hereupon laid it before the king, requiring, in pretty high terms, that God and holy church should be avenged of his irreverent officers, by an immediate restitution of their charge. The king seemed well enough

Abbat Hugh died March 8th, 1286,^a and was succeeded by

PHILIP DE BEDWINDE, who received the benediction at the hands of the Bishop of Winchester in the cathedral there on Easter-day following.^b In the 28th and 31st years of Edw. I. A.D. 1300 and 1303, the sheriff of Surrey distrained the abbat for escuage toward payment of the army in Scotland; to which the abbat excepted, as holding his lands in frank-almoigne. Hereupon the king commanded the barons of his Exchequer, if they found he held by that tenure, to acquit him.^c

The Annals of the Convent, Mr. Manning observes, descending no lower than these times, we are much in the dark about the succession of the abbats; the names of a few only, and those casually, occurring.

WILLIAM OCCURS as abbat in 1312.

ROBERT, in 1335.^d

JOHN, being elected, licence was granted to him by Bishop Orleton, May 14th, 1344, to receive the benediction from any Catholic bishop.^e

WILLIAM HAKELESTON died in 1399.^f

JOHN BIRD was elected in full chapter, January 31st, 1400, upon a visitation of the convent under the bishop's commission, by John abbat of Rewley, and the abbat of Grace Dieu in the county of Monmouth, who ratified the same.^g

WILLIAM MARTYN, a monk of this house, being elected abbat, had licence from Bishop Wainflete, December 21st, 1456, to receive the benediction from any Catholic bishop.^h He occurs again in the bishop's register in the years 1460, 1462, 1463, and 1468.ⁱ

THOMAS is mentioned in Bishop Langton's register, October 12th, 1492.^k Manning thinks he was the same with Thomas Skevington, abbat here, who, in 1509, was promoted to the bishoprick of Bangor.^l

WILLIAM OCCURS abbat, in the register of Fox Bishop of Winchester in 1511, and again in 1522.

JOHN is mentioned as abbat in 1529.^m He occurs also in 1533.ⁿ

The Abbey of Waverley was dissolved in the 27th of Henry VIIIth. A. D. 1536, the gross income being at that time rated at 196*l.* 13*s.* 11½*d.*, the clear produce at 174*l.* 8*s.* 3½*d.*^o On the 20th of July in the following year, Sir William Fitzwilliam, treasurer of the king's household, afterwards Earl of Southampton, had a grant of the site of this abbey, with the church, churchyard, messuages, and lands thereto belonging; also the rectories of Waverley and Wanborowe in Surrey, and of Netham, Sawroton, and Roviatt in the county of Southampton, the manor of Dokynfeld, in Surrey and Southampton, and the manor of Shaw, in Berks, to the said abbey belonging; and all mills, &c. and all advowsons, &c. in Waverley, Stokedaborne, Dunsfold, Shallesford, Alford, Wytteley, and Seale, Southwark, Godalmyne, Wokyng, Worplesdon, Farnham, Elsted, Puttenham, Peperharowe, and Frynsham, in Surrey, and in other places in the other counties; the whole being of the annual value of 188*l.* 14*s.* 11*d.* and no more. The rent reserved for the whole was 23*l.* 12*s.* 10½*d.* The grant extended to all corn and grain, chattels, lead, bells, &c.^p

Sir William Fitzwilliam settled this, with other estates, on himself and the Lady Mabell his wife, and the heirs of their bodies; with remainder to his half brother, Sir Anthony Brown. From Sir Anthony Brown the site and estate of Waverley abbey descended to his son Anthony, created Viscount Montacute; whose grandson, Anthony Montacute, sold them to the family of Coldham. After passing through different hands, this estate was sold, about 1796, to John Thomson, Esq. who was the owner in 1811.^q

The abbat of Waverley was summoned to the parliament at Woodstock in the 49th Hen. III. A. D. 1265.^r

A few early particulars occur in the Annals of Waverley of the buildings of this monastery. In 1179, it appears the lavatory and aqueduct were finished.^s A new church has been already noticed from them as begun in 1203. Two altars were consecrated in the church upon St. Barnabas' day, A. D. 1230, and another altar on the day following.^t Ten days of indulgence were granted to those who attended the consecration of these altars; and as many when three other altars were dedicated in the north cross.^u

Aubrey gives us an account of the Remains of this abbey, as they stood in 1673. They then consisted of the walls of the church and cloister, with some part of the cloisters themselves, within the quadrangle of which had been a pond, then a marsh. There was also a chapel of considerable size; great remains of the hall or refectory, which was vaulted; the dormitory; and some other ruins.^v

The crypt beneath the dormitory, some remains of the refectory, portions of the walls of the church, and some walls of the chapter-house, were all that remained in 1802.^w

What is now called the vill of Waverlye, near Farnham, contains nothing more than the site of the abbey, two or three small farms, and a few cottages, within or immediately contiguous to its precincts: the whole being extra-parochial.

The Annals of Waverley, a General Chronicle of England from the Incarnation of our Lord to the year 1291, preserved in the Cottonian library,^z were printed by Gale in the second volume of his "Scriptores." A transcript of these Annals occurs in the Harleian library of manuscripts, No. 687. They were, in all probability, compiled by some member of this house; numerous particulars relating to the buildings and endowment of which are, as has been already seen, interspersed throughout.

An enumeration of the privileges claimed by the abbat of Waverley in the 7th Edw. I. occur in the Placita de Quo Waranto, p. 748. See also the same work for other rights and possessions of this abbey, pp. 768, 770, 812, 815.

In the Augmentation Office is a Paper Survey of the possessions of this abbey; but it seems only an abbreviation of the Ecclesiastical Valor of the 26 Hen. VIII.

In the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer's Office,

“Finis solutus pro confirmatione libertatum, per abbatem et conventum de Waverley.” Orig. 1 Hen. VIII. rot. 144.

The only impression of a Seal of this abbey which has yet been met with, is on green wax, attached to a Deed, dated in 1282, in the possession of Mr. Newman. The Seal is small and oval, representing a hand with a sleeve holding a crozier: the dexter side of the Seal flory: in the sinister a crescent surmounted by a star. Legend, CONTRA SIGILL. ECCLIE DE WAVERLEIA.

Aubrey, in his History of Surrey, vol. iv. p. 39, says, “At Willey” in that county “was a numery, where the impropiation is, called Oxenford, which belonged to Waverley abbey.”

Bulla Eugenii III. Rom. Pontificis, donatorum concessionem Waverlegensi Cænobio recitans et confirmans.

[Ex autographo penes prænob. Basilium comitem Denbigh. anno 1657.]

EUGENIUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis

filiis Gilberto abbati monasterii S. Mariæ de Waverleia ejusque fratribus, tam præsentibus quam futuris, regulariter professis, in Christo salutem. Apostolici moderaminis clementiæ convenit religiosos diligere, et eorum loca piâ protectione munire. Dignum namque et honestati conveniens esse cognoscitur, ut qui ad ecclesiarum regimen assumpti sumus, eas et a pravorum hominum nequitia tueamur, te apostolicæ sedis patrocinio foveamus: ea propter, dilecti in Domino filii, vestris justis postulationibus clementer annuimus, et præfatum beatæ Mariæ monasterium, in quo divino mancipati estis obsequio, sub beati Petri et nostrâ protectione suscipimus, et præsentis scripti privilegio communimus: statuentes, ut quascunque possessiones, quæcunque bona in præsentiarum justè et canonicè possidetis, aut in futurum concessione pontificum, liberalitate regum, largitione principum, oblatione fidelium, seu aliis justis modis, præstante Domino, poteritis adipisci, firma vobis vestrisque successoribus et illibata permaneant; in quibus hæc propriis duximus exprimenda vocabulis; locum ipsum in quo abbatia fundata est, cum omnibus suis pertinentiis. Ex dono Stephani regis Anglorum Nietham et Ferneham, cum omnibus suis pertinentiis. Ex dono Adelizæ reginæ boscum de Northolte, et culturas juxta ipsum boscum. Ex dono Alani de Vilcrs terram de Bochilde. De Faramuso Boloniensi, Wenebergiam. Ex dono Richerii de Aquilâ, Oxenefordam. De Radulfo viccomite, Riehullam. Ex dono Sawali, Cuserugiam. Ex dono Roberti de Manerio, Nutescheolvain. Ex dono Ricardi de Sifrewast, dimidiam hidam terræ de Polementona. Ex dono Ingelranni Piscis, virgatam terræ et pasturam juxta chiminum Wintoniæ de mancrio Stiventonæ.

Sane laborum vestrorum, quos propriis manibus vel sumptibus colitis, sive de nutrimentis vestrorum animalium, nullus a vobis decimas exigere præsumat. Decernimus ergo, ut nulli omnino hominum liceat prædictum monasterium temere perturbare, aut ejus possessiones auferre, vel ablatas retinere, minuere, seu quibuslibet vexationibus fatigare; sed omnia integra conserventur, eorum, pro quorum gubernatione et sustentatione concessi sunt, usibus omnimodis profutura; salvâ sedis apostolicæ auctoritate, et diocesani episcopi canonicâ justitiâ. Si qua igitur in futurum ecclesiastica secularisve persona, hanc nostræ constitutionis paginam, sciens contra eam temerè venire temptaverit; secundo, tertiove commonita, nisi reatum suum congruâ satisfactione correxerit; potestatis, honorisque sui dignitate careat, reamque se divino judicio existere de perpetrata iniquitate cognoscat, et a sacratissimo corpore ac sanguine Dei et Domini Redemptoris nostri Jesu Christi aliena fiat; atque in extremo examine districtæ ultioni subjaceat. Cunctis autem eidem loco justa servantibus, sit pax domino nostri Jesu Christi, quatenus et hic fructum bonæ actionis percipiant, et apud districtum judicem præmia æternæ pacis invenient. Amen.

Data Parisiis per manum Hugonis presbyteri cardinalis, tenentis vice domini Guidonis S. Romanæ ecclesiæ diaconi cardinalis, et cancellarii v. kal. Junii; indictione x. incarnationis Dominicæ anno m.c.xlvii. Pontificatus vero domini Eugenii papæ tertii, anno tertio.

Abbey of Furnes, or Furness, in Lancashire.

ANNER, speaking of Furness, says, "The monastery began at Tulket, in Amounderness, A. D. 1124, for the monks of Savigny in France,"^a was after three years, A. D. 1127, removed to this valley, then called Bekangcsgill. Stephen, then Earl of Morton and Boloigne, afterwards King of England, was the founder of this abbey, which was of the Cistercian Order, and commended to the patronage of the blessed Virgin Mary."^b

Stephen, in his foundation charter, gave the monks here his forest of Furness, with Walney of Wagney, and the privilege of hunting in both; lands at Dalton; his demesnes in Furness, with its homagers and appurtenances; Ulverston; a fishery at Lancaster; and one or two villans, with their property. In Furness, every thing except the land of Michael Flemeng or Fleming. King Henry the First was one of the witnesses to the charter.^c

The next benefactor, in point of time, was this same Michael Flemeng or Fleming; whose two charters will be found in the Appendix.^d

Another great benefactor was William de Lancaster.^e

Among the more important documents relating to this abbey, beside the grants already referred to, will be found the ratification of an agreement with William de Lancaster concerning the limits of Furness Fells on that side which bounds the barony of Kendal, by King Henry the Second;^f an agreement between the monks of Furness and those of St. Mary Lancaster, in 1304;^g and a bull of confirmation from Pope Eugenius III.^h

A few minor benefactors are mentioned in West's History of Furness from Dodsworth's Manuscripts at Oxford: mostly of very small parcels of land and rents.ⁱ

King Edward the First, in the 10th year of his reign, granted to the abbat of Furness a charter of free warren in all his lands.^k

Among the charters of confirmation to this monastery, West notices one from Henry the First, in the 26th year of his reign; one from Stephen when king; one from King Richard the First, in his seventh year; one from King John; a charter of Inspeximus from Henry the Third, in his thirtieth year; another from Edward the First, in his twentieth year; a grant of free warren and confirmation of liberties from Edward the Third; with other charters of general confirmation from King Richard the Second, King Henry the Fourth, King Henry the Fifth, and King Henry the Sixth.^l

Few abbeys, it should seem, could boast of more royal protection than the abbey of Furness: nor was Pope Eugenius the only pope who granted a bull to Furness Abbey: West has given the substance of two bulls of confirmation from Pope Innocent the III^d.^m

for a consinerable time, in the crown; the earliest notice which West has of its having been passed away, is in the 5th of James the First; when it appears to have been granted to the Earl of Salisbury and John Preston.^a

The Cottonian manuscript Cleopatra E. IV. contains a list of the crimes charged upon the monks of Furness and Salley monasteries just before the dissolution; but it is too trivial to need copying here.

The following are Tanner's references to manuscripts and records relating to Furness.

The COMMON SEAL of the abbey is engraved in West's History of Furness from the surrender in the Augmentation Office.

It is round, in point of form; and exhibits within the circle the Virgin Mary holding in her left arm the infant Jesus, the infant having a nimbus or glory round its head; and the Virgin bearing a mound or orb in her right hand. On each side are shields of arms, suspended from bundlets of nightshade, charged with three lions of England: and below each shield the figure of a monk upon his knees. Before and above the monks are also sprigs of nightshade, emblematical of the name BEKANGESGILL mentioned at the beginning of this account: BEKAN being the ancient name for nightshade. In the exergue is a wivern, the device of Thomas Plantagenet, second Earl of Lancaster. The legend is S . COMMVNE . DOMVS . BEATE . MARIE . DE . FVRNESIO.

Tanner, from Camden, speaking of Furness, says, "Out of this place, the bishops of the Isle of Man (which lies over against it) were formerly wont to be chosen; this being the mother of many monasteries both in that island and in Ireland."

Dugdale, at the end of his Latin notices of Russin Abbey, in the Isle of man, which, in the present work, follows this of Furness, has printed the constitutions of the bishoprick of Sodor. These, in the present edition, will hereafter be thrown into a note.

The daughter monasteries, as they were called, or filiations of Furness, were CALDRE; SWYNESHEAD; FERMOY, or De Castro Dei, in Ireland; YNES, or De Insula, in the diocese of Down; HOLY CROSS, or Wethirlagaan, in the diocese of Cashel; WYTHNEY; CORKONROUTH, or De Petra fertili; RUSSYN, in Man; and DE SURIO, or Yneselughenught, in the diocese of Lismore in Ireland.^b

The Ruins of this abbey are still magnificent: and amongst the most striking of our monastic remains. The perspective of the church is said to be two hundred and eighty-seven feet in length; and the walls, in some places, fifty-four feet in height, and five in thickness. The windows and arches upon a scale of unusual loftiness.

RUSSIN, or RUSHEN, Abbey, as will hereafter be seen, was a Cell to Furness.

ANNO Domini millesimo centesimo vicesimo septimo, nonas Julii, à foundatione Cestertii anno vicesimo nono, à foundatione verò Savigniensi anno decimoquinto, et pontificatus Honorii papæ Secundi anno secundo, regni autem regis Henrici post conquestum Angliæ anno vicesimo sexto, fundatum est monasterium Furnesii per nobilem virum Stephanum comitem Moritonii, et Bolonii, in loco vallis, quæ tunc Bekangesgill vocabatur. Sed (ut in libello quodam veteri, et de vetusta litera scriptum reperi) ipsum monasterium prius fundatum erat in Aundyrnes, in loco qui dicitur Tulket, anno Domini mcxxiii. quarto nonas Julii, et ibi situm tenuit, per tres annos, et tres dies antequam, ubi nunc est, fundaretur; fundatum autem erat tam ibi, quam hic, de ordine Savigniacensi, id est, Tironensi, sub regula sancti Benedicti, cujus ordinis professores monachi fuerunt et eorum habitus grisius color erat. Primus autem abbas dicti monasterii Furnesii fuit Evanus de Abrincis, magnæ scientiæ, et non minoris sanctitatis vir. Secundus abbas Eudo de Sourdevall, cui Honorius papa secundus scribit privilegium speciale. Tertius abbas Michael de Lancastria. Quartus abbas Petrus de Eboraco.

Tempore hujus abbatis venerabilis, Serlo quartus abbas Savigneii, quæ est materna domus Furnesii, reddidit apud Cistertium, in capitulo generali domum suam Savigniacensem, cum filiabus suis, de ordine Tironensi, ad ordinem Cisterciensem, in manus sancti Bernardi, tunc abbatis Clarevallis, à qua redditione prædictus Petrus abbas, cum conventu suo, ad summum pontificem, et sanctam sedem apostolicam appellavit: ad quam sedem personaliter accedens impetravit à domino Eugenio papa tertio, confirmationem, ut domus sua Furnesii remaneret in perpetuum de eodem ordine de quo primò fundata erat, non obstante redditione prædicta: sed in redditu suo à curia Romana, captus est in itinere per monachos Savignienses, et ductus ad Savigneiam, ibi cessit officio abbatiali, et factus est ibidem monachus probatissimus, discens ordinem Cisterciensem; et inde fuit sumptus in abbatem Quareriæ quintum. Cui Petro successit in Furnesio quintus abbas Ricardus de Baiocis, doctor in theologia, prius monachus Savigneii. Qui modico tempore gubernavit, cujus diligentia et consilio redditum fuit ipsum monasterium Furnesii ad matrem suam Savigneiam, et ad ordinem Cisterciensem, priusquam idem Ricardus creatus fuerat in eodem, in abbatem, nam temporibus quatuor abbatum præcedentium fuit ordinis Savigniensis, ut superius est expressum. Sextus abbas Furnesii Johannes de Cawncefield, cui Eugenius papa tertius privilegium scribit. Septimus abbas Walterus de Millum, cui Alexander papa tertius scribit privilegium. Octavus Joslenus de Pennington, cui etiam Lucius papa tertius scribit privilegium; et ipse Joslenus fuit inceptor in theologia. Nonus Conanus de Bardoule. Decimus Willielmus Niger, qui prius erat abbas de Swynsheved. Undecimus Giraldus Bristaldon. Duodecimus Michael de Dalton, cui Celestinus papa tertius privilegium scribit. Decimustertius Ricardus de sancto Quintino. Decimusquartus Radulfus de Fletcham, prius abbas de Swinsheheved, assumptus illuc de Furnesio. Decimusquintus Johannes de Newby. Decimussextus Stephanus de Alverston. Decimusseptimus Nicholaus de Meaux: iste Nicholaus primò fuit canonicus de Wartria, postea monachus de Melsa, deinde monachus et abbas Furnesii, et deum episcopus Sodorensis. Decimusoctavus Robertus de Denton prius abbas de Swinseheved. Decimusnonus Laurentius de Acclom. Vicesimus Willielmus de Midleton. Vicesimus-primus Hugo de Bron. Vicesimus-secundus Willielmus de Cockeram, cujus corpus jacet sub longo colosso marmoreo in capitulo sine epitaphio. Vicesimus-tertius Hugo Skiller: iste fuit depositus de abbatatu. Vicesimus-quartus Johannes de Cockeram. Vicesimus-quintus Alexander de Walton. Vicesimus-sextus Johannes de Cokham. Vicesimus-septimus Johannes de Bolton. Vicesimus-octavus Willielmus de Dalton modernus, qui diu vivat in gratia et honore.

EST hic sciendum quod contra usum aliorum monasteriorum hujusmodi ordinis, observatur consuetudo in monasterio Furnesii solùm illos nominare et pronunciare abbates in mortuario suo qui per decennium integrum rexerunt ante decessum eorum, et postmodum obierunt abbates, et sic ibidem non nominantur abbates qui etiam post decennium abbatiatus sui cesserunt vel depositi fuerunt, seu qui ante completum decennium sui regiminis obierunt. Et sic Ewanus computatus est primus abbas Furnesii, Johannes de Cawncefeld secundus, Willielmus Niger tertius, Radulphus de Flecham quartus, Robertus de Denton quintus, Willielmus de Mydilton sextus, Hugo le Bron septimus, Johannes de Cokerham octavus, Alexander de Walton nonus, Johannes de Bolton decimus.

Ecquidem, ut suppono, usus iste, sic computandi abbates, prius inolevit ab usu illius ordinis de quo primò fundatum erat monasterium Furnesii supradictum; quod patere potest ex eo, quod Eudo et Michael de Lancaster, qui forte obierunt antequam decennium sui regiminis compleverunt; et Petrus qui cessit ut supra patet, in mortuario non ponuntur abbatum qui prioris ordinis erat, ut supra patet; et sic usus ille deducitur usque ad nos. Ewanus tamen qui multum citra decennium sui regiminis obiit, ponitur abbas primus, pro eo fortè quod ipse, cum commonachis suis de Savigneio missus, posuit sæpediti monasterii fundamentum. Ad salvandam prædictam consuetudinem ab errore, nescio rationem adnunc prætere mclioem.

NUM. XIV.

Hæ sunt filie Furnesii.

[Ib. fol. 1 b.]

MONASTERIUM de Caldra fundatum est An. Dom. m.c.xxxiiij. quarto idus Januarii.

De Swynesheved A. D. m.c.xlvij.

De Castro Dei in Hibernia, hibernicè Fermoy, Clovensis diocesis A. D. m.c.lxx.

De Insula, id est, Ynes ibidem, Dunensis diocesis, A. D. m.c.lxxxij. kalend. Junii.

De sancta Cruce ibidem, hibernicè Wethirlaghan, Casselensis diocesis, eodem anno.

De Wythneya ibidem Imelensis diocesis, A. D. m.c.lxxxviiij.

De Petra fertili, ibidem, hibernicè Corkonrouth, Ficcoborensis diocesis, Anno m.c.lxxxviiij.

De Russyn in Mannia, Sodorensis diocesis, A. D. m.cc.xxxviiij.

De Surio in Hibernia hibernicè Yneselughenught, Lismorensis diocesis, A. D. m.cc.xlix.

De prædictis filiabus abbatibus, quatuor tantum de Furnesio exierunt; videlicet: Abbatia de Caldra, de Swynesheved, de Wethneya, et de Russin. Duæ primæ fundatæ fuerunt de ordine Tyronensi, de quo ordine domus earum materna tunc erat, et postea cum ea redditæ sunt ordini Cisterc. abbatia de castro Dei, de S. cruce. De Petra Fertili et de Surio, diu post earum foundationem datæ sunt illi in filias per abbatem Clarevallis et per capitulum generale. Certa terra in Mannia data fuit abbatia de Rievalle, ad construendam abbatiam de Russin; postea tamen data fuit abbatia de Furnesio ad construendam eam de ordine Cisterciensi, ubi modo scituata est, et sic non de Rievalle sed de Furnesio exivit. Abbatia de Wythneya primò fundata fuisset in Wiersdale. Sed ipsa foundatione retracta, radices fixit in Hibernia ubi modo constructa est, et de Furnesio exivit. Abbatia de Ynes in forma subscripta filia Furnesii effecta est, prout in registro et cronicis Ultoniæ de illius foundatione lucidius expressatur.

Igitur tertio kalend. Junii Anno Domini m.c.lxxx. et anno regni Regis Henrici secundi post conquestum Angliæ xxvj; post conquestum verò Ultoniæ anno tertio, vir illustris dominus Johannes de Curcy conquestor Ultoniæ fundavit abbatiam de Ynes in insula de Ynescuscre; sic enim tunc vocabatur; quam utique abbatiam rex quidam Ultoniæ nomine Magnellus Makenlefe prius fundavit, vj. idus Septembris anno Domini m.c.xxvij. prope fontem sancti Finiani in terra quæ dicitur Erynach, et nominavit eam abbatiam de Carrike, et erat de ordine Tyronensi et filia Savigneii; cujus primus abbas sanctus Evodius, in die obitus sui, præcepit fratribus sepelire corpus ejus in insula de Ynes, et intulit causam, dicens; 'Domus ista, fratres, inquit, funditus destruetur, et hic erit deinceps habitatio ferarum latronum. Ibi verò collegium justorum et ascensus animarum sanctarum. Hic vepres, et spinæ solum desertum operient, ibi virtutum fructus producentur et inducentur in horreum paradisi; sed nolite tristari, quia desolationem quæ fiet hic, ibi populus bonus superveniens reformabit in statum meliorem.' Post cujus abbatis transitum mansit dictum monasterium de Carryke, de ordine Savigneacensi, per tempora trium abbatum; videlicet, Odonis, Devincii, et Johannis; in cujus tempore redditum fuit ipsum monasterium ordini Cisterciensi, sub conditione, quod imperpetuum esset deinceps filia Furnesii: sed tempore conquestus Ultoniæ præfatus dominus Johannes de Curcy penitus illud destruxit, quia fortalitium fuit, et multum eum infestavit; sed in recompensationem fundavit, seu potius transtulit illud in insulam suam de Ynescuscre, et dedit domui suæ maternæ de Furnesio, ad construendum illud, easdem terras quas, in loco priori, habuit ex dono Magnelli regis antedicti; et sic dicta abbatia de Ynes effecta est filia Furnesii, sicut antea fuerat in loco priori.

Curcy fundavit Ynes, hostes hinc superavit.

Russin, or Ryshen Abbey, in the Isle of Man.

UR notices of Russin Abbey are few and scanty. Gibson, in his edition of Camden, says it was otherwise called Bally Salley Abbey.^a Tanner informs us that "a religious foundation is said to have been begun here A. D. 1098, by Mac Manis, governor of the Isle; but Olave, king of Man, giving some possessions here to the abbey of Furness in Lancashire,^b Ivo or Evan, abbat there, built a Cistercian abbey here, A. D. 1134, to the honor of the Blessed Virgin, and made it subordinate to Furness. A. D. 1192, the monks removed to Duffglass, or Douglass; where they continued four years, and then returned to Russin,^c and flourished there till some time after the suppression of such houses in England; the Reformation here being not so early as in England, and this being the latest dissolved monastery in these kingdoms.

William of Worcester makes the following mention of Russen in his Itinerary; as published by Nasmith, p. 312:

"Castrum monasterii de Russyn cum iij. monachis. Monasterium de Russyn scitum est in le south eest part insulæ."

In a History of the Isle of Man, 4to. Manchester, 1783, subjoined to Memoirs of the House of Stanley, are a few particulars respecting this abbey; which is said to have consisted of an abbat and twelve monks, who at first were meanly endowed, and lived mostly by their labour; but in process of time they had good revenues. It is added, that in the Records thereof it is found that John Fargher was abbat of Rushen and deputy governor; and in a piece of timber, in Kirk Arbory, which separates the church from the chancel, that Thomas Radcliffe was abbat. These abbats were barons of the island, held courts for their temporalities in their own names, might demand a prisoner from the king's court, if their own tenant, and try him by a jury of their own tenants, as the steward of the abbey lands may do at this day. The chapel was the largest place of worship in the island except the cathedral.

De Bonis Intestatorum discedentium.

Bona intestatorum ad arbitrium episcopi diœcesani, vel ejus in absentia sui generalis vicarii ministrentur.

De Mortuariis.

In mortuariis principale animal ecclesiæ persolvatur, vacca vel bos vel equus si fuerit ad valorem sex solidorum aut minus. Et quantum ad vestes, si homo mortuarium persolverit ad arbitrium ecclesiæ stabit an vestes aut tres solidos et sex denarios habere maluerit. Et si pauper fuerit, et nullum mortuarium persolverit accipiantur vestes sicuti sunt, et quintus quique denarius ex liberis, et de Gilbogus in bonis possesso ad mortuarii valorem se extendentibus mortuarium ecclesiæ persolvatur. Quod si bona sua ad hoc minime se extendant, tunc quintus quisque denarius de liberis bonis ecclesiæ persolvatur. Et si quærat, quid est Gilbogus, dicendum est, quod Gilbogus est quis, si unius tantum noctis ætatis extiterit, et ad habendum bona ordinatus aut in bonis sessus existat, si ut dictum est obierit, ecclesia tunc suum debitum obtinebit. Item præfatus Gilbogus, licet mortuarium persolverit, ultra hoc tamen, tam presbytero et clerico, quam etiam ecclesiæ sua debita contententur. Et si nullum mortuarium persolverit, nichilominus cum eis concordet.

Debita clerico persolvenda sunt hæc. Si homo mortuarium persolvat, clericus habeat ipsius hominis caligas, calceamenta ad precium sex denariorum, et capitium pileum, aut capellum precii majoris vel minoris, sicut ipse homo in die Natalis Domini ambulaverit; item camisiam, zonam ad unius denarii valorem; bursam ad unius denarii valorem, et cultellum ad unius denarii valorem.

De Aucis, Porcis, Buculis, Vitulis et Pullis.

Auca apud festum sancti Michaelis, aut post capiantur, et porci, buculi, vituli et pulli apud festum sancti Martini in liberos recipiantur, et apud Pascha erigantur, rectore ecclesiæ de prædictis porcis, pullis ac buculis in periculo persistente. Excepto quod si iconomi buculos desideraverint habere ad suas efficiendas vaccas lac præbere ipso rectore iconomum causante ad custodiendum illos ac si proprios.

De Defunctis nulla Bona habentibus.

Si vir aut mulier obierit, et nulla bona ad contentandam ecclesiam pro sua sepultura habuerit, tunc ii qui eorum bona habere voluissent, si divites extitissent, videlicet de eorum sanguine propinquiore, ecclesiæ presbytero et clerico, ad illorum humationem contentabunt.

De Lacticiniis.

Si lacticinia in ecclesiam conformiter juxta consuetudinem non portentur, de una vacca duo denarii, de quatuor capris duo denarii, et de octo ovibus octo denarii persolvantur.

De remonentibus Domicilia ac Bona sua ab una Parochia in alteram.

Si vir vel mulier forte ab una parochia in aliam domicilium suum permutaverit, et bona sua secum abduxerit; si vir vel præter uxorem suam, pueros, lectum, gallum, gallinam, oraticulam, et mensulam pistoralem secum asportaverit, et ibidem nisi per tres noctes perseveraverit antequam ab hac luce decesserit, in illa parochia in quam nuper accessit, debita ecclesiastica persolvantur, quamvis bonorum suorum major portio in altera parochia relinquatur.

De Granis Decimalibus.

In antiquo statuto iconomi grana decimalia, ac si propria arconizabunt, et ad sua fenilia ducebant ac custodiebant, quousque rector, vel ejus procurator ob ea commodius venire posset, forte usque festum Omnium Sanctorum: modernis vero diebus rectores grana decimalia in arconomolis accipiunt ob majorem iconomorum commoditatem.

De Cervisiæ vendentibus.

Si vir vel mulier cervisiam vendendam pandoxaverint, sive communis pandoxator, vel pandoxatrix fuerit, sive non, si duos denarios et obolum de unaquaque pandoxatione accipiat, lagunculam decimalem ecclesiæ persolvat.

De Infirmis visitandis. Capitulum primum.

Statuimus ut singuli capellani prompti sint ad infirmos visitandos cum vocati fuerint, ne per eorum negligentiam, aliquos contigerit sine sacramentis ecclesiasticis mors. Et cum ad eos accesserint induti superpelliciis, reverenter corpus dominicum deferant, in pixide ad hoc deputata lintheo albo vel serico cooperta, et tintinnabulo præcedenti in villam ecclesiæ, vel in locos prope ecclesias constitutos. Ad loca verò remota corpus dominicum non deferatur nisi per capellanum ecclesiæ, capa clausa indutum. Et cum ad eo infirmos accesserint, moneant eos salubriter, et inducant ad veram confessionem et pœnitentiam, et testamentum ritè faciendum, nec aliquos sine candela accensa de cera communicet. Et ipsos ad fabricam parochialis ecclesiæ juxta facultates suas, ut aliquod relinquunt, diligenter moneant. Ad quæ colligenda et reservanda duo fideles parochiæ, juxta providentiam rectorum ecclesiarum deputentur.

Statuimus ut singuli capellani capis clausis utantur, et aliis indumentis suis ordinibus convenientibus; sed mantellam capellanis omnino interdiciamus: et præcipimus quod capellani omnes, diebus festis et solemnibus, maximè, capis clausis utantur. Et etiam cum ad capitula, vel ad synodum accesserint. Quod si secus fecerint, illud aliud indumentum inhibitum quod portaverint, fabricæ ecclesiæ sancti Germani, sine aliqua redemptione applicetur.

De Honestate Sacerdotum. Cap. 3.

Præcipimus, quod omnes capellani caveant ne aliquo modo ad tabernas accedant, vel in suis domibus tabernas teneant, quo non sint ebriosi, luxuriosi, litigiosi, sed parati verbo et opere exempla bonæ vitæ, et laudabilis conversationis transmittant in subditos suos. Et quod unusquisque secundum quod sapit, de evangelio et sacra scriptura, articulos quoque fidei plebi suæ exponat; nec non diligenter moneant parochianos suos, ut pueros suos instruant Symbolum Apostolorum, et Orationem Dominicam, cum salutatione beatæ Mariæ virginis.

De Pœna Transgressorum. Cap. 6.

Districtius inhibemus ne ecclesiarum rectores, vicarii, sacerdotes, vel clerici in sacris ordinibus constituti, publicè vel privatim habeant focarias, unde sinistra poterit oriri suspicio; quod si facere præsumpserint beneficia clericorum taliter viventium in nostra manu capiantur, eisque interdicatur ingressus ecclesiæ, quousque pœnituerint de commissio, et ad nos accesserint pœnitentiam canonicam accepturi. Hanc autem destructionem non tantum de capellanis parochias regentibus, sed etiam de quibuscunque aliis præcipimus inviolabiliter observari. Personæ vero ecclesiarum qui ausu temerario, vel capellani, qui in ecclesiis publicè concubinos retinent ministrantes, seu ministraturos, vel in parochiis sustinuerint, ad arbitrium nostrum puniantur.

De Visitatione Archidiaconi et Ornamentis Ecclesiæ.

Item statuimus quod archidiaconus secundum apostolum, non quæ sua sunt quærat, sed quæ Jesu Christi in sua visitatione provideat; quod canon missæ emendetur, et quod sacerdotes rite proferre sciant dicta canonis et baptisterii, et doceant laicos in qua forma baptizare debeant in articulo necessitatis, vel saltem hoc sciant facere in suo idiomate. Habeat etiam archidiaconus omnia ornamenta ecclesiarum in scriptis redacta et utensilia, earum vestes et libros, et singulis annis suo conspectui faciat præsentari, ut videat quæ adjecta fuerunt per diligentiam parochianorum, vel quæ medio tempore per negligentiam vel maliciam vicariorum deprædata, vel per injuriam eorum aliquo modo diminuta, quid per clericos, quid per laicos.

De Missis celebrandis.

Districtius inhibemus, ne aliquis sacerdos missarum solempnia bis in una die celebret, exceptis diebus Paschali, et Natalium Domini, et in obsequiis mortuorum, videlicet, cum corpus alicujus defuncti eo die fuerit in ecclesia tumulandum. Et hoc si in diebus Dominicis et festivis contigerit, tunc caveat sacerdos cum ipse recinxerat manus suas et calicem cum aqua et vino post communionem, ne sumat ablutionem, sed reponat illam in vaso mundo usque ad finem alterius missæ, et tunc sumat utramque ablutionem, quia propter reverentiam sacramenti non debet aliquis celebrare nisi jejunos. Si ablutionem illam sumpsisset quæ est pura aqua, vel purum vinum, tunc jejunos non esset. Item districtius inhibemus, ne aliquis sacerdos duabus matricibus ecclesiis deservire præsumat; et provideat sacerdos quod ab inchoatione missæ usque ad finem, lucerna ceres ardeat.

Ad pastorale spectat officium circa statum ecclesiarum et animarum salutem pastori provido commissarum curam impendere pervigilem, ut de grege sibi commissio rationem redditurus, de talento sibi credito lucrum reportare valeat indeficiens. Id est quod ex his quæ ab antiquis patribus prius statuta sunt, quædam ad præsens ad memoriam revocamus, pauca de novo ad hæc adjicientes, ne regimen commissum sub dissimulatione (quod absit) negligere videamus. Cum regimen animarum sit ars artium et sancta et salubris est operatio pro defunctis exorare: imprimis deliberato cleri nostri consilio, duximus statuendum ut quocienscunque aliquis rector, vicarius, vel capellanus ecclesiæ nostræ Manniæ vel aliqua alia honesta persona, orationumstrarum suffragiis commendata, et ad similia suffragia commendata et nobis obligata ab hoc sæculo migrare contigerit, ad locum et diem sepulturæ ejus, omnes alii superstitēs, absque quocunque figmento vel colore, convenient, et defuncto corpori congruum honorem impendant. Et si poterint singuli missas celebrare faciant cum aliis suffragiis ad hoc consuetis. Et ab ipso die sepulturæ ejus quilibet prædictorum triginta missas sine moræ dispendio, per se, seu per alium faciat celebrari, et triginta diebus proximè sequentibus, officium defunctorum cum novem lectionibus et consuetis psalmis sine dierum interruptione per quemlibet superstitem continuè decantetur, cum decenti devotione. Injungentibus nostris officialibus et decanis, ut dicta nostra ordnatione, diligenter inquirent, ne quis inveniatur negligens vel remissus in præmissis. Et de qualibet dictarumstrarum ordnatione infra sexaginta dierum spacium a die sepulturæ non persolvente pœna dimidiæ marcæ levetur absque personarum exceptione per dictos officiales nostros, et de ipsa pecunia tot missas, vel plures, si episcopus absens fuerit, in suarum animarum periculum faciant celebrari, responsuri episcopo cum ad partes venerint, singulis præmissarum.

Statuimus etiam quod omnes rectores, vicarii, seu capellani in ecclesiasticis officiis constituti populo suo omnibus dominicis diebus et festivis, verbum Dei et fidem catholicam et apostolicam, firmiter et indesinenter exponant, et suos subditos in articulis fidei diligenter instruant, et ad informandum in lingua materna symbolum apostolorum moneant ipsos, et adinducant, et suis liberis eandem fidem exponant, et articulos doceant. Item statuimus quod ecclesiastica sacra de devota reverentia celebrentur, sub certa forma a sanctis patribus in scriptis tradita, quam formam catholicam fide approbatam, nullus audeat in aliquas novitates commutare, et summopere præcaventes ne vinum cum quo celebratur sit corruptum, vel in acetum commutatum, et quod potius sit rubrum quam album. In albo tamen bene conficitur sacrum, et non de aceto, cum in aceto mutatur omnes substantiales vires vini anisit, et aqua in tam modica quantitate apponatur, ut non vinum ab aqua sed aqua a vino absorbeatur. Hostia de frumento sit rotunda, et integra et sine macula quia agnus extitit sine macula, et os non fuit conjunctum ex eo. Unde versus:

Candida triticea tenuis non magna rotunda
Inscribatur aqua, non cocta sed igne fit assa.

Renovetur hostia infirmis danda singulis dominicis diebus, et ponatur in loco honesto, scilicet in pixide ad hoc deputato corporali cooperto, et nusquam sine corporali recondetur. Aliis autem diebus ex necessitate poterit innovari. Et quoniam conficiuntur plures hostiæ, habeat conficiens intentionem ad omnes et non ad unam solam. Et ipsis sacerdotibus firmiter injungimus ad sacrosanctum conficiendum damnabiliter non se ingerant quamdiu sentiant se in quacumque macula mortali irretitos.

De Reparatione Cancelli, et Navis Ecclesiæ.

Item statuimus ut ecclesiæ parochiales, et cimiteria earum, pro modo facultatum parochianorum per ipsos parochianos, et cancelli per rectorem in omnibus necessariis honestè construantur; et altaria de ornamentis, libris et lumine, calice argenteo velaureo, non ligneo nec vitreo nec æreo, sed de solo argento vel auro, vel necessitate urgente de puro stanno, et aliis ornamentis depositè ornentur, et postea per episcopum consecrentur. Ecclesia vero, et omnia ornamenta illius, tam in libris quam in vestibus et aliis necessariis munda et honesta, una cum fonte crismatorio, et loco in quo conditur sacramentum altaris, per vicarium ecclesiæ propriis sumptibus diligenter custodiantur. Qui quidem vicarius de omnibus quæ geruntur in ecclesia et ejus ambitu, domino episcopo et ejus ordinariis est rationem redditurus, et de lumine purificationis beatæ ad amnem quæ vocatur Corna. Corna quidem est confinium terræ regis et monachorum ex illa parte usque vadum per quod transitur publica via, inter villam Thokel quæ alio nomine vocatur Kyrkemychel et Herynstaze, et ascendit per murum qui est confinium inter eandem villam Thorkel et Balesala, &c. et descendit oblique per eundem murum inter Crosynor Byulthan, et sic circuit Balesalaze et descendit de Balesalach per murum et foveam in amnem de Russyn sicut notum est provincialibus, et descendit per ripam annis ejusdem diversimode.

Mariæ ubi rectores non resident; de quo lumine volumus quod ministrentur ecclesiis honestè in missis celebrandis, et fiant duo cerei ad elevationem sacramenti altaris, et cereus paschalis, quos nichilominus volumus deficere in quacunque ecclesia nostræ diocesis ad illud in festivis diebus. Et si illud ad hoc non sit sufficiens, rector apponat, ut in statutis prædecessorum nostrorum continetur. Item statuimus quod nulla ecclesia, sive oratorium sine consensu nostro in nostra diocesi construat, vel constructa sine nostra autoritate divina aliqua temeritate celebrent, quin potius secundum canones prophanantur.

De Ædificio in Solo Ecclesiæ.
Item quod quilibet parochialis ecclesiæ rector habeat mansionem prope se honestè constructam in qua episcopus, archidiaconus, et eorum ordinarii recipi valeant, et procurari. Et maximè in ecclesiis domibus exemptis, appropriatis jurisdictione ordinariorum infra annum debere fieri à die publicationis præsentium, tam in expensis rectorum quam vicariorum solventium procuraciones pro rata suarum portionum. Et ad hoc ipsi rectores et vicarii compellantur, per sequestrationes fructuum beneficiorum suorum tempore præfixo revolutò.

De Clericis extraneis, et aliunde venientibus.
Firmiter præcipiendo inhibemus sub interminatione anathematis, ut nullus sacerdos alienæ diocesis ad nostram veniens, inibi residentiam præsumat facere, vel cuiquam ad celebrandum pro vivis vel defunctis se ibidem obligare, nisi prius nobis vel nostris ordinariis in nostra absentia honestè et ritè pervenerit, ostendens nobis vel nostris deputatis instrumenta publica vel testes ydoneos de veritate suæ ordinationis et conversationis. Et quia nolumus poena istius statuti ligari ignorantes decrevimus vicarios sacerdotes ad quos tales declinaverint, eis ostendere præsens statutum, et certificare debere, ne de præmissis se ignorantia excusent. Hoc idem statuimus de questoribus aliunde venientibus, ut non admittantur sine nostris litteris specialibus et commendatitiis in quacunque parte nostræ diocesis, sub poena decem solidorum sterlingorum. Et si nostri vicarii negligentes inveniantur in ostensione nostri præsentis statuti facienda præmissis personis infra octo dies postquam ad eos pervenerint, suspendantur à divinis, quousque congruè satisfaciant de negligentia et violatione nostri mandati. His adjicientes, ut clerici maxime in sacris ordinibus constituti, nisi causa peregrinationis, vel alia urgente necessitate in tabernis non comedant aut ultra unam vicem stantes bibant, nec inter sint publicis morando potationibus aut societatibus, vel aliis jocolationibus utendis locis publicis. Quod si fecerint ab ingressu ecclesiæ et divinis extunc se noverint virtute istius constitutionis fore suspensos per tres menses sequentes, nisi nobis vel ordinariis nostris de tali transgressione reatum suum infra dictum tempus ostenderint, et congruam pœnam inde peregerint.

Pœna Absentium ab Ecclesiis Diebus Dominicis.
Item statuimus, ut in qualibet parochiali ecclesia pronuncietur parochianis, ut de qualibet domo vir vel mulier vel uterque eorum quolibet die dominico veniant ad ecclesiam audituri divina et præcepta ecclesiæ, nisi rationabiliter sint excusandi, quam excusationem, non requisiti ostendant rectori vel ejus vices gerenti, in primo suo adventu ad eandem, sicuti catholicam voluerint evitare ultionem, et nichilominus pro qualibet transgressione levetur poena trium solidorum et quatuor denariorum de quolibet qui consuetudinem sic se absenteando subtraxerit à proprio ovili ut inter existentes ibi adhibeatur omnis humanitas, prout tangitur in concilio Lugdunensi de eminitate ecclesiarum capitulo 'Dominum tua decet sanctitudo.'

Abbey of Inys, or Iniscourcy, in the County of Downe, IN IRELAND :

A Cell to the Abbey of Furness.

THE following is the account of this Monastery given in Archdale's Monasticon Hibernicum, 4to. 1786, p. 122. The editors of the present work have no particulars to add to it.

" INISCOURCEY.

" A peninsula, opposite to Downpatrick, running into the Lough of Strangford.

Sir John de Courcey, who in his wars had demolished the abbey of Erynach, or Carrig, in order to make his peace with Heaven for that profanation, built an abbey here for monks of the Cistercian order, and dedicated it, on the 3d of June, A.D. 1180, to the Virgin Mary; he supplied this house with monks from the abbey of Furnes in Lancashire, and gave to it all the possessions which had belonged to Erynach.

" The abbot E. was a subscribing witness to Sir John de Courcey's grant to the church of St. Patrick at Down.

" 1237. G. the abbat was a subscribing witness to Hugh de Lacie's charter to the abbey of Newry.

" 1380. It was enacted by parliament that no mere Irishman should be permitted to profess himself here.

" The abbey, with half a carucate, called the Island of Inch, also a certain water called the Narrow water, a carucate or ballyboe in Ballirenald, and a ballyboe in Faghebroggye; a ballyboe in Ballymugnegall, and half a ballyboe in Jermyn; a quarter of a carucate in Erery; a carucate in Ballycany; a ballyboe in St. John's; two acres in Ballavig and Ballygilbert, and two carucates in the twogranges there, were granted to Gerald, earl of Kildare. See Lismullen in county of Meath.

" The church of the abbey was built in the form of a cross; part of it yet remains at the east end, and three large windows with Gothic arches, upwards of twenty feet high. In the north and south walls are two windows, each of two arches, and little inferior to those of the east end. On the south side of the altar of this noble building, are still to be seen the tops of the seats for the administering priest and his assistants, cut in the wall, and beautified with Gothic sculpture; on the south side was the steeple, supported by an elegant arch, some of the beads or string of which are yet visible."

Ynesensis Abbatia in Hibernia, Cella Furnesii.

Historia de Fundatione ejusdem.

[Ex prima parte Registri de Furnes. fol. 1.]

ABBATIA de Wethneya primò fundata fuisset in Wyresdale; sed, ipsa fundatione retracta, radices fixit in Hibernia, ubi modò constructa est, et de Furnesio exivit.

Abbatia de Ynes in forma subscripta filia Furnesii effecta est, prout in registro et chronicis Ultoniæ de illius fundatione lucidiùs expressatur. Igitur tertio kalendas Junii anno Domini mclxxx. anno regni regis Henrici secundi post conquestum Angliæ xxij. post conquestum verò Ultoniæ anno tertio, vir illustris dominus Johannes de Curcy, conquestor Ultoniæ fundavit abbatiam de Ynes, in insula de Ynescurci, sic enim tunc vocabatur; quam itaque abbatiam rex quidam Ultoniæ, nomine Magnellus Makenlefe, priùs fundavit sexto idus Septembris, anno Domini m.c.xxvj. prope fontem sancti Finani, in terra quæ dicitur Erynach, et nominavit eam, abbatiam de Carryk, et erat de ordine Tironensi, et filia Savigneii, &c.

Tempore conquestus Ultoniæ præfatus dominus Johannes de Curcy penitus illud destruxit, scilicet, monasterium de Carryk, quia fortalicium fuit, et multum ei infestavit: sed in recompensam, fundavit, seu potius transtulit illud in insulam suam de Ynescuscre, et dedit domui suæ maternæ de Furnesio, ad construendum illud easdem terras, quas in loco priori habuit ex dono Magnelli regis antedicti. Et sic dicta abbatia de Ynes effecta est filia Furnesii, sicut ante fuerat in loco priori.

Anno milleno centeno bis quadrageno
Curcy fundavit Ynes, hostes hinc superavit.

Abbey of Nethe, or Neath, in Glamorganshire.

ISHOP Tanner's is probably the best account which can now be given of the abbey of Nethe. He says, Richard de Grainville, and Constance his wife, gave their chapel in the castle at Nethe, the tithes belonging to it, a large tract of waste land, and other possessions, in the time of Henry the First, to the Abbat and Convent of Savigny, near Lyons in France, that they might build an abbey here.^a And a very fair abbey, dedicated to the Holy Trinity,^b was built accordingly, on the west side of the river, a little below the town,^c for monks of the order of Savigny, or Fratres Grisei, who soon after became Cistercians.^d

Notwithstanding the original donation to Savigny, Tanner says, he did not find that this house was ever subject to that foreign abbey, or accounted as alien. Being an Abbey, it could not be a Cell, as Stevens, vol. ii. p. 257. It seems rather to have been a daughter house to Savigny.^e

The founder's charter to the monastery of Savigny will be found in the Appendix;^f with two charters of confirmation from King John.^g

A manuscript in the library of Benet College Cambridge, which has been already frequently quoted, says there were eight monks in this abbey about the time of the dissolution.

The following are the entries relating to Nethe in the Taxation of 1291:

A Register of this abbey, in Dugdale's time, was in the possession of Sir Edward Stradling, Knt.

Certain possessions of this abbey, within the bounds of the king's forests in Somersetshire, are enumerated in Adam of Domesday, p. 193; and a note of three marks ten shillings yearly belonging to this House from the manor of Exford occurs in Dr. Archer's Account of Religious Houses, printed at the end of Hearne's Hemingford, p. 638.

Tanner refers to "Analecta ex Registro," in MS. Ashmole, 844, and in the Harl. MS. 2273, fol. 154. He likewise notices Cart. 10 Hen. III. n. 42. See also the Plac. de Quo Waranto, p. 682.

The COMMON SEAL of this abbey represented the Blessed Virgin crowned, standing, holding in her right hand a lily, in the left the infant Jesus: in base, a shield, with the arms of Grainville, the founder; viz. three clarions. ^a Grainville, Tanner says, was one of Fitz Haimon's knights, who came, about A.D. 1090, to assist Æncon and Jestin against Rhese, prince of South Wales, as Camden, in Glamorganshire: and in his grant, he saith, "Hæc omnia damus, Henrici regis Anglorum patrocinio et consensu," which shows that his gift to Savigny must have been in this king's time; but how long after that the abbey was built, or even by whom it was built, I cannot yet learn; but if it was built when Robert, earl of Gloucester, made his donation, it must have been before A.D. 1147, because he died that year, as in the present work, vol. ii. p. 61. Fuller, in his Worthies, p. 258, saith, that Sir Richard Grainville was of Biddeford in Devonshire; that he settled all his military acquests on this monastery, and then returned to Biddesford, where he lived in the Augmentation Office; a more perfect one is in the possession of Matthew Gregson, Esq. They were both appendant to conventual leases of the reign of Henry the Eighth.

In Moore's Monastic Remains it is observed, in a passage which has been already quoted from Leland, that Neath was once the fairest abbey in all Wales; and, by the ruins still remaining, much credit may be given to this description. The west end in 1788, excepting the great arch, was tolerably perfect; the east end, and principal part of the nave, demolished; but the lateral aisles remained covered with ivy: also several apartments of the abbey were standing on the south side of the church.

Abbey of Basingwerk, in Flintshire.

F Basingwerk Abbey our information is more scanty than of most of the Cistercian Houses. There is even a difference of opinion as to who was the founder.

Ranulph, or Ralph, Earl of Chester, according to the Chronicle of St. Werburgh, founded this monastery in the year 1131. The Annals of Parcolude say in 1132.

Leland, however, in his Collectanea considers King Henry the Second as the founder;^a and he is followed in the assertion by Bishop Fleetwood, in his Notes upon St. Winefrede's Life, who speaks of Earl Ranulph as the chief benefactor only.^b

Tanner is of opinion that it was begun by the earl about the time abovementioned; but that it was probably improved and made an abbey of Cistercians by King Henry the Second, about A.D. 1159.^c

Leland, in another part of his Collectanea, speaks of this monastery as founded by King Henry the Second when he began his wars with the Welsh, and after he had fortified Rhudland Castle; that is after A.D. 1156. "Rex Henricus secundus duxit primo exercitum in Walliam, et firmavit castellum de Rudlande, et fundavit monasterium de Basingwerke."^d

Tanner says, in a manuscript of Bishop Humfrys, it is said that King Henry the First originally founded at Basingwerk a Cell of Templars; and that it was not made a house of Cistercian monks till A.D. 1312. The same story in part occurs in the additions made by Bishop Gibson to Camden's Account of Flintshire: but as Tanner very justly observes, Earl Ranulph's death took place in 1153; and the monks must have been here before 1240, as they are mentioned in both Lewelline and his son David's charters, the latter of which is dated in that year.

Dugdale has printed a charter of confirmation to this house by Henry the Second; but Bishop Fleetwood clearly proves it to be Henry the Third's charter.^e It confirms to the monks here, lands to the value of ten pounds at Lon-genedale; that is Glossope, with the church there, and the lands which had been William Peverel's: and also confirms the tenements which Ralph, Earl of Chester, and other barons had bestowed upon them in Haliwell and Fulibroch, with the chapel of Basingwerk in which they were first settled; certain mills and other appurtenances. It appears from this charter also, that they had land at Kethlenedei, Holes, Lecche, and Calders.^f

Two other charters of confirmation are likewise printed by Dugdale from Llewelin, Prince of North Wales, and David his son: the latter dated from Coleshull.^g monks of Basingwerk by King Henry III. though it has hitherto been thought to be Henry II.; but since the king then gives the lands which once belonged to W. Peverell, in the time of King Henry his grandfather, and it is certain that King Henry II. took away those lands from W. Peverell because he was found to have poisoned Rundle, the second Earl of Chester, in or about the year 1154, therefore 'tis plain that Henry here named must have been Henry III., whose grandfather Henry II. was."

Moore in his Monastic Remains gives a view of this abbey as it then stood [1791]; he observes respecting it, among other things, that it is situated on a flat near the water, one mile from Holywell, that the remains are very considerable, but show it to have been of a length disproportionate to its width, the refectory seems most entire, wherein are three windows with pointed arches, but the doors are circular; at one end of the church are two doors, and adjoining to the refectory are six windows, inwardly rather of a circular form, none of them ornamented, except a small double one; at the extremity of this building are three arches, almost circular, and supported by pillars, which appear to be still very solid, and without being much ornamented, seem elegant from the simplicity of their construction.

The architecture of the abbey is in part Norman; having round arches and short columns in some places, and in others, the narrow pointed Gothic windows.

No Conventual Seal of Basingwerk has yet been found.

Merton Abbey, Monks' Church

Abbey of Tintern, in Monmouthshire.

INTERN abbey, dedicated to St. Mary, was founded in 1131 by Walter de Clare, the grandson of Walter Fitz-osbert, earl of Ew.

The details of the first endowment of this Monastery, as well as of various later benefactions to the 7th year of Henry the Third, will be found in the Appendix, in a charter of confirmation from William Marshall the younger, earl of

Pembroke, grandson of Walter.^a Another charter of confirmation, from Roger Bigod, earl of Norfolk, in 1301, will also be found there.^b

The following are the entries relating to the possessions of Tintern in the Taxation of 1291.

No other abbey-ruin in the kingdom has probably attracted half the attention that has been bestowed on Tintern: it is altogether the most picturesque remain of a monastic edifice with which we are acquainted. It is moreover placed in a beautiful country, upon the bank of a fine river, and is, for miles, surrounded by romantic scenery.

The best account of the Ruins is probably that inserted in Coxe's Historical Tour in Monmouthshire, published in 1801; very little change, indeed, has taken place in its condition since that time. He says,

"We disembarked about half a mile above the village of Tintern, and followed the sinuous course of the Wy. As we advanced to the village, we passed some picturesque ruins hanging over the edge of the water, which are supposed to have formed part of the abbat's villa, and other buildings occupied by the monks; some of these remains are converted into dwellings and cottages, others are interspersed among the iron founderies and habitations.

"The first appearance of the celebrated remains of the abbey church did not equal my expectations, as they are half concealed by mean buildings, and the triangular shape of the gable ends has a formal appearance.

"After passing a miserable row of cottages, and forcing our way through a crowd of importunate beggars, we stopped to examine the rich architecture of the west front: but the door being suddenly opened, the inside perspective of the church called forth an instantaneous burst of admiration, and filled me with delight, such as I scarcely ever before experienced on a similar occasion. The eye passes rapidly along a range of elegant Gothic pillars, and glancing under the sublime arches which supported the tower, fixes itself on the splendid relics of the eastern window, the grand termination of the choir.

“From the length of the nave, the height of the walls, the aspiring form of the pointed arches, and the size of the east window, which closes the perspective, the first impressions are those of grandeur and sublimity. But as those emotions subside, and we descend from the contemplation of the whole to the examination of the parts, we are no less struck with the regularity of the plan, the lightness of the architecture, and the delicacy of the ornaments; we feel that elegance is its characteristic no less than grandeur, and that the whole is a combination of the beautiful and the sublime.

“This church was constructed in the shape of a cathedral, and is an excellent specimen of Gothic architecture in its greatest purity. The roof is fallen in, and the whole ruin open to the sky, but the shell is entire; all the pillars are standing except those which divided the nave from the northern aisle, and their situation is marked by the remains of the bases. The four lofty arches which supported the tower, spring high in the air, reduced to narrow rims of stone, yet still preserving their original form. The arches and pillars of the choir and transept are complete; the shapes of all the windows may be still discriminated, and the frame of the west window is in perfect preservation; the design of the tracery is extremely elegant, and when decorated with painted glass, must have produced a fine effect. Critics who censure this window as too broad for its height, do not consider that it was intended for a particular object, but to harmonise with the general plan; and had the architect diminished the breadth in proportion to the height, the grand effect of the perspective would have been considerably lessened.

“The general form of the east window is entire, but the frame is much dilapidated; it occupies the whole breadth of the choir, and is divided into two large and equal compartments,^a by a slender shaft not less than fifty feet in height, which has an appearance of singular lightness, and in particular points of view seems suspended in the air.

“Nature has added her ornaments to the decorations of art; some of the windows are wholly obscured; others partially shaded with tufts of ivy, or edged with lighter foliage; the tendrils creep along the walls, wind round the pillars, wreath the capitals, or hanging down in clusters obscure the space beneath.

“Instead of dilapidated fragments overspread with weeds and choked with brambles, the floor is covered with a smooth turf, which by keeping the original level of the church, exhibits the beauty of its proportions, heightens the effect of the gray stone, gives a relief to the clustered pillars, and affords an easy access to every part. Ornamented fragments of the roof, remains of cornices and columns, rich pieces of sculpture, sepulchral stones, and mutilated figures^b of monks and heroes, whose ashes repose within these walls, are scattered on the green sward, and contrast present desolation with former splendour.

“Although the exterior appearance of the ruins is not equal to the inside view, yet in some positions, particularly to the east, they present themselves with considerable effect. While Sir Richard Hoare was employed in sketching the north-western side, I crossed the ferry, and walked down the stream about half a mile. From this point the ruins, assuming a new character, seem to occupy a gentle eminence and impend over the river, without the intervention of a single cottage to obstruct the view. The grand east window, wholly covered with shrubs and half mantled with ivy, rises like the portal of a majestic edifice embowered in wood. Through this opening and along the vista of the church, the clusters of ivy, which twine round the pillars or hang suspended from the arches, resemble tufts of trees, while the thick mantle of foliage, seen through the tracery of the west window, forms a continuation of the perspective, and appears like an interminable forest.”

The Common Seal of this monastery is appendant to an instrument dated in the 6th Hen. VIII. whereby the abbat and convent appoint Charles, earl of Worcester, and Henry Somerset, Lord Herbert, his son and heir apparent, chief stewards of their manor of Acle in Norfolk.^c The subject of this seal, of which only a mutilated impression on red wax remains, was the Virgin Mary and child, seated under an ornamented arch, in a niche underneath an abbat, with his crozier on his knees praying: nearly the whole of the legend is gone, the only part remaining being ^a William of Worcester describes it as divided into eight compartments, and ornamented with the arms of Roger de Bigod. The height of the window is sixty feet, and the breadth twenty-seven. The height of the east, west, north, and south windows, and of the four centre arches which supported the tower, from the ground to the point of the arch, is sixty-seven feet.

^b Among other sepulchral figures is the mutilated effigies of a man in a coat of mail, with his shield on his left arm, which is erroneously supposed to represent Richard Strongbow, earl of Pembroke, and great nephew of Walter de Clare, the founder of the abbey, who, according to Leland, was buried in the chapter-house of Gloucester. According to Grose his right hand has five fingers and a thumb, but the sculpture is so rude, that I could not ascertain whether it has four or five fingers.

In Chronicis Abbatiae de Tynterne in Wallia reperitur sic.

[MS. in biblioth. Cottoniana, sub effig. Cleopatæ c. 3. fol. 303 b.]

ANNO Domini m.lxvj. obiit sanctus Edwardus rex Angliæ apud London et sepultus fuit apud Westmonasterium, et ibidem postea fuit honorifice translatus. Et eodem anno Willielmus qui fuit dux Normanniæ et conquestor Angliæ eam adquisivit, fretus auxilio regis Franciæ et magnatum Normanniæ, inter quos unus præcipuorum fuit Willielmus filius Osberti comitis de Ogi.

Prædictus conquestor dedit manerium de Wolleston et manerium de Tudenham in parte, et similiter dedit ei licen-

tiam conquerendi super Wallenses postea. Et dedit ei similiter licentiam acquisitionem suam adeo liberè tenere sicut ipsemet potuit tenuisse, cum regalitate ut ita loquar. Cui successit in hæreditatem Richardus filius ejus et fuit comes de Ogi per successionem hæreditariam, et similiter de Wollaston et de Tudenham. Et similiter dictus conquestor contulit ei licentiam eandem quam dedit patri suo, videlicet conquerendi super Wallenses eodem modo et in eadem forma quo vel qua contulit patri suo prædicto. Et postea genuit filium quem nominari fecit Walterum, et ideo vocabatur Walterus filius Richardi, fundator ecclesiæ de Tynterna in Wallia futurus, et postea idem Richardus obiit in senectute bona. Cui successit in hæreditatem prædictus Walterus filius Richardi tam in transmarinis quam in cismarinis, et similiter contulit licentiam eandem quam fecerat patri suo, videlicet conquerendi super Wallenses eodem modo et eadem forma quo vel qua dederat patri suo et avo similiter. Et postquam antecessores sui et ipsemet adquisiverunt universam Nether-Wentiam et medietatem de Grun, tunc fundavit abbatiam de Tintern in Wallia anno Domini millesimo centesimo tricesimo primo. Et postea idem Walterus filius Richardi obiit sine hærede de corpore suo, cujus animæ propitiatur Deus, Amen.

Cui successit in hæreditatem Gilbertus Strongbowe filius patris sui, qui incontinenti factus fuit primus comes Penbrochiæ. Et idem Gilbertus dominium de Strughulle et totius Nether-Wenciæ cum prædictis terris habuit et tenuit per decennium; qui quidem Gilbertus genuit filium et imposuit sibi nomen Richardus, et in anno Domini millesimo centesimo quadragesimo octavo obiit et sepultus est apud Tynternam. Cui successit in hæreditatem Ricardus Strongbowe filius ejus, et similiter factus est comes Penbrochiæ. Rieball, Riber, or Ribaulx Abbey, in Yorkshire.

IEVALL was the first abbey of the Cistercian order founded in Yorkshire, A.D. 1131, by Walter Espec; who allotted to certain of the monks who had been sent to England in 1128 by St. Bernard of Clarevall, a solitary place in Blakemore, near Hame-lac, now Helmesley, surrounded by steep hills, and covered with wood and ling, near the angles of three different vales, with each a rivulet running through them, that passing where the abbey was built being called Rie, whence this vale took its name, and this religious house was thence called the Abbey of Rievall. Here William, the first abbat, began the building of the monastery; dedicating it to the Virgin Mary.

Pope Alexander the Third, by his bull dated A.D. 1160, took this monastery into his immediate protection; enjoining that the Cistercian order should there continue for ever; confirming to the monks all their possessions, many of which are specified; exempting them from the payment of tithes; forbidding all persons to detain any of the brethren of the house; charging all bishops not to interdict them, unless for some notorious offence; allowing them to perform divine offices in private, although the county might happen to be under an interdict; declaring any person excommunicate who should presume to steal any thing out of their lands, or to take any man thence, and confirming all the immunities granted to them by King Henry the First or King Henry the Second.^a

Pope Alexander the Fourth, sometime before 1261, confirmed their exemption from tithes; explaining that this exemption extended also to the tithes of such newly cultivated ground as they might occupy, or be at the expense of improving.^b

Burton, who had access to many charters which the editors of this work have not been able to obtain a sight of, has given an enumeration of the possessions of Rievall in alphabetical order; whence it appears that

Robert de Samford, minister of the knights templars in England, with the advice and consent of the chapter of London, granted to the monks a carriage-way beyond Greenhill in the territory of Alverstain, or Allerstan.^c Torphin de Alverstain, Alan his son, and Maud his wife, gave pasture for five hundred sheep in this territory, where other cattle fed, with three acres of land here in Morthou, for a sheep-fold. They also gave two acres and a half in Wandaile, with one acre of meadow of their demesne in the south of Hella.^d The said Torphin de Alverstain also gave one carucate of land here, which was confirmed by Pope Alexander the Third.^e

By Fin. Ebor. 52 Hen. III. n. 5, the monks of Rievall had half a carucate of land in Angeram.

John son of John the vintner gave a house and land in Flemmingate in the town of Beverley.^f Robert de Scrylage, also, gave land of sixty feet in length and thirty broad in this territory.^g

Helyas son of Robert de Bellerby confirmed pasture to the monks in Bellerby, or Belgherby, for four hundred and ninety sheep, and for thirty ewes, with their lambs; with land to build shepherds' houses, &c. He likewise granted them twelve acres of meadow, and free passage through his territory in that place for themselves, their carriages, &c.^h Helyas de Belgherby gave two acres of meadow here, with all his meadow abutting in length upon the water of Ter-vine.ⁱ

Ralph son of Huctred de Bergheby gave twelve acres of meadow in Bergheby.^k

By the Fin. Ebor. 14 Edw. I. n. 36, it appears that the monks had fourteen oxgangs of land in Buskeby or Baskeby Parva.

By Fin. Ebor. 8 Edw. III. n. 165, and Pat. 14 Ric. II. p. 2, m. 33, it appears that the monks had several mes-suages, eight tofts, and other lands in Bulford.
